Important Corner Building For Rent

The Williamson Building

Located on the northwest corner of Jefferson Street and Church Avenue, Roanoke, Va., and now occupied by Dalby Drug Company and Graves Humphries Hardware Company, being 75 feet on Jefferson Street and 95 feet on Church Avenue; will be available as a rental proposition beginning February 1, 1920. The building is located in the heart of the best City in the South—Roanoke, Va. It is on the main thoroughfare, on an important corner, and three stories high. On the opposite corner is located the S. H. Heironimus Company Department Store.

The corner store room has been occupied by a drug store for fifteen years. This building has just recently been purchased from the Williamson estate; and the new owners have on file over 100 applications for business locations.

It will pay responsible parties to look this proposition over. This is a rare opportunity, as it is impossible to secure a business location here. Six store rooms on ground floor. Will lease as a whole or part—for short or long term.

E. D. HEINS
Roanoke, Va.

Wykagyl Park
New Rochelle, N. Y.

Quaker Ridge
New Rochelle, N. Y.

"The Home Spots of Beautiful Westchester"

Wykagyl Park is located on the hills overlooking Long Island Sound, in the centre of New Rochelle's new and beautiful residential section. It fronts on North Ave. between the historic Paine Monument and the famous Wykagyl Golf Links. It is surrounded by large estates and extends back over "Quaker Ridge." With woodlands, fields, lakes and streams, winding drives and artistic homes, Wykagyl Park is one of the most attractive residential centres near Greater New York.

The famous Wykagyl Country Golf Links adjoins Wykagyl Park.

The New Rochelle Tennis Club is located in the centre of Wykagyl Park and its membership is open to lovers of the sport.

Large plots of land and acreage are offered for sale at very attractive prices.

Quaker Ridge compares favorably with Wykagyl Park and is rich in picturesque landscape. It is close by the railroad station, in fact, at the station. Its roads are all constructed, gutters built, sidewalks laid and is ready for immediate building. It has some choice and very attractive plots for home sites and there is at present unusual activity in building, not for speculative purposes, but for owners' use exclusively.

Like Wykagyl Park, Quaker Ridge is a rolling country with woodlands, fields and winding drives.

Many New York business men crave that quietude of home life so hard to find within the confines of the city. Here is the opportunity to enjoy exclusive suburban life at its best, within a stone's throw of the Greater City.

New England Colonial residence on large plot, tapestry brick construction, in immaculate condition, shown furnished. 7 rooms, 3 baths. Two-car garage. Heated. Price $40,000.

Transit:

Wykagyl Park and Quaker Ridge are convenient to the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad—"The New Road." Trains every 20 minutes, and within easy access of New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Station. 30 minutes to Grand Central Station, New York.

Write for map and descriptive booklet or call at office on the property.

Sage Foundation Homes Co.

Forest Hills Gardens

FIFTEEN MINUTES FROM PENN. STATION

LAND is the most secure of all investments, therefore it is called, in contradistinction to other types of investment, REAL ESTATE.

TRANSPORTATION and accessibility are the fundamental principles that enhance the value of REAL ESTATE. Improved transportation has brought Forest Hills Gardens within fifteen minutes of the centre of Manhattan.

BUILDING operations have been resumed. The increased cost of building is offset by the low price of the land. Many people are purchasing plots and having plans prepared. Our belief that prices are staple—even though higher than pre-war prices—is confirmed by the fact that the SAGE FOUNDATION HOMES CO. is at present building 25 houses, costing over three-quarters of a million dollars. We urge upon those contemplating owning a home the early selection of a building site.

THE REAL ESTATE business is in a better position now than at any time since 1907, therefore land prices are sure to increase.

THE DOWNTOWN BUYING MOVEMENT

Bonuses Are Now Being Offered for Space in the Financial Section.

LITTLE CHANCE OF RELIEF

New and Altered Structures Leased Long Before Improvements are Completed.

One of the outstanding features of the present-day market demand for real estate is the unusual interest which merchants and financial institutions are taking in downtown properties.

For the first time in many years there has been a concerted buying movement on the part of these interests to take over through purchase properties which have heretofore been occupied under leasing arrangements.

This element in the business of the last few months has not only attracted considerable attention to sections of the city which have been comparatively dormant as far as the sales market is concerned, but it has exemplified in no uncertain manner the fundamental strength of the buying market in New York City.

There is an imposing array of transactions which may be cited as indicating this tendency, the most notable perhaps being the purchase by the United States Steel Corporation of the Empire Building, at 71 Broadway. Other deals include the purchase of 68 William Street by the Royal Bank of Canada, and the Liberty Tower Building, at 55 Liberty Street, by the Sinclair Oil Company, 45 William Street by the Bank of North America, Stock Quotation Building, on Beaver Street, by Norton, Lilly & Co.; Seligman Building by marine insurance brokers, tenants of the building, and Delmonico's downtown property by marine interests.

The Post Building, on Beaver Street, about a block from the Beaver Building, was purchased about six weeks ago by the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Other banks that have become fee holders include the Federal Reserve, the Bank of Montreal, the Royal Bank of Canada, and the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Additional transactions of lesser importance but also significant as indicating the trend of the recent purchases of downtown locations were made by shipping firms identified with insurance and Stock Exchange interests.

In the butter and egg district centring around Duane and Greenwich Streets, in the tea and coffee section on Front Street, in the Swamp, and even in the old dry goods district, firm after firm has been taking over properties in order to insure permanent occupancy.

Discussing the movment a member of the firm of Pease & Elliman said:

"The present-day situation illustrates strikingly the oft-repeated theory that the real estate market in New York City travels in cycles. A generation ago a large number of business men owned the properties in which they carried on their various trades. Within recent years, as the result of several developments, the tendency toward leasing became more marked, and while a sale here and there was reported, it was the rule, rather than the exception, that they played the role of the lessee and not that of owner.

"In the first place ownership involved the tying up of a considerable amount of capital, which might under ordinary circumstances be utilized for cash resources and money on hand. Secondly, there was always the possibility of a radical change in the character of the neighborhood which would cause a loss in value, and, thirdly, there was also a possibility of the invasion of undesirable neighbors of a kind which would detract from the desirability of the section for their purposes, also resulting in a decline in property values.

"An analysis of leasing conditions, therefore, up to about a year ago, would show that in spite of the great number of trade removals, these with few exceptions were negotiated on a leasing basis regardless of the size or importance of the firm which made the change. The fact, however, that they leased rather than bought substantiates the contention that leasing even for a long time was preferable to acquiring ownership.

"Several reasons may be advanced as explaining this change of attitude on the part of business men, the most important being probably the fact that building has not kept pace with demand and that there is a marked shortage of space in the downtown section. The supply to meet this strong and steadily increasing demand is diminished and conditions are such that no floating supply of space will be available in the near future. This fact is being realized by the more aggressive and farseeing corporations. Much of the buying for occupancy has been by firms and individuals that cannot get the proper office accommodations downtown, and many of them find that they not only get better space and individuality but lower overhead rent charges by buying old buildings and altering them for office purposes.

"The financial district is limited by reason of its environments and the ownership by institutions of property located downtown and because Manhattan Island is small and its area limited with the impossibility of widening it even by a foot. There has been no construction to speak of in the last three years, and little building is progressing now. There is a demand for space due to the steady increase of population and business growth. These conditions commenced to be felt about two years ago, at which time an increase in rental conditions was noted; property for rental became scarcer twelve months ago, and now there is practically no space for rental.

"There are undoubtedly other reasons which have influenced business men to this attitude with regard to real estate. In the first place the enactment of the zoning resolution will offset for all time the possibility of radical shifts in neighborhoods, as a result of which whole districts have been abandoned and values ruined.

"In the second place, the future character of each street in the city has been mapped out along sane and logical lines, and the result will probably create the stability of values which has been sadly lacking in recent years, and which has been responsible to a great degree for the unwillingness of investors of this class to buy.

"The third reason may be the desire on the part of business men to conserve surplus profits by becoming the owners of the buildings in which they have been conducting probably the most profitable periods during their entire career. At any rate, setting aside causes, the situation reflects an unusually healthy real estate condition from the standpoint of ownership and shows the steadily growing trend toward ownership rather than tenantry."

UNIONS TO FORCE RAILWAY ISSUE INTO NATIONAL ELECTION; BOMBERS DESTROY LOS ANGELES HOME OF OSCAR LAWLER; EX-PROSECUTOR AND WIFE SEVERELY BURNED, HE MAY DIE

BROTHERHOODS TO FIGHT

ISSUE FOR 1920 CAMPAIGN

Say That They Can Block Legislation for the Return of the Railroads Until Then.

CLAIM 6,000,000 VOTES NOW

"Plumb Plan League" to Check Up All Congressmen and Carry the Fight Into Their Districts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The fight which the railroad brotherhoods have organized, in an effort to force through Congress the adoption of Government ownership of the railway systems, with the railroad employes sharing in the profits, will be carried to the people, Warren S. Stone, President of the Brotherhod of Engineers, said tonight, and the constituents of Senators and Representatives who oppose the proposed legislation will be appealed to against these representatives.

"We are going far enough to win the fight and we are going to win," Mr. Stone said tonight, when asked how far the railroad men were prepared to go to put into effect the threats which were contained in yesterday's statement, which accompanied the bill submitted to the House by Congressman Sims.

"Within sixty days," he added, "Senators and Congressmen will have heard from at least 1,000,000 of their constituents and that will be only the beginning. We are going to carry this fight to all parts of the nation and it may become the big presidential issue."

In the latter connection Mr. Stone said that in his mind it was not essential that the lines be returned to their former owners by Jan. 1, 1920, as requested by President Wilson, and intimated that if the so-called Plumb plan for Government ownership had not been forced through Congress by that time every effort would be made by organized labor to prevent the adoption of other legislation which called for the return of the lines to their former owners before there had been an opportunity to make the issue a feature of the next Presidential campaign.

Stone Talks of a Panic.

Two phrases in the statement issued yesterday over the signatures of Mr. Stone and other railroad brotherhood Presidents, one to the effect that the railroad men were in no mood to brook the return of the lines to their former owners and the other that labor was determined that there must be a change, were brought to Mr. Stone's attention.

"I wonder if you realize," he said, that such statements are not carelessly made public and that they are sent out only after the most careful consideration."

"I am not sure," added Mr. Stone, "that we have picked out the psychological moment to introduce this movement, but I think so. There has got to be a change. If the railroads were returned to their owners the majority of them would be in the hands of a receiver within sixty days and this country would be experiencing the worst panic in the history of the nation.

"I do not like to talk in sensational terms, but we are walking on a very thin crust," he continued when asked about the danger of a nation-wide strike. "If, there are to be higher wages under present conditions, rates must go up, and that would serve to keep up living costs. There is a point where the American people will stand no more, and if prices go much higher that point will be reached. But unless living costs are brought down radically we must have more wages. It is an endless chain and spells disaster. The adoption of our plan will provide the correct method for bringing about rational conditions."

Mr. Stone said that he had mentioned the subject to President Wilson and had asked for an interview later, after the President returned from his proposed tour to the West coast. The President, he said, had stated that he would be glad to discuss the matter with him.

It is pretty generally believed now that President Wilson will not go on his Western tour for some time, perhaps not this year, because of the recent developments, and in that event an early interview probably will be sought by Mr. Stone.

Oppose President's Plan.

In connection with the recommendations made by President Wilson and Director General of Railroads Hines for the creation of a Federal commission to determine wage adjustments, and which would have power to compel the Interstate Commerce Commission to raise rates to meet such wage increases as were granted, Mr. Stone said that he was opposed to some features, especial-

Senate Committee to Start at Once Study of the Whole Railroad Problem

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, said tonight that the committee would plunge, on Tuesday, into an exhaustive inquiry into the railroad situation. It will devote itself particularly to a study of the railroad problem from the viewpoint of the crisis that came to a head with the letter of President Wilson to Speaker Gillett.

"The President was right in saying that something ought to be done quickly to relieve the railroad situation," said Mr. Cummins. "I am in entire accord with him as to that. Either wages must be increased or the cost of living must be reduced.

"I cannot say how the committee will approach the problem in its deliberations, but I can say that it will attempt to evolve a solution of the problem that will be of practical effect. I have ideas on the matter which I shall communicate to the committee, and I suppose other members have ideas of their own.

"It is evident that there must be legislation on the subject, but what form it is to take cannot be foreseen. The committee will have to thresh it out.

"I am sure the committee wants to arrive at a quick determination of the entire matter. But it will take some little time to go thorougly into it. We want to investigate from all viewpoints, so that the railroads and the emplyoes will have the advantage of the soundest opinion obtainable. There will be no undue haste, yet every effort will be made to evolve a policy of legislative procedure at the earliest moment."

CABINET COMMITTEE AIMS AT PROFITEERS

President Expected to Address Congress and Nation on Living Costs.

CONFEREES MEET TUESDAY

Indications Are That Sale of Wheat in Open Market Will Be Advised.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The plans of the Administration to bring down living costs are being whipped into shape by the committee of three named at the conference called by Attorney General Palmer, and a report will be made tomorrow or Tuesday which, it is said, will recommend drastic action against "syndicators" and "hoarders," as well as an announcement concerning a wheat policy which it is felt will bring about quick results.

Charges that profiteering and hoarding have been going on to an extent which has served to create a market built on false values have been pouring in upon officials here and have been called to the attention of the President. It is said that the President has formulated definite ideas about what ought to be done and that soon after the committee of three renders its report to him he will go before Congress and the nation with an announcement couched in no uncertain terms.

The agitation for the sale of wheat through the Grain Corporation at considerably less than the guaranteed price, in order to break the price of breadstuffs and other grains, has gained in power here and is one of the most discussed topics of the situation. While the members of the committee of three will not make a definite statement until their report is prepared and submitted to the President, there is a general belief here that such a course will receive support.

Congressman Martin Madden of Illinois announced today that he would place the question of the sale of wheat before the House this week, regardless of what recommendations may be made by the President's advisers. He said he would introduce a bill authorizing the President to sell wheat purchased by the Government at $1.50 a bushel, the difference between that price and the guaranteed price of $2.20 to be covered by the billion-dollar guarantee fund.

"The bill," he said, "will direct the President to establish regulations for the sale of wheat and governing the production of flour by the millers. It may also be necessary to regulate the baker. I do not think we can lower the cost of living very much until we take some of the inflation out of the currency."

The Federal Trade Commission, it is reported, is making a strenuous fight through Commissioner Colver, who is a member of the committee of three appointed at the conference with Attorney General Palmer, to obtain legislation for the control of packing house stocks.

Charges that hoarding has been practiced on a large scale and that in some instances speculators have permitted food to rot rather than take it to market and break the price, have been made, and these are being investigated.

It is possible that the Food Control bill can be utilized to punish such offenders, but if this does not suffice Congress may be asked to pass punitive legislation.

The House is considering a bill, submitted by Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania and approved by the Federal Trade Commission, which would restrict

NEW ISSUES SPEED WORK ON TREATY

Republicans Now Show Desire to Get Through With Peace Debate.

HOME PROBLEMS BLOCKED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—With the high cost of living problem now before Congress, involving exhaustive inquiries and debate, leaders among the opposition to the League of Nations in the Senate today expressed the feeling that the upper body ought speedily to dispose of the Versailles treaty so as to devote itself to the cost of living question and other matters of reconstruction policy.

The argument was advanced by these Senators that the country was becoming restive over the delay of the upper body in reaching a vote upon the treaty and getting down to the other problems confronting it. While the opposition Senators all want the treaty to be amply debated, they insist that there appears to be no logical reason why its consideration in the Foreign Relations Committee should not be expedited and the Senate enter into the final stage of deliberating upon ratification.

Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared a few days ago that he favored reporting the treaty out of committee within a week's time. Other members of the committee have agreed with Mr. Lodge that the expeditious handling of the document was advisable. The Foreign Relations Committee in its consideration of the treaty last week, however, failed to give any indication that its work would be completed much before the end of this month. The committee has only started upon the list of witnesses who are being called to interpret various features of the treaty.

Mr. Lansing to be Called.

Secretary Lansing is to appear before the committee some time this week and his examination is expected to occupy several days. The Secretary will be questioned as to many phases of the treaty, including the League of Nations covenant and the Shantung award to Japan. Senator Borah and others of the committee are anxious to learn from Mr. Lansing all the circumstances concerning the motives back of the disposition of the German rights on the Chinese peninsula to the Japanese Government. Mr. Lansing is to be asked, for one thing, to tell about the memorandum he, General Bliss, and Mr. White, as American delegates to the Peace Conference, filed with the conferees opposing the Shantung award.

Mr. Lansing will be asked by members of the committee as to Japan's intent regarding restoration of the Shantung Peninsula to China. Judging from the attitude of the majority of the committee, Mr. Lansing's examination will be about the most comprehensive of any of the witnesses.

Besides Mr. Lansing the committee wants to hear Thomas W. Lamont of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. who acted as financial adviser to the American mission at Paris. Senator Borah intends asking Mr. Lamont about the copy of the Peace Treaty which Mr. Davison, another Morgan partner, told the committee some time ago that Mr. Lamont had given him to bring to America. Mr. Lamont will also be questioned as to financial features of the treaty.

Early this week the committee will have Norman Davis, one of the economic advisers of the American Mission, before it. Later on other advisers will be called. To interrogate all of these witnesses will take at least two weeks of the committee's time, it is expected. After that the committee will take up the matter of reservations to the treaty. As it looks now, there will be two dozen

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 3.—Liverpool is in the grip of hooliganism. For two nights the city has been given over to riot and pillage. Scores of shops have been smashed and rifled, and at one place along the lines of docks gates were broken open and the mob stormed a huge food warehouse, carrying off stocks of bacon, ham, lard, sugar, rice, and tinned stuffs.

A large number of troops have been drafted into the city from adjacent military camps and warships are on their way to the Mersey.

The soldiers are quartered in the spacious St. George's Hall, and the vast plateau in front of it has been turned into a park for lorries and Red Cross cars. Drawn up by the lorries are four grim looking tanks. Soldiers with fixed bayonets and wearing steel helmets are also posted in a cordon around the plateau, and they are also mounting guard over the wreckage in the streets.

Terror came to the Merseyside during the early hours of Saturday morning when, taking advantage of the police strike, the turbulent element of cosmopolitan Liverpool, which lurks in the side streets of a well-defined area, and which is ready for riot and plunder wherever occasion permits, started the work of destruction.

Half Police Force on Strike.

Scotland Road was the scene of the early depredations of the mob. Many shops were stripped bare. The looters paid particular attention to boot shops and clothing establishments, very few of which escaped, but there were also many successful raids on jewelers' and pawnbrokers' shops. Other places were smashed out of pure devilment. Violence abated during the daylight hours and the municipal authorities went ahead with their plans for coping with mob rule.

About half the police have joined the strike. Official figures show that of the total force, 929 have refused to do duty and 961 have remained loyal. Special constables were called out and a public appeal by the Lord Mayor was responded to by 500 citizens.

When night closed down over the city every one was apprehensive of trouble. About midnight the bands of hooligans again emerged from the side streets and alleys and without hesitation embarked on an orgy of pillage and violence. They made a determined attack on the magnificent shops in London Road, one of Liverpool's finest thoroughfares. Again they concentrated on boot and clothing shops.

The soldiers marched up and down the road in columns of fours, but the mob dodged round them, scarcely heeding

Band of Irishmen Attack Police Barracks for an Hour

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A party consisting of twenty to thirty men this morning attacked the Broadford Police Barracks in East Clare, Ireland, according to a Central News dispatch from Ennis, capital of County Clare.

The dispatch adds that a brisk fire was maintained upon the barracks for more than an hour, with the police answering it. A constable named O'Sullivan was slightly wounded.

RADICALS INCITING NEGRO TO VIOLENCE

Publications Being Circulated in This City Urging Blacks to Join the I. W. W.

GOVERNMENT HAS EVIDENCE

One Writer Advises Race to Arm and Defend Their Rights with "Fire, Shot, and Shell."

The Federal Government has evidence that radical elements in this country are taking advantage of discontent among certain parts of the negro population to intensify ill feeling between the races. Within the last three days, Federal agents have reported that the I. W. W. is circularizing the negro sections of Philadelphia and this city, the circulars being worded in violent language, sometimes illustrated with cartoons of the most vicious conception. In every instance, the circular urges the negro to join the I. W. W., and in some instances to ally himself with other bodies of Bolshevist sympathies.

Virtually every I. W. W. and Left Wing Socialist paper published in this country is now taking part in this propaganda. Some of the papers are edited by negro agitators, who openly advise the negroes to arm, and to defend their rights, as one paper put it, "with fire, shot and shell."

Dr. Robert L. McElroy, Educational Director of the National Security League, made public yesterday parts of a report submitted by Dr. L. B. Moore, the Dean of Howard University in Washington, who has been investigating the negro situation, particularly in the South.

"Restlessness among the laboring classes is found generally throughout the South," says one report. "A well trained teacher in one of our larger schools in the South told me the colored people were being organized by representatives of the I. W. W. The disgruntled attitude of the returning soldier is a potential factor in the South in making for uneasiness and a large measure of discontent.

"Recently I heard from a colored man of national reputation that there were efforts on foot to have the colored people leave the South quietly, but in a constant stream, for other sections of the country. As I have talked with colored people I have found a strong desire in many places to get away. They want better school conditions for their children, better laboring conditions and living conditions. We are in danger of having a little Russia in many sections of the Southland."

One of the most important negro publications which is published in this city in its current issue comes out for the I. W. W. It advises all negroes to join because "the I. W. W. draws no race, color, sex or creed line," adding that "with the I. W. W. already numbering 800,000, to augment it with 1,500,000 or 2,000,000 negroes would make it fairly

Double Earthquake Shock Rocks Dreadnoughts of Rodman's Fleet Near Colima, Mexico

ON BOARD U. S. S. NEW MEXICO, Aug. 2, (By Wireless to Associated Press.)—Six dreadnoughts of the Pacific Fleet were shaken severely by a double earthquake shock at 4:18 o'clock this afternoon, twenty miles off the coast of the State of Colima, Mexico. None of the warships reported any damage.

The New Mexico trembled from bow to stern as if she had struck an uncharted reef, and the navigating officer sounded "Collision Quarters" on the flagship's siren. Sailors in the foretop said the basket masts of the warships swayed like poplar trees in a gale.

Officers on the quarter deck hurried to their posts and the crew and the marines took their places. Meanwhile, all watertight compartments on the New Mexico were closed, and inspection parties were sent into the holds to see if there had been any damage to the hull.

Admiral Hugh Rodman, commanding the fleet, quickly recognised the cause of the disturbance. "It's an earthquake," he said. "We are right off the coast of Colima, where there are many earthquakes."

Then, turning to Commander Brainard, he ordered:

"Signal all ships in the fleet and see if they felt any excessive vibration."

Wireless telephone messages were received soon from the five other dreadnoughts reporting that they felt the shocks. The Mississippi, which was further off shore, reported heavy vibrations.

"Just what I thought—an earthquake," Admiral Rodman repeated.

When the first tremor was felt those below hurried on the flagship's deck. The faces of some of the recruits showed alarm as the men stood at quarters awaiting orders, while the flagship rolled and pitched in the heavy ground swells that followed the shocks.

Admiral Rodman kept the crew at quarters for fifteen minutes, and then ordered the "Secure Signal" to be sounded. He took the whole incident as if it were a matter of routine, giving his orders quietly on the quarter deck, while officers and men were running to their posts in the tense excitement of the first few moments.

One of the officers reported that he believed the earthquake came from an old crater in the Sierra Mountains, which fringe the coast line near here and drop off into the sea.

NEWBURGER TO RUN AS AN INDEPENDENT, DEFYING TAMMANY

Justice Announces Decision to Make Contest, but Will Not Enter Democratic Primary.

ACCEPTS REPUBLICAN CALL

Will Also Appear on the Ticket as Designee of New York Bar Associations.

WIGWAM LEADERS ALARMED

Better Elements in the Organization May Give Support—Fight On in Richmond.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger, to whom a renomination was refused by the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall, announced yesterday that he would accept the designation of the Republican Party and would also run on an independent ticket, but that he would not become a candidate in the Democratic primaries. The Republican County Committee of New York designated Justice Newburger as its candidate last month, expecting that the Democrats would also designate him. Instead Leader Charles F. Murphy selected Irwin Untermyer, son of Samuel Untermyer.

Justice Newburger is on a vacation at Bluff Point, N. Y., This is his announcement:

"After twenty-nine years of service on the bench Tammany Hall refused to designate me as a candidate for re-election, though the Republican Party had previously thereto designated me. Some statements have appeared in the press with regard to my age and health that require correction. It has been stated that I am 68 years of age and therefore would be entitled to serve only two years. This is an error. I was born in 1853. So far as my health is concerned, I am thankful to the Almighty that I have enjoyed as a rule good health, as is evidenced by the fact that during my twenty-nine years of service I have not been absent from duty twenty-nine days when the courts were in session. I am now in excellent health.

"What prompted my rejection is beyond my conception, except the statement made that I have been on the bench long enough and must give way to others. It ill becomes me to speak of the character of my work. The resolutions of the Bar Association of New York, the New York County Lawyers' Association, the Bar Association of the Bronx, and the Association of Women Lawyers approving my services speak for themselves. It has hitherto been the custom to reward judicial candidates for efficient and meritorious services. Both political parties have adopted the principal that, so far as the judiciary is concerned, independence, integrity, efficiency, and knowledge of the law should alone be recognized. All else has no place in the administration of justice and the law.

Tammany Precedents.

"This principle has been applied in various instances, regardless of the age of the candidate, even by Tammany Hall. Among instances that I recall are Justice Gildersleeve, who was renominated at the age of 65; Chief Justice Bartlett of the Court of Appeals, at the age of 68, and Justice Finch of the Court of Appeals, at the age of 68. What prompted those in control of Tammany Hall to discard this custom at this time? I am at a loss to answer. The situation presented is a serious one. A vital principle is involved.

"My own personal interests cut no figure in this contest. I owe it to the various Bar Associations, to the many citizens who have urged me to stand for a principle, to become a candidate for re-election. I accept the designation of the Republican Party and am willing to run on an independent ticket and accept the support of other organizations that may support me in this contest. I decline, however, to become a candidate in the coming Democratic primary election."

Justice Newburger did not appear to be worrying in the slightest over the fact that Tammany refused to designate him. He and his sister are guests at the Hotel Chamberlain for the fourth consecutive season and he laughingly said the climate of Northern New York was putting him into fine shape for the fight he expected to give Tammany. He said he believed the voters of New York would be behind him in his contest.

With Justice Newburger's announcement politicians took an added interest in the situation yesterday. Tammany leaders who approved Charles F. Murphy's choice are said to have already regretted their action, and expect to face a bitter fight in November. A number of the more conservative members of Tammany tried to induce Mur-

Earl of Lytton Discussed for British Envoy Here

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Lord Lytton is discussed by the Sunday newspapers as a candidate who is now being considered for the post of British Ambassador to the United States. James W. Lowther, Speaker of the House of Commons, also is mentioned again as the probable successor of the Earl of Reading. Lord Lytton is considered one of the ablest of the younger peers.

The Earl of Lytton is 43 years old and was born in Simla, British India. He has held the posts of Civil Lord of the Admiralty and Additional Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty. He succeeded to the Earldom in 1891. The Earl is married and has two sons and two daughters. He is fond of shooting and fishing and also of skating and skiing. He is a grandson of Bulwer Lytton, the novelist.

GANG FEUD MURDER IN CROWD AT CONEY

One Man Shot Dead and His Companion Wounded Three Times in Broad Day.

SLAYER ESCAPES ON TRAIN

Killing Follows Night in an East Side Wine Cellar and Early Taxicab Trip.

While the police of the city were busy yesterday on the killing of two men last week as a result of a gang fight, another murder with all the ear marks of a gang feud took place at Coney Island. Joseph Cohen, a Manhattan straw hat manufacturer, living at Rockaway Park, was shot dead and his companion, Harry Korman, a furrier, of 19 Clinton Street, Manhattan, was shot three times as they were walking along West Twenty-second Street, between Surf and Railroad Avenues.

The assassin got away, but the police sent out a general alarm for him last night. There was so much resemblance between yesterday's shooting and the killing of "Rubber" Shaw, in Hoboken, last Thursday night, when he and George Lewis were walking along a Hoboken street, as well as the killing of "Tanner" Smith in the Marginal Club in Eighth Avenue, Manhattan, a week ago last Saturday night, that the police immediately connected up the three affairs. Later investigation convinced the authorities, however, that the Coney Island affair had no relation to the other gang killings.

Cohen, who has a place of business at 707 Broadway, New York, was walking along West Twenty-second Street at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Korman and Matt Barron, a partner of the latter, when some one in the crowd drew a revolver and began shooting. One bullet went through Cohen's lung and he dropped dead. Korman was shot in the leg and twice in the body and is in the Coney Island Hospital in a serious condition. Barron disappeared after the shooting and the police were unable to find him. He is said to live near Stanton and Suffolk Streets, Manhattan. Both men were shot from behind and in the excitement that followed a man who was supposed to have done the shooting was seen to board a Manhattan bound train.

The police are also looking for a mysterious woman who was with Korman and Barron earlier in the day, and a taxicab driver who drove them to Coney Island after being hired at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at Eldridge and Houston Streets, New York. Detectives questioned Korman at the hospital and he said the shooting was the outcome of a row which had started earlier in the day in a restaurant at Coney Island.

Had Been Out All Night.

Korman said that he, Barron, a girl said to be a cabaret singer, and a musician who was known to him only as "Max" had met in a wine cellar at Eldridge and Houston Streets, Manhattan, on Saturday night and early Sunday morning all had started for Coney Island in a taxicab.

Arriving at the Island the party went to a restaurant where a quarrel developed. Suddenly, Korman said, a stranger in the place seized a large carving knife from a table and drove all of them out of the restaurant. The girl and Max the musician, Korman said, returned to New York in a touring car, while he and Barron telephoned to Cohen, who lives at 28 North Beach Street, Rockaway Park, to meet them at Coney Island. Cohen, he said, showed up at noon, and the three then went looking along West Twenty-second Street for the man who had driven them from the restaurant with the knife. While strolling along the street, he said, he heard revolver shots, and before he could look around was struck in the leg and the body.

BOMB ATTACK IN DARKNESS

Automobile Drives Up to Lawler House, Drops Explosive and Escapes

HOUSE BURSTS INTO FLAMES

Mr. Lawler Saves His Wife at Great Risk—Child Rescued by Neighbors.

SEE REVENGE AS MOTIVE

Dynamiters, Convicted by Mr. Lawler Several Years Ago, Believed to Have Set Bombs.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 3.—The home of Oscar Lawler, former Assistant United States Attorney General, and former United States District Attorney for Southern California, was destroyed in revenge early this morning by two bombs. Mr. Lawler, and his wife and their five-year-old son were seriously burned in the fire which followed. Mr. Lawler may not recover.

The person or persons who committed the crime are believed to have driven up in front of the house in an automobile, placed the bombs, and fled. The explosion followed immediately.

The house burst into flames with Mr. Lawler, his wife and one child trapped within. William Lacy, an iron master, and Ed Pulford, who were driving past the house, seized a ladder and rescued Oscar Lawler, Jr., 5 years old.

Mr. Lawler dragged his wife to a window and in the midst of flames lowered her from an upper story to an awning over a window on the ground floor after a vain attempt to save his young son, and, badly burned, he himself leaped to the ground.

Revenge on the part of an ex-convict, a Red terrorist sent to the penitentiary in connection with industrial warfare in the Middle West some years ago, is believed to be the motive for the explosion.

The name of this ex-convict has been supplied to the police and a nation-wide search by State, county, city, and Federal officers is in progress in the hope of unearthing every clew that may give further information on this phase of the crime.

In less than three hours after the two explosions, United States Attorney J. Robert O'Connor, District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine, Agent of the Department of Justice Keep, and Chief of Police George K. Home and their deputies started the investigation that uncovered the first real clues.

Find Fragments of Bombs.

The most important of these was the discovery of the fragments of the bombs used, together with the remnants of the two gasoline tanks which furnished the uncontrollable flames. These vital bits of evidence were found after every detective in the city had been detailed by Chief Home to the task of searching the vicinity of the grounds and furnished the authorities with the first definite information about the nature of the infernal machines used.

The bombs, according to the experts that made the primary investigation, were charged with nitroglycerine. They were made of pieces of four-inch steel pipe, six inches long, threaded on both ends, standard thread, with a pipe cap screwed on at each end. The explosive was fired by detonating caps sunk into the caps.

The bombs were placed directly under the sleeping porch where Mr. and Mrs. Lawler were sleeping. The force of the detonation did not do much damage to the house, but the gasoline hurled into every part of the house turned the entire structure into an inferno in less than two minutes.

Aside from establishing the probable motive and the exact type of the bombs used, the first day's investigation brought out these points:

1. That two, or probably three, men were used in the plot.

2. That the time of the explosion was a few minutes after 2:30 in the morning.

3. That the assassin or group of terrorists used an automobile in their escape from the vicinity, and that the crime was planned several days ago, and probably postponed for a better opportunity to carry out the destruction.

Witnesses of the explosion and those who reported seeing and hearing the man or men just before and after the explosions differ in many respects, and the police announce that many of the points at the present time believed to have a bearing on the case may have to be dismissed later on.

The stories of the neighbors, who rushed to the rescue work and succeeded in saving the lives of Oscar Lawler, Jr., 5 years old, and his nurse, Miss Bessie Mills, after Mr. and Mrs. Lawler were trapped in the bedroom on the second floor, furnished a dramatic account of the sudden tragedy.

The first explosion came a minute or two after 2:30 A. M. It was followed in less than a minute, according to the latest reports, by another one, and then the burst of flames. Mr. and Mrs. Lawler were on the sleeping porch directly over the pergola entrance, where the bombs were placed. The youngest child, Oscar, Jr., and his nurse were asleep on the back porch on the second floor.

Attempt to Save Child.

The first thought of the mother and father, who were thrown from their beds by the first explosion, was the safety of the little boy. As they swung open the door leading into the hall toward the back porch, the flames which had been thrown to the second floor swept into the room and drove both victims back into the room. The mother, after twice attempting to reach her son, fainted from the heat and smoke.

As her limp body fell to the floor, Lawler, according to his story to the surgeons at the receiving hospital, seized her and rushed toward his only means for escape, the three windows fronting New Hampshire Avenue. It was a twenty-foot drop.

Reaching far out from the window and with the flames striking his body from beneath, Lawler managed to lower his wife over the window until it was but a short drop to the awning below. He dropped her to the awning, and from there she rolled to the ground, ten feet further.

The father dashed back into the room. It was less than a minute before he again appeared in the front window. Driven by the scorching flames, which had burned great patches in his shoulders, head, and arms, Lawler dove out of the window head first. How he escaped a fractured skull is a miracle to the physicians. He was picked up and carried to an ambulance, calling for his children.

"I tried to save my baby. I tried to reach him, but the fire was too hot and the roof was falling in," he said later while the police ambulance was rushing him to the hospital.

"Oh God, oh God, how could any man do a thing like that," he moaned.

At first it was feared that Charles Lawler, 17 years old, and Jane, 15 years old, were in the house when the explosion occurred, and many rushed madly around the burning structure in an effort to do something to help them.

Suddenly there was a commotion at the door. A tall man carrying a curly-headed boy of 5 snugly in his arms, pushed his way into the house and cried: "Oscar, Oscar, the boy is safe."

The father caught sight of the child. His burned arms shot upward. He stood and trembled.

"Oh, thank God. Now I can die," was all that he could say, and then he collapsed.

The rescue of the child and his nurse was fully as dramatic as the futile attempt on the part of the parents to reach them through the burning building.

After the first explosion William Lacy of 3,200 Wilshire Boulevard rushed toward the burning building. Another man, whose name was reported to the police as E. Pulford, stopped the automobile he was driving and also rushed into the yard. He and Mr. Lacy made their way toward the rear of the house, where the nurse and the child, trapped on the second story, were calling for help.

Lacy and Pulford and George Knight of the Nick Harris detectives found a ladder and raised it against the burning building. They climbed up and tore the wire screen, lifting the two figures through the small opening.

See Revenge As Motive For Crime.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3. (Associated Press.)—Revenge for the part he played in the prosecution of a group of dynamiters in the Middle West several years ago was assigned by the police here as the probable motive for an attempt on the life of Oscar Lawler, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, today.

City, State, and Federal authorities held a conference tonight and perfected plans for a systematic search which they hope will lead to arrests. It was disclosed that there were three explosions. The contents of the two cans of liquid are believed to have exploded after the bomb.

The Lawler home was a large brick and frame structure in the fashionable Wilshire district in the west part of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawler were sleeping on a porch in the south side of the house, opening from a second floor room and screened from the street by an angle of the building. Miss Bessie Mills, a nurse, and Oscar Lawler, Jr., were sleeping on a porch at the rear, or east end, of the house.

When the explosion came a sheet of flame rushed up the side of the house directly below the porch occupied by the Lawlers and cut off escape toward the outside. Mr. Lawler and his wife went into the house and tried to make their way to their son. They were cut off by smoke and flame. Mrs. Lawler fainted. Mr. Lawler carried her through flames to the front of the house and dropped her to an awning over the front window, whence she rolled to the ground. He then leaped after her. The young son and the nurse were rescued by neighbors. Another son and daughter were away from home.

Physicians attending Mr. Lawler and his wife announced tonight his chances for recovery were about even. Mrs. Lawler, they said, would recover.

Two other Lawler children, Charles and Jane, were visiting at the ranch of Dan Murphy, the oil producer, at Pebbly Beach.

Oscar Lawler, who was born at Marshalltown, Iowa, in 1875, was admitted to the practice of law in California in 1896, and became a member of the law firm of Lawler, Allen & Van Dyke in Los Angeles. He served as United States Attorney in the Southern District of California from 1905 to 1907, succeeding his close friend and associate Frank Flint, who was elected to the United States Senate.

On May 1, 1909 he was appointed First Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and served two years, when he resigned and returned to the practise of law in California. He served as Major and Judge Advocate General of the National Guard of California. He is noted in California as an orator.

TELL OF ABUSE IN MEXICO.

Americans Imprisoned, Land Confiscated—Woman Starved to Death

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—A story of cruelty to Americans in Mexico, involving the death from starvation of an aged American woman, reached Washington today through unofficial channels. The cruelties, including an attack by bandits some of whom are alleged to have been Carranzistas, imprisonment, indignities, and later confiscation of property, were perpetrated, it is said, upon Dr. and Mrs. Charles T. Sturgis of Washington, and the latter's mother, Mrs. W. H. Keenright, also of Washington. Mrs. Keenright died of starvation while held a prisoner by the bandits.

Dr. Sturgis, an American dentist and owner of a coffee plantation in Mexico, according to information received here, went to Mexico twenty years ago. His wife and her mother joined him later. In 1918, it is said, their plantation was raided by Carranzistas and later in the same year by bandits headed by General Rafael Cally Mayor, a friend of the rebel leader Zapata. General Mayor took the three Americans prisoner, it is said, and holding Dr. Sturgis and Mrs. Keenright as hostages, sent Mrs. Sturgis to Mexico City with messages to a Zapatista agent. While being held prisoner, Mrs. Sturgis said, her mother died from starvation.

Not until February, according to the story reaching Washington, were Dr. Sturgis and his wife released. They returned to their plantation, although the dentist was partially paralyzed owing to the privations they had undergone, and later the American Consul at Salina Cruz furnished them with funds to return to the United States. They arrived several days ago at New Orleans and are en route to St. Louis.

The Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, after investigating the story, most of the details of which were furnished by Mrs. Sturgis, announced tonight that the matter would be called to the attention of the State Department, and it was said that Dr. Sturgis and his wife would be invited to appear before the House Committee investigating Mexican relations.

CAUGHT IN BEACH MACHINE.

Rockaway Firemen Destroy Witching Waves in Rescuing Boy.

Four thousand people at Rockaway Beach saw Hook and Ladder Company 267 tear the machinery of a witching waves machine to pieces yesterday afternoon to rescue Tony Embriciati, 16 years old, of 15 Seaside Avenue, Rockaway Beach, from under the steel waves. While he was being rescued, the Rev. Father Brady, a Catholic priest, crawled under the waves and administered the last rites of the church, and Dr. Wagner of the Rockaway Beach Hospital followed him and administered morphine to deaden the pain of the youth.

The boy in some manner unexplained crawled under the waves and was caught in what is known as the left arm rocker. This carried his body up against the bottom of the steel waves and clogged the machinery, which stopped and held him. It was some time before his cries could be heard and then the firemen were called. Captain Henry Misfeldt tried to pry him loose and tried to chop the machinery to pieces, but it resisted all efforts until an acetylene burner was secured. The machinery was then cut apart and the boy released. Hospital authorities say he is fatally injured.

GERMANS DISPUTE GOMPERS'S PLEA

REFUSE TO CAST VOTES

Gompers Urges Further Change of Seaman's Act to Give Sailors the Right to Quit.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor and head of the American delegation to the International Trade Union Federation, in session here, pleaded for greater rights for labor today. His address to the congress followed the report of a committee which said that it could not accept the charter given labor in the Peace Treaty as a full expression of the workers' demands.

Mr. Gompers declared that he always had worked for improvement of conditions and demanded that labor should not be regarded as an article of commerce. He urged also that a seaman's act be enacted to permit sailors to leave ships when they were safely in harbor. He pleaded for the equality of women and men.

German delegates disputed Mr. Gompers's argument, which, they said, made it appear that the European labor unions were too conservative. They demanded that the workers strive for a realization of the Berne Conference's program, including the regulation of children's education, women's labor, shorter hours, Sunday rest, and the supervision of home industries. This position was supported by Leon Jouhaux, the French delegate, who declared the workers' task should be to complete labor's charter as set forth in the Peace Treaty.

The Dutch delegates, Oudegeest and Fimmen, were unanimously elected today joint Secretary-Treasurer of the newly-formed Internationale. German and Austrian delegates refrained from voting. Carl Rudolph Legien, President of the German Federation of Trade Unions, said the German and Austrian delegates did not vote as a matter of principle.

W. A. Appleton, the new President of the organization, told correspondents here that "It was unfortunate that the Germans should have chosen to question the declaration of Herr Sassenbach on Germany's war responsibility which, when accepted by Herr Legien and Herr Huber, had broken down many barriers and had opened the way to reconciliation. Partial repudiation of this statement immediately revived suspicion and fears that Germany was insincere. I think if the repudiation had been withheld that the election would have proceeded without serious difficulty. I regard the absence of Herr Legien from the bureau with grave concern because he is one of the ablest trade union officials in Europe."

SEEK AID OF PRESIDENT.

Letter Carriers' Association Adopts Resolution Asking Salary Increase.

At a mass meeting of the New York Letter Carriers' Association, held yesterday at Lenox Avenue and 126th Street, resolutions were adopted, seeking to take up directly with President Wilson the increase in wages now sought by them.

The resolutions adopted were:

"Whereas, the recent increase on salaries allowed by Congress to letter carriers, being only a 25 per cent. advance on the salaries in effect since 1907, is found to be absolutely inadequate to meet the constantly advancing costs of all commodities; and

"Whereas, under the laws as they now exist no permanent change in our present salaries can be made effective before July 1, 1920; and

"Whereas, the Postmaster General does not appear to be favorable to such emergency legislation as has already been suggested to remedy this evil; and

"Whereas, some immediate action by Congress is necessary in order to prevent the complete demoralization of the service.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the New York Letter Carriers' Association in meeting assembled on Sunday, Aug. 3, 1919, do hereby inform our national officers that it is the sense of this body that they proceed by all available means to have this matter presented directly to President Wilson, to the end that prompt action may be taken by Congress on this question, and

"Be it further resolved, that this association inform our national officers that we believe a temporary increase of not less than 25 per cent. should be granted to all grades of letter carriers in addition to the salaries they have been receiving since July 1, 1919, and a proportionate increase in the compensation of substitute letter carriers."

ACCUSES GEN. WOOD OF BEING REACTIONARY

Has "Slipped Backward" in Attitude Toward Military Justice, Ansell Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Samuel T. Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General of the army, tonight made public a letter he has written to Major Gen. Leonard Wood, in which he charged that in a magazine article on military justice he has placed himself "squarely on the side of reaction."

Mr. Ansell asserts in his letter that the latter, with credit to himself and with benefit to the service and the country, has in "several instances declined to be governed by those tenets of the military profession as practiced with us which tend to intellectual apathy and personal sycophancy," but that, in his opinion, General Wood has been "slipping backward" in his attitude toward the question of military justice.

Mr. Ansell predicts that the existing system of military justice cannot last, asserts that it will be reformed "in the face of the efforts of narrow professionalists to hinder and prevent it," and regrets to find General Wood "in such company, voicing their arguments."

Mr. Ansell's letter to General Wood says, in part:

"A radical change must come, either now, when we can make it calmly and intelligently and while there is yet interest in the subject, or at some less advantageous future moment, perhaps under the exigency of war and the imminence of defeat. Never again can or will we fight a great war with an army of American citizens subjected to a system of discipline that was designed for the Government of the professional military serfs of another age and utterly unsuited to the armies of citizens called to the national defense. It will come, as such changes have ever come, in the face of the efforts of narrow professionalists to hinder and prevent it.

"I regret to find you in such company, voicing their arguments. These narrow professionalists have ever been with us in the army. In the name of military necessity they excuse every tyranny, and in the name of discipline justify the harshest brutality and injustice. It was their kind who, in the name of discipline, resisted the abolishment in the army, even our own army, of the torture, the thong and gag, the lash, and the branding iron.

"Human wisdom has at last reached the point where it perceives that it is better to trust to a government by ordinary human agencies guided and restricted by law than to the hope of a despotism, even though it be an enlightened and beneficent despotism."

3,472,890 PERSONS PAID 1917 INCOME TAX

Total Was $675,249,450, an Average of $368.56 Per Individual.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Income tax returns were filed by 3,472,890 persons, about 3 per cent. of the population, for the calendar year 1917, according to final reports just completed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. They showed total net income of $13,652,383,207.

The increase over 1916, before the law was expanded to meet war expenses, was 3,035,854 returns and $7,353,805,587 in net income, the former being so much greater comparatively because the extension of the law took in small incomes previously exempt.

Taxes paid totaled $675,249,450, an average of $368.56 per individual. Returns were made on 1,640,758 incomes ranging from $1,000 to $2,000, and ranged in the hundreds of thousands up to $25,000. There were 30,391 returns on incomes between $25,000 and $50,000, 12,439 returns from $50,000 to $100,000, 3,302 from $100,000 to $150,000, 2,347 from $150,000 to $300,000, 559 from $300,000 to $500,000, 315 from $500,000 to $1,000,000, and 141 over that figure.

A notable feature of the report was the showing that while there were 1,296 incomes over $300,000 in 1916, the number was reduced to 1,015 in 1917. The million dollar incomes decreased from 206 to 141, and the decrease in the amount reported by persons in that class was $157,437,730. The million dollar men, however, paid more taxes than any other class, contributing $109,424,999 to the Government out of $306,835,914 in income reported. Persons with incomes of $2,000 to $3,000 paid the smallest amount of taxes, $9,097,378 on returns of $2,461,137,000.

Residents of New York made more returns and reported more income than any other State, Pennsylvania and Illinois ranking second and third. Massachusetts ranked fourth in income reported, but Ohio came fourth in the number of taxable incomes.

CONTINUE ARMY MEAT SALE.

Stock of Ham Will Replace Newark's Dwindling Bacon Supply.

The last of the 5,000 pounds of bacon Mayor Gillen bought from the army stores will be placed on sale today in the city firehouses. As soon as this is disposed of the first of the fifteen tons of sugar-cured hams obtained by the Mayor from the surplus stock of the army will be sold to the public at 32 cents a pound, 18 to 23 cents a pound less than retail market prices.

Beginning Wednesday canned vegetables will be placed on sale. Boys from the Newark Parental Home, under the direction of Superintendent Heller, weighed and labelled the first lot of hams at the central distributing station Saturday. It is planned to cut some of the larger hams in half so that the cost will not be beyond the reach of the poor.

CABINET COMMITTEE AIMS AT PROFITEERS

packers handling food staples to a four months' supply at any given time. The Kelly bill is intended to keep eggs, butter, canned goods, smoked and frozen meats, and grocery staples flowing through the packing houses and restore the operation of supply and demand. Any person could go to a United States District Attorney with evidence of food hoarding beyond the four months' maximum and the latter would be required to order an investigation. If supplies were found in excess of the allotted amount the Federal courts would be empowered immediately to order the surplus sold.

Any illegal surplus would be sold by the Department of Agriculture direct to the consumer through the parcel post.

While Congress is striving to devise effective means for reducing the cost of living, it is probable that no definite action will be taken until President Wilson makes his recommendations. He is waiting for the report of the Palmer Cabinet Committee which will probably be submitted to him tomorrow or at the meeting on Tuesday.

A proposal which, it is said, the Cabinet committee has under consideration is the revival of the Food Administration, but as this is certain to provoke strong opposition in Congress the suggestion may not meet with Administration approval. Another proposal to be made is for legislation compelling the stamping of product costs on necessities so as to check profiteering by dealers if any is attempted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—While all Government departments are working toward the end of alleviating unrest by restoring a normal level of prices, interest centres in the meeting Tuesday of the conference called by Attorney General Palmer to consider the best method of procedure, especially with respect to profiteering.

The committee appointed by the conference, Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration, Assistant Secretary Leffingwell of the Treasury, and Chairman Colver of the Federal Trade Commission, have been engaged in an exchange of memoranda which will be put before the conference for recommendation to President Wilson, who is following all steps closely.

The presence of Julius Barnes, director of the United States Grain Corporation, at the meeting Tuesday will give expert counsel to the Cabinet members and other officials on the grain situation. Consideration of a plan to sell wheat in a free market, the Government absorbing the difference between the market price and the guaranteed price, is believed certain.

There are indications that the Attorney General is paying especial attention to cases of profiteering. He has at his disposal a great volume of information collected by the Federal Trade Commission, showing production costs in scores of industries. While there is no law by which profiteering may be punished directly, Mr. Palmer has said that there is a great deal of "good law" on the statute books and it is believed he will find a way to punish any cases where there are evidences of extortion.

The average citizen is the man in whose behalf the profiteering investigation will be pushed, despite the fact that it was the new demands of the railroad labor unions which precipitated it. Several officials have expressed sympathy with the salaried man who lacks the backing of a powerful organization.

The cost of living situation, it was learned today, will be one of the chief topics to be discussed at Tuesday's Cabinet meeting.

CONSUMERS FORCE PARIS PRICES DOWN

Shop Dealers Heed Procession of Investigators Who Form Inspection League.

PARIS, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—The inhabitants of the Eighteenth Ward, which includes the Montmartre district, met this morning in the local City Hall to form a "consumers' league." The officers elected decided that at the next meeting there should be appointed "food control sections," which will inspect markets, shops and push-carts, to see that prices have not varied excessively and that they are proportionate to the wholesale prices. A special point made at the meeting was that methods of violence should not be made a part of the movement.

At the end of the meeting it was proposed to visit the selling districts, and a procession was formed. Sellers of goods were visited by the crowd from 10 o'clock until midday and questioned as to prices, such as why tomatoes should vary from 35, 55, 60 and 80 centimes a pound; why carrots were 40 centimes a bundle on some carts and 70 and 80 centimes on others, and similar inconsistencies.

The news of the movement spread quickly and resulted in the scaling down of prices, the sellers changing tickets on their goods before the arrival of the investigators.

GOVERNOR CALLS FOOD CONFERENCE

Summons Mayors to Devise Plan for Retailing Surplus Army Stores.

ALBANY, Aug. 3.—Mayors of sixteen cities of the State have been requested by Governor Smith to meet with him Wednesday noon to devise plans under which the people may take advantage of the large surplus supply of foods which the Government has on hand in the various warehouses of the State, it was announced at the Executive Chamber tonight.

The Mayors invited include those of New York, Yonkers, Poughkeepsie, Newburg, Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Watertown, Plattsburg, Binghamton, Elmira, and Jamestown.

It is the idea of the Governor to devise a plan by which these products may be put into the hands of the public at reduced prices. The plan decided on will be communicated to all municipalities throughout the State so that each may take advantage of it.

SAY 6 MILLION ARE UNDERFED.

Children Suffering from Malnutrition, Says Dept. of Labor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—From 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 American children are not getting enough to eat because their parents are unable on their present incomes to buy sufficient food, said a statement issued today by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor. These are the children, the statement said, who are often pronounced by parents and teachers "delicate," "ailing," "lazy," or just "plain ornery," although their true affliction is malnutrition.

The number of school children in the United States who are not getting sufficient food was placed at from 15 to 20 per cent., while this was said to be true of one-fifth of the children attending school in New York City.

SONGS UPSET MONTCLAIR.

"Highbrows" Object to "Curl and Girl" Kind at Community Sing.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 3.—The songs chosen at the nightly "community singing" in Montclair's only theatre recently have been of such a frivolously topical character that "highbrow" patrons have objected. As one man told the management, the "curl and girl" songs seemed too silly for grown persons to sing in public assemblage.

"An adult may escape looking like a fool singing them," he said, "but he cannot help feeling like one." The management, in answer to protests, said that a short time ago the audience wanted war songs, but more recently has expressed a preference for songs of lighter vein.

PREDICTS COMPLETE RAILROAD TIEUP

Chicago Leader Says Strike Movement Has Overwhelmed International Officers

AND IS SPREADING RAPIDLY

Executive Committee in Washington Superseded by the Entire Grievance Committee.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A complete tieup of the railroads of the country is very probable in the opinion of M. L. Hawver, President of the Chicago District Council of the Federated Railway Shopmen's Union, which called a strike of shop crafts Friday. He returned from Washington today and declared the strike was spreading rapidly and that the unrest among railway workers was so general that the movement had overwhelmed the international officers of the various unions involved.

Advices today from Cleveland were that the Executive Board of the American Federation of Railway Workers, with a membership of 26,000, chiefly unskilled labor in Cleveland and the East, had decided to strike tomorrow, according to Mr. Hawver.

The Maintenance of Way Men's Union also is preparing to strike, it was said.

With more than 250,000 shopmen on strike and the number increasing, both President Hawver and Secretary John D. Saunders declared railroad schedules and industry would be seriously crippled within a day or two. Already steel mills and other industries at Gary and other Northern Indiana points and in Chicago have begun to feel the effects of the strike, according to union leaders, and when the strike is more complete factories and mills virtually will be forced to close down for lack of ore, coal and other essentials.

"The seriousness of the situation seems to be better understood in the East than out here," said Mr. Hauver. "In Washington the Executive Committee has been repudiated and the entire Grievance Committee of seventy-eight members, representing all railway workers, has been negotiating with the Railroad Administration. Director General Hines, while stating that he is favorable toward the workers, has said that there are only two ways to meet our demands—a Congressional appropriation or increased freight rates."

SCRANTON, Penn., Aug. 3.—A meeting of representatives of the Federated Employes of the entire Delaware, Lackawanna & Western system from Buffalo, N. Y., to Hoboken, N. J., has been called for this city tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Demands for an increase in wages will be framed at the meeting.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Aug. 3.—As a result of meetings held here the last several days, organized local railroad shopmen have expressed themselves as dissatisfied with conditions here, according to a statement by N. M. Jones, President of the Pennsylvania System Federation 90. They declare they will "obey orders" and abide by the decision of the national officers of their union, the President added.

5,000 Visit Roosevelt Grave.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 3.—All today, crowds were about the grave of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. Probably 5,000 people visited the cemetery and scores left flowers on the mound. Just before dusk five Italians knelt on the ground, and when they got up each dug up several handfuls of dirt. The guard asked them what they were doing. One said they intended to sail for Italy this week and wanted to give the dirt to their fellow countrymen.

CHANGE UPTON FETE PLANS.

Training Camp Commission to Finance Society Circus at Camp.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The Camp Upton Society Circus, of which several New York millionaires are to be honorary box holders, will be held on Aug. 8, 9, and 10.

Subscriptions which were made to the affair, $12,000 in all, will be returned this week, because the plans have been changed to make the entertainment free under the management of the Commission on Training Camp Activities. The honorary box holders, however, will receive boxes as originally intended, and be thanked for their willingness to contribute. The circus is to provide a novel entertainment for men of the post and to stimulate recruiting. A part of the show is already here. No charge will be made to men in uniform.

Quogue to Have Minstrel and Dance

An entertainment will be held on Aug. 8 and 9 at the Quogue Field Club at Quogue, L. I.. It will be divided into two parts, the first is to be a Roman pageant followed by interpretive dances of the different nations at the time of the Roman Empire. The second part is to be a minstrel show, followed by modern dances. The pageant will include an emperor and empress, with slaves, flower girls, soldiers, garbed as in that period. The dances will include an Egyptian dance with a Cleopatra, an Oriental dance and these will be followed in turn by Hungarian, Garland, Chinese, Lorraine, flower and other dances. The minstrel show with fourteen or more performers will close the entertainment.

HOOLIGANS PILLAGE IN LIVERPOOL RIOTS

them. Under the eyes of the troops they scrambled through shattered windows and scurried back to their homes with boxes of boots and suits of clothes, and then came back for more. They ransacked general drapery and outfitting stores, carrying off women's costumes and furs.

Soldiers and Police Stoned.

Those in charge of the military were loath to give orders to fire on the crowd, and failing drastic measures there was little the troops could do. Eventually they fired a volley over the heads of the mob, but it had comparatively little effect. The loyal police, with greater experience in mob warfare, hit upon the idea of breaking up their forces into little parties which guarded the entrances to side streets. This was more effective, but the rioting and looting still went on.

Showers of bricks and stones fell upon soldiers and police alike, and many minor injuries were inflicted. The police charged with their batons, and many of the hooligans retired with broken heads. The law-abiding citizens who were present begged to be allowed to take part against the rioters, and some Canadian soldiers expressed a burning desire to take a hand.

"Give me a rifle and I'll clear the street myself," said one who had been serving since the outbreak of the war.

In the meanwhile Scotland Road was the scene of renewed disorder of the most violent type. More shops were raided and smashed, clothing and boot shops were rifled, grocery establishments were stripped, and even sweet shops were broken open and pillaged. The mob shattered the windows of a music shop, dragged out pianos, and played them in the street.

A Magistrate read the riot act and the police and the rioters came into violent conflict. The soldiers fired a volley into the air and with bayonets fixed charged into the mob with rifles held at high port. One man was reported to have received a flesh wound from a bayonet, but this was not confirmed. There was no bayonet charge in the true sense of the word, and although rifle butts were used to push the rioters back, they were not used as clubs. In fact, the soldiers showed the greatest restraint.

Spasmodic rioting went on until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, and dawn was flushing the sky before the terror of the streets subsided. Then, as daylight approached, the mob slunk away, rich with their plunder, to their homes in the little streets of Liverpool's recognized danger zone. Now that daylight has sent most of the rioters to their homes, children are carrying on the work of pillage. They are rooting about in the dismantled shops and carrying off anything that has been overlooked. They have been climbing through shattered windows, cutting their clothes and bodies on the jagged glass, and emerging with big parcels of sweetmeats. There has been no one on guard and they have reaped a rich harvest. They have stuffed themselves with candy and even offered it for sale in the streets.

Broach Beer Casks in Street.

Intermittent looting continued in various parts of the city throughout today. Soldiers have been called out to protect property, but in most cases the rioters offered no resistance and ran when the troops arrived. There has been a raid on a sugar factory, and there was an amazing scene in the Vauxhall Road District when a mob smashed its way into a beer bottling works in Tariff Street and looted the place.

Men, women and boys made their way into the building and emerged loaded with bottles of beer and stout. These were opened and drank in the roadway, the empty bottles being smashed on the granite sidewalks. The streets were a mass of broken glass. Other rioters came out with cases of stout and beer, which they carried to their homes. Barrels of beer were rolled out into the main thoroughfare and broached in the open, crowds gathering around them with glasses, cups, jugs and any other vessels which came to hand.

They drank and danced in the road until troops arrived and took possession of the buildings, drawing a cordon across the streets. The rioters, stimulated by liquor, gathered around, chaffing the soldiers. One old woman, in tattered garments and with iron gray curls, insisted on talking volubly to the Lieutenant in charge, and danced wildly around him. The soldiers took it all in good part, and stood ready to take action if the mood of the mob turned to violence.

One Rioter Shot.

The Lord Mayor's Secretary states that so far as the official attitude is concerned the situation remains unchanged. There is no indication of any departure from the decision not to reinstate any of the policemen on strike. The Town Hall is being guarded by soldiers.

Early this afternoon the rioters made an attack on another beer bottling store, situated in Love Lane, and owned by the Messrs. Burke. While the riot was at its height a lorry load of soldiers drove up and caught some of the rioters actually inside the premises. These they imprisoned in the store until the arrival of more soldiers, when the prisoners were put in one of the lorries and taken away.

An angry crowd followed the lorries with threatening shouts and threw stones at the soldiers. The lorries stopped and the troops fired over the heads of the mob. Then they moved on again, but the lorries, being heavily laden, their pace was slow and while they were going up an incline the foremost of the rioters caught up with one of them and made a grab at a bayonet. This was snatched from his grasp, but he still clung to the lorry.

Three more shots were fired into the air and then, as the man continued his hold, more shots rang out. He dropped from the lorry and staggered across the road, where he collapsed on the pavement. He was taken to an infirmary, where it was found that he was suffering from gunshot wounds in the thigh. His name is Thomas Howlett and he lives in Skirven Road.

Liverpool is threatened with the stoppage of her bread supply. Local bakers are insisting on their demands and today the Lord Mayor conferred with representatives of both sides. An official statement was issued later that no settlement had been reached, and the Lord Mayor advised the public to conserve its bread supply.

Englishmen Beg for Bread.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A serious development has occurred in the national strike of operative bakers. A deadlock has arisen over the refusal of the men to return to night work and an immediate settlement appears unlikely.

Although an extra supply of bread was baked to cover the August Bank Holiday, the source whence a future supply is obtainable is extremely doubtful. Already at several holiday resorts there is a shortage owing to the influx of visitors. At Blackpool on Saturday today's supplies were exhausted and hundreds of visitors walked about literally begging for bread.

The Secretary of the Amalgamated Union of Operative Bakers announced at a mass meeting in London this afternoon that the men would remain out until a national settlement was reached. He added:

London Engineers Strike.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 4.—One of the London branches of the Associated Locomotive Engineers struck at midnight, says the Herald this morning.

Six hundred of the men went out, according to the newspaper, and the services on the Southwestern Railway will be seriously affected.

The Herald, which is a labor organ, says it is probable that other branches of the engineers will join the walkout.

NEW ISSUES SPEED WORK ON TREATY

or more of them proposed by committee members. The committee will sift them down, and out of them will be framed the amendments to the resolution of ratification which the majority members will support in the report to the Senate. The minority members say they will oppose all reservations.

Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, who conferred with President Wilson at the White House last week, was one of those today who urged the advisability of speedy action by the Foreign Relations Committee. Although not a member of the committee, Mr. Watson, as an opposition leader, is in close touch with the majority members of it.

"The Foreign Relations Committee ought to take time enough to deliberate the treaty," said Mr. Watson, "but it ought to come to a report as quickly as possible. To my mind, it is desirable that the Senate lose no time in reaching a vote upon the treaty. Other matters are pressing, and the Senate must consider them. Vastly important after-war legislation demands quick action."

Mr. Watson remarked that the President seemed to agree that the reservations as to Article X., the Monroe Doctrine, withdrawal from the League after two years' notice, the United States to determine if its obligations to the League have been fulfilled, and domestic questions, like immigration and the tariff, were tenable enough as to intent, and that the President opposed them merely on the ground that they would reopen the peace treaty to interminable discussion among the foreign powers.

"The President rather favored the reservations, I gathered," said Mr. Watson. "I asked him why, then, he did not agree to having them put in the resolution of ratification, as the majority of the Senate desires. The President replied: 'Simply because it is "language."' He referred to the treaty with Spain, which was held up for a considerable time because of one word, which was the subject of great debate. If 'language' were written into the ratification resolution by the Senate, the President said, there would undoubtedly be reservations by other nations, and discussion on ours and theirs that would run for months. In the meantime the treaty would be held up."

Senator Watson asked the President why, if he did not oppose the points touched upon in the proposed reservations, he had not urged them upon the Paris conference. The President intimated, Mr. Watson said, that he had done so, so far as the situation would allow. Mr. Watson inferred that the President was not able to press the matter to the extent of having the points under controversy embraced in the treaty.

The seven "mild reservationists" will confer again at the Capitol tomorrow, when an understanding is expected to be reached on the reservation of Article X., the only one of the four upon which they have not essentially agreed. Once agreed, the group of seven will submit their program to other Senators, in the effort for compromise.

F. P. WALSH ASSAILS TREATY.

Irish Delegate to Paris Says Small Nations Were Ignored.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Frank P. Walsh, a member of the commission appointed by the Irish Race Convention to attend the Peace Conference, attacked the Peace Treaty in an address tonight in connection with the Irish Victory Fund. He said that "the Fourteen Points were neglected," and that "the Committee of Four, in secret session, devoted its time to changing frontiers and transferring peoples to new rulers."

"No small nation," he said, "ever of its own initiative obtained an oral hearing at the Peace Conference, and the only small nations accorded international recognition or new rights were formerly held in subjection by enemy belligerents and even in the instance of these nations, they were made dependent upon or vassals of one of the great powers."

A resolution was adopted asserting that "there can be no just peace until the independence of Ireland is recognized and assured."

BROTHERHOODS TO FIGHT

"That would not cure the fundamental troubles involved," he said, "and simply would add to the endless chain of wage and rate increases which eventually would result in disaster."

The Plumb Plan League appointed ex-Congressman Edward F. Keating of Colorado, as its General Manager today and perfected its plans for its assault upon Congress. There will be permanent headquarters here and proceedings in Congress will be checked up closely, and the news concerning the actions of each member sent by wire to the field agents, whose duty it will be to stir up the opposition of constituents of Senators and Representatives who are opposed to the demands of the labor leaders.

Mr. Stone will remain here until Friday and will then start on a tour of the country to help organize the movement. Before he goes, however, he will appear on Wednesday before the Joint Congressional Committee which is considering the railroad problems. He will be backed up by Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Glenn E. Plumb, who drew up the so-called Plumb Plan for Government ownership of the railroads, and possibly by A. B. Garretson, former President of the Conductors' Brotherhood, the man who held the watch on the Senate when the Adamson eight-hour law was forced through that body by threats of a nation-wide strike, in September, 1916.

Mr. Garretson has been ill and may not be able to appear on the scene until later in the fight.

The railroad leaders say they do not want to threaten a general railroad strike on this issue of Government ownership on a profit-sharing basis. That is a last resort, which they do not believe it will be necessary to use in this fight. They believe, they assert, that the merits of their proposal to settle railroad difficulties on all sides will be accepted by the people of the country, who will force Congress to pass their bill.

Plumb Takes Charge.

Glenn E. Plumb, counsel for the Plumb Plan League, which is organized to push the Government Ownership bill, has arrived in Washington.

"There are at least six million men we know of in the labor organizations, farm organizations and other associations in the United States," said Mr. Plumb tonight, "who are supporting our plan for solution of the railroad issue. I am convinced that this is a very modest estimate. In fact, there are 8,000,000 who are in effect pledged to support it.

"We have behind this movement today more votes than any political party in this country has ever cast, but in this movement we are making no attempt to form a political party. Our fight is to be absolutely non-political. It will not be necessary, in our opinion, to make any political appeal. Our proposal will appeal to the good sense of men in all parties."

Mr. Plumb was asked if there was truth in the charge made by the railroad operators that the brotherhoods were planning to hold another strike threat over the head of Congress.

"We are not thinking of a strike," he replied. "The strike is the weapon of last resort. We are confident that our plan in itself is strong enough and convincing enough without a strike. We believe that the result we seek to accomplish can be reached without a resort to force.

"This much is true, however: something must be done and done soon to better the living conditions of the railroad workers. If our plan is not accomplished then the men must have an increase in wages. We believe that our plan offers the means of solving the wage problem, and upon this we rely for success.

"Our plan is one to establish a fundamental change in a situation which has been growing from bad to worse for many years. The difficulty with all other plans is that it is their object to increase the earnings of railroad securities. None of these plans is feasible now, because the railroads have overcapitalized the future to such an extent as to make it impossible for the present to bear the burden.

"A mere increase in wages will not relieve the situation at all, since it necessarily would be followed by an increase in rates which would increase the cost of all commodities entering into the cost of living. Such a plan in this crisis is fundamentally wrong. There is no use in pursuing a course which gets the country nowhere."

Await Word from President.

What the President is going to do in the situation that has been created by the organized workers is a question which Congressional leaders are asking themselves tonight. Congress had about given up the idea of attempting to grapple with the Government ownership issue, as the President had announced that the railroads would be returned to their owners by Jan. 1 next. In view of this Congress has been preparing to pave the way, through some form of legislation, for the roads to be turned back. But now, with the railroad men demanding more wages, which would increase the Government railroad deficit, and on top of that insisting upon retention of the roads by the Government, those who have charge of railroad legislation are in a quandary and are awaiting word from the President.

The brotherhood heads, who issued the remarkable statement yesterday on behalf of the Plumb Plan bill, are still in Washington. They are continuing work on the wage scales being submitted to the Railroad Administration and purpose to keep up the fight for increased wages regardless of the Government ownership issue.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Lord Rothermere, brother of Lord Northcliffe and the proprietor of several newspapers, publishes in The Sunday Pictorial an article entitled, "Is the Coalition Government any Longer Necessary?" which is bound to create a sensation and will probably greatly stimulate the movement already afoot to revert to pre-war political methods of government. Lord Rothermere writes:

Is the present method of coalition government working satisfactorily, and is it necessary to continue the combination of parties on its present basis? The House of Commons fails to satisfy the wishes of the nation. We are confronted by the grave fact that the country is losing faith in parliamentary government. This is not due to any inherent defect in our parliamentary system; it arises very largely from defects which have been brought about by the war.

Is the belief in parliamentary institutions decaying among us? What defects in the working of our system have brought about this change of view and what are the remedies?"

I cannot profess to offer a complete answer to these questions, for the field of inquiry is too large to be covered in a brief space. I can only attempt to indicate one or two factors which have a very close bearing upon the issues raised.

"I believe that among the middle classes of all grades and among people possessed of wealth the primary cause of the loss of confidence in Parliament is the widespread alarm at our perilous financial situation. It is felt that the House of Commons automatically sanctions the spending of immense sums in all directions and makes no effective attempt to enforce departmental economy.

"The working classes distrust the present system because they are deeply disturbed at the alarming and continuous rise of the prices of all commodities. Rightly or wrongly, they feel that Parliament ought to be able to bring prices down, and they consider no adequate attempt is being made to do so.

"We have just finished an unprecedented war, which has left us with an almost unimaginable load of debt. When a private individual incurs heavy liabilities his first step, if he is a sensible man, is to cut down expenditure. As a nation we are doing precisely the reverse. We are recklessly entering upon schemes which, whatever their value may be, must enormously increase our national indebtedness.

Fears Naturalization of Mines.

"The Government has very properly laid down the principle that the nation cannot continue to subsidize the coal industry. They say that the higher cost of coal must be borne by the consumer. I shall not enter into the merits of the coal controversy. I am only concerned with the principle that, to apply the words of Sir Eric Geddes, 'The coal industry must stand upon its own feet.' The same is true of all industries.

The principle should be applied at once to transportation. Whatever the cost of passenger fares and goods freights, we have absolutely no right in time of peace to subsidize the railroads out of taxation. Those who use the railways, whether for travel or for sending merchandise, should pay for them.

Upon the question of the nationalization of the coal mines or any other key industry I will only say this, that the position of our national finances entirely precludes any further vast disbursements for purposes of nationalization. I may add that experience shows that State control is almost invariably unprofitable.

"I view with considerable apprehension the financial aspect of the great housing schemes. I am fully aware of the urgency of the housing problem, although it is difficult to understand the extreme shortage of houses when we know that the population of Great Britain, through the war losses of 900,000 men, is sensibly less than it was before the war. The question must be faced without delay, but in facing it we must also count the cost.

"Has any one ever told us what the total outlay upon houses from the public funds is likely to be? If we take the official statements of Great Britain's requirements the expenditure must be immense. Comparatively small local bodies are rejoicing in the knowledge that they will not have to contribute more than the penny rate and are contemplating the spending of sums of a quarter or even of half a million pounds. Will £500,000 defray the cost of all these housing schemes? I doubt it.

"The position is admittedly difficult, but I maintain that we have no more right to subsidize houses out of taxation than we have to subsidize mines or railways. I am well aware that the principle of subsidizing houses in a few urban areas is not new, but the gigantic schemes now under consideration entirely alter the issue. All houses built by the State should pay an economic rent from the outset.

Says Britain Faces Bankruptcy.

"There is one issue which transcends even the housing problem, and that issue is national bankruptcy, which means general ruin. Bankruptcy is not yet in sight, but unless we rigidly control expenditure it may soon be visible on the horizon. Unbridled and wanton expenditure has produced a taxation which is already excessive, and is likely to increase. I fear that before long men of quite limited incomes may be called upon to pay an income tax of 10 shillings in the pound.

"How far is Parliament responsible for the conditions I have described? I think it is demonstrable that the gravest possible blame rests upon the present House of Commons. It is true that in some respects it is extremely difficult for the House to exercise an effective control over expenditure. There is force in the argument that our present financial procedure is largely obsolete, and that changes must be made, but what makes the nation despair of the House of Commons is that it does not even cultivate a spirit of economy. It quite properly saves £1,500 a year by cutting off the Under Secretary from the Transport Ministry, and then stultifies itself by voting millions without any scrutinizing at all.

"I wonder if the members realize the painful impression created by the constant stories of empty benches when money is being poured out like water. One of the most singular things about the House of Commons is that it is always packed to hear fresh taxation proposals, but invariably empties when money is being voted.

"The military adventures in Russia and the Caucasus suggest the direction in which the House of Commons might have checked expenditure. Our various Russian expeditions have been debated solely from conflicting political points of view. I urge that one of the primary considerations is their cost. We cannot afford to indulge in any more costly crusades while we are impoverished and have so many domestic needs.

"I know it will be said first, that we owe a special duty to Russia, and second, that immediately we withdraw from Russia we shall see Germany stepping in. I deplore the plight of Russia. I appreciate the gallant services of the Russian Army early in the war, but the duty we owe to Russia does not exceed that owed to her by our allies. France was knit to Russia by far closer ties than ours, yet can it be said that the French have helped Russia as we have done? Neither the United States nor France has made a tithe of the sacrifices we made for Russia. The French will not fight for Russia. A French regiment mutinied not long ago on hearing a mere unfounded report that it was being sent to the Black Sea. Our men have no liking for a Russian enterprise. The United States and Japan are withdrawing.

Attacks Army Expenditures.

"As for German influence penetrating Russia, we must take that risk. We have bigger risks ahead of us at home.

"Whether we withdraw from Russia or not the public is likely to find that one of the real results of the recent war to end war will be to saddle the exchequer with the cost of a largely increased army and navy. The remnant of the German fleet constitutes no menace. The armies of our foes are broken up, but our permanent military and naval expenditures are being planned upon a basis far in excess of our outlay on defense before the war. The air force contemplates an annual expenditure of more than the whole cost of our army before the war. The London Gazette contains nearly every day long lists of promotion and appointments in each branch of our forces. The entries of cadets for the navy at Osborne, and the army at Sandhurst seems as large, if not larger than ever. The heads of the fighting services appear to have in view a steady expansion of the expenditure, and no one seems disposed to check them.

"Such in brief is the irony of the situation that while under the terms of peace German armaments are restricted to a few warships and an army of 100,000 men at a cost probably of £10,000,000 annually, the militarist section of our Government is engaged in endeavoring to thrust on the backs of the British people a naval, military, and air program costing not less than £500,000,000 yearly. Under this head what chance has British trade in future against the competition of Germany and the rest of the world?

"Parliamentary methods are breaking down in this country because our Constitutional system presupposes a Government by party. It is the fashion nowadays to decry party views and party ties, but party Government is politically the very breath of our nostrils. The party system is an essential condition of our political health. We abandoned it in war for the best of motives, but it is time we went back to it.

"The temporary disappearance of party Government is the true reason why Parliament shows an increasing feebleness. His Majesty's Opposition, as it has been called, is just as necessary as his Majesty's Government. The coalition as at present constituted has outlived its usefulness. It has reduced the House of Commons to a pale shadow of its former self. The debates are spiritless because everybody knows they are a mere stirring of air. The nation is drifting into the habit of disregarding Parliament altogether, a very dangerous tendency.

"I have tried to show the defects of the parliamentary position, and the consequences which arise therefrom with especial regard to national finance. What is the remedy? I will state my view in the fewest possible words: I believe that the old lines of party division have crumbled and that most of the old party cries are dead. The very word unionist, for example, must soon lose its former meaning. I consider that the time has come for the creation of a combination pledged primarily to economy in administration and to the rehabilitation of the nation's finances on a sound footing.

Wants a Party Pledged to Economize.

"We want a progressive party which will take real reconstruction for its watchword, and will prove that it is possible to make a new Britain without dissipating such resources as are left to us. We want, in short, a party which will make a little money go a long way.

"The present coalition will never practice economy. It came into being at a time when the Ministers were accustomed to throw about hundreds of millions without stopping to ask where the money was to be found. It has acquired the spending habit, and seems totally unable to check wasteful and unbusinesslike tendencies developed in war. It thinks in compartments and makes no attempt to adjust its schemes to its limited means. Each new and expensive project is examined and decided upon as though it were a thing apart, and there is no sign of any coordinated effort to consider our outlay as a whole. Whenever any fresh proposal is brought forward, no Minister is asking, 'Can we afford it?'

"The Government is impervious to all attempts to check waste. Lord Cromer selected Lord Kitchener out of half a dozen Generals to run the Sudan war because in those days Lord Kitchener was economical in administration. If there is a reconstruction of the Coalition Government, a similar test should be applied to every Minister. The first question asked should be, Is he capable of effecting great economies?

"I agree with what Mr. Asquith said recently on this point. Perhaps the germ of a real and effective opposition lies in the little bank of independent Liberals in the House of Commons. They preach economy incessantly, and though they are unable to make much progress, it has become obvious that their efforts are widely appreciated outside Westminster.

Urges Reconstruction of Parties.

"It is time we got back to the principles which guided the economical administrations of the sixties and seventies of the last century. In those days Ministers set the example to the nation, for most of them received no more than £2,000 a year. Apparently under the present dispensation that sum is expended on the annual upkeep of each of the motor cars which a number of Ministers have at their disposal. While salaries of £5,000 apiece are now being voted without demur, the working classes cannot be blamed for drawing their own conclusions.

"For my part I doubt whether the true spirit of economy will be developed by any reconstruction of the present coalition. We must make a fresh start or drift toward national ruin. Minds accustomed to the wanton extravagance of war cannot be adjusted to the economic exigencies of peace.

"We require not only a reconstruction of the Government, but a reconstruction of the parties on new lines. We must have retrenchment and reform. We want a new party which will pledge itself to prune ruthlessly our overgrown bureaucracy, to stop subsidies and doles as soon as possible, and to check the excessive naval and military expenditures.

"I began by asking if the coalition in its present form is any longer necessary. I say that it is not, and that paramount financial and other considerations compel us to set in motion a movement for a reconstruction of the parties."

KAISER'S BROTHER ASSAILS ENGLAND

Writes King George That Allied Statesmen Should Appear if Kaiser Is Tried.

DECLARES THEM GUILTY

Britain's Design to Work Germany's Commercial Ruin, He Asserts.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 3.—The former Prince Henry of Prussia, in a letter to King George, published today by the Hamburger Nachrichten, says the truth about the war may be had from the Allies' statesmen, and he suggests that if the former German Emperor is placed on trial the statesmen also appear.

The letter asks King George, "in the name of justice and his own interests," to desist from demanding the extradition and trial of the former German ruler. The letter, which is signed "Your humble cousin Henry," charges that England plotted Germany's commercial downfall.

If the Allies want the truth, the former Prince says, the leading statesmen of Great Britain and her Allies should also be brought before the tribunal as "primarily and urgently suspected of guilt in the world war."

The letter continues:

"Germany and her brave people have been hit severely, but they are not yet dead. The German spirit which now seems dead still lives, and will one day awake to full consciousness of the disgrace and shame which have been inflicted, and will one day demand a reckoning."

The letter charges that it was solely the British Government which for years prepared the world war in order to eliminate Germany as a troublesome competitor from the world's markets. Prince Henry continues:

"Let me only remind Your Majesty of your meetings with M. Sazonoff (then Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs) in September, 1912, at Balmoral, and the utterances of Your Majesty on that occasion, which leave no doubt of the fate planned for the German war and merchant navy."

Germany was overcome, Prince Henry declares, not by the arms of the Entente, but by a "silver bullet" which lodged in the back of the German people. The letter refers to the hunger blockade, "which failed as little in its effects upon the German people as did formerly British measures against the women and children of the Boers."

A dispatch from Berlin, on July 9, said that Prince Henry had sent a telegram to King George begging him to desist in the effort to extradite the ex-Kaiser and placing himself at the King's disposal to assist him "in bringing to light the truth regarding the war and its consequences."

LOOK TO GERMAN COAL TO SUPPLY SHORTAGE

Economic Council Is Considering Plan to Increase Production of Teuton Mines.

LONDON, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Coal will be brought from Germany this Winter to relieve the acute shortage in Central Europe and reduce shipments from the United States, if the plans laid before the Supreme Economic Council materialize.

The council today agreed that a committee should meet with the Reparation Commission to evolve a plan by which immediate coal production will be made attractive to Germany. In the opinion of the council's members, this would mean a lessening of the reparation strain on other German industries.

To facilitate the delivery of coal, the council even considered special inducements of clothing and food to the German miners to get them to work. This plan superseded that of a Central Europe control, discussed yesterday. The council is likely to meet next at Brussels at a date not fixed.

BERLIN, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—In the hope of increasing the coal output, Gustav Adolf Bauer, the Premier, will hold a conference Wednesday with representatives of the three mining organizations, trade union officials, and delegates of the Rhenish, Westphalian, and Upper Silesian miners' unions.

CO-OPERATION CUTS RATES.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Advocatee of the co-operative system demand that a large part of the American Army stocks be earmarked for this purpose. They claim that the success of a recent experiment with a hundred Ford automobiles put at the disposal of the Paris Cabmen's and Chauffeurs' Union fully justifies an attempt on a large scale.

Some weeks ago the union formed a taxicab co-operative with a working capital of 40,000 francs. There are 2,000 members, all ex-soldiers, many of them mutilated. The hundred machines are run at the ordinary tariff, the drivers receiving 33 per cent. of the daily receipts if under 50 francs and 50 per cent. if over that sum. They hand in the balance, which the management claims has not only paid for oil, gasoline, repairs, insurance, and the garage, but has left a surplus of 100,000 francs on the first month's business.

The management purposes to issue stock to a total of 500,000 francs among the members to pay the Government for the machines already received and expects not only to redeem the debt by the end of the year, but to pay 100 per cent. profit into the bargain. At the same time the average daily wage is from six to ten francs higher than that paid by the big companies, justifying the men's accusation at the time of the taxicab strike that the companies were making extremely large profits.

The co-operatives say that if business is equally successful on a big scale—which ought to be the case as the demand for taxicabs in Paris far exceeds the supply—they will lower the fares to the public. What has already been done has roused intense interest, and there is a growing tendency to regard an extension of the co-operative movement as the most satisfactory remedy for the high cost of living.

WHITLOCK SAILS FOR HOME.

Brussels Press Hopes Minister Will Not Be Transferred to Rome.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—Brand Whitlock, United States Minister to Belgium, left today for the United States by way of Rotterdam. The decision to adopt this route was made at the last minute, news having been received that the strike of the Rotterdam dock workers had ended.

The newspapers today expressed the hope that Mr. Whitlock will not be transferred to the embassy in Rome. They say that after his services in Belgium during the war they consider there is no person better qualified to be the first American Ambassador to Belgium.

FREDERICK'S DIARY FEARED BY BISMARCK

He Caused Suppression in 1888 of Documents Now Published in Berlin.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Kaiser Frederick's diary, edited by Professor Eduard Engel and just published by Diekmann in Halle, was originally published in part in October, 1888, in the Berlin Deutsche Rundschau.

Immediately Bismarck ordered its confiscation and suppression, and proceeded against the publishers for high treason and forgery, for Bismarck contended at first that it was impossible that Frederick should have written this diary. Thereupon the professor, statesman, and diplomatist, Heinrich Geffcken, who in 1866 was Hamburg's Minister resident in London, admitted having caused its publication and proved its authenticity beyond doubt.

Frederick himself had intrusted him with a copy of his diary for perusal, of which Geffcken made an extract. Thirty pages from this extract, being considered by Geffcken "of too precarious a nature," which probably enlarged Frederick's liberal ideas of government, were eliminated from the Rundschau publication. These pages were doubtless the most interesting part of the diary.

Bismarck's rage over the publication is easily explained because the diary makes it appear that not Bismarck but Frederick was the moving spirit in forming the new German Empire. Geffcken was indicted for high treason because he published State documents containing allusions likely to harm Germany's standing with England, Belgium, Russia, and the Vatican. All these references are short and vague and only served Bismarck as a pretense against the man who tried to belittle his merits in founding the new German Empire.

While Bismarck was still under the impression that the diary was a forgery, he wrote to William II., stating that the alleged diary contained passages referring to matters that Frederick could not know, "because they were withheld from him by order of Kaiser William I., who feared indiscreet reports to the English Court which might find their way to France."

This letter was afterward made public by Bismarck, because it created an impression that William I. suspected his own son, Frederick, or, rather, the latter's English wife, of espionage. Geffcken was tried and acquitted, because the judges could not be convinced of his mala fides.

The diary covers the period from July 11, 1870, to March 12, 1871. Under March 7 is the following:

"I have great doubts concerning the honesty of their intentions in reconstructing the Empire on liberal lines, and I believe this will be reserved for a time that has got to reckon with myself." This passage gives an idea of what the suppressed thirty pages must have contained.

There used to be two copies of Frederick's diary in the Hohenzollern house library, but THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed that they cannot be found.

AIRMEN SAVE 3 FROM BAY.

Rescue Girl and Two Men in Flying Boat at Patchogue.

Hundreds of spectators who went to Patchogue to see the "Belgian Duck" race yesterday saw a thrilling rescue instead of a race. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals prevented the race, but the flying boat which was to participate saved three persons from drowning.

A live duck was to have been dropped from a flying boat twenty feet above Great South Bay. The swimmer who first should grasp it by the leg was to receive a gold medal for his skill. When the officers from the humane society protested, William Riley, who was in charge of the race, consented to substitute an imitation duck, and ordered the race to be started.

The flying boat, piloted by William D. Walton and his assistant, Emil Harrer, was about to fly out over the bay when the filers saw three persons struggling beside a capsized rowboat some distance from the shore. They flew to the rescue and picked up Miss Grace Flaherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon J. Flaherty of 81 Pearsall Avenue, Laurel Hill, N. Y.; J. S. Blackton, Jr., son of J. Stuart Blackton, the playwright and author, of 25 West Forty-fifth Street, Manhattan, and H. V. Fajans of New York City. The duck race was called off. It was announced that it would be held later this week.

ERZBERGER IS ACCUSED.

New Attack Says That He Engaged in Illicit Trade.

BERLIN, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—A new attack on Mathias Erzberger, Vice Premier and Minister of Finance, alleging that he violated the taxation laws and engaged in illicit trade, is about to be launched, according to the Wolff Bureau.

The news agency declares that slanders against President Ebert, Philipp Scheidemann, former Chancellor, and Herr Erzberger are being circulated "which are so base that no healthy mind can believe them," but says it is considered necessary systematically to oppose and disarm the slanders.

The Börsen Zeitung's Weimar correspondent predicts the abandonment of Erzberger's plan demanding the surrender of all German paper money for stamping and reissue, so that none of it may escape taxation. There have been countless protests, says the newspaper, on the part of the business community on what is termed the complete impracticability of the plan.

NEWBURGER TO RUN AS AN INDEPENDENT

phy to change his mind when it became known at the last moment that he had decided to ignore Justice Newburger's claims to a renomination. Some of these Tammany men have even signed the petitions putting the Justice into the race, and it was said yesterday that they would work openly for his election. The revolt of the better class of Tammany men is expected to bring about a serious situation in the organization this Fall. Already there is a five borough split in the Democratic Party. Judge Richard H. Smith of the City Court, who was also rejected by Tammany, after being on the City Court Bench for ten years, has announced that he would contest the nomination in the Democratic primaries. He already has been designated by the Republicans.

Whole Ticket in Danger.

Tammany leaders frankly admitted yesterday that Justice Newburger's decision to run independently had endangered their entire ticket. Tammany was confident before the designations were made that it would have no trouble in electing its entire ticket this Fall, but some of the leaders said yesterday that even the election of Robert L. Moran as President of the Board of Aldermen was not as certain as it once seemed. Charles F. Murphy was out of the city yesterday and no official comment upon Justice Newburger's decision was forthcoming from the Tammany organization.

There are several minor fights in the Democratic Party in the various boroughs this year, and all of them are expected to have an important bearing upon the success of the ticket as a whole. One of the more important contests is being waged by Thomas F. Curley for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney of Richmond County. Curley, a present Assemblyman, declared yesterday that County Judge J. Harry Tiernan of Staten Island had set himself up as the Democratic boss of the county, and had ordered him not to become a candidate, as the Judge had already selected his own private secretary, Joseph H. Malloy, for the nomination. Curley made an affidavit yesterday in which he detailed the conversation he said he had had with Judge Tiernan when the latter called him into his office on July 22. According to the affidavit, Judge Tiernan said:

"I am the boss of the Democratic Party here and I want you to quit. You can't have the designation. I'll drive you or any man out of politics who does not do what I say. I am going to designate my own man for District Attorney. You stand aside and behave yourself."

Assemblyman Curley said he would make a hard fight for the nomination on an independent ticket.

LUDENDORFF DENIES HE LOST HIS NERVE

Tries to Soften the White Book Record of a Panic at His Headquarters.

ANNIVERSARY REFLECTIONS

Reactionary Papers Still Saying That the Military Collapse Was Caused by the Revolution.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—"On Aug. 1, 1914, the German people were told of the outbreak of the war. On Aug. 1, 1919, the German people are told how the collapse of the Empire came about." The Berliner Zeitung am Mittag thus prefaces another series of documents with reprints from the new German White Book.

"But the 110 documents contained in the White Book," the paper says, "describe only the last act of the tragedy, the catastrophe which can no longer be concealed. In contiguity the documents read like a terrible novel, like a story of an awful awakening from years of befogged delusions and unjustified optimism. In this White Book only the results of this catastrophal condition become apparent, but each word reveals to us how far the roots reach back. On Aug. 14, 1918, it begins to dawn in the heads of the leaders. They begin to see the mistake of the great offensive, the mistake of estimation of the enemy forces, the mistake of scattering their own forces, the mistake in the estimation of American enmity, and many other mistakes. But the delusion was so strong it could not immediately be entirely removed by the dawning truth. In the White Book one comes across astounding new misjudgments and delusions, political as well as military. Even at this late stage, seen retrospectively, they impress us with the conviction that, besides our justly censured politicians, our military leaders also failed."

Most of the newspapers commemorate the fifth anniversary of the war with similar reflections, the reactionary organs, of course, maintaining stoutly, as though the White Book did not exist, that Germany's military collapse was caused by the revolution, while the Socialist, Centrist, and Democratic papers express the opinion that the White Book has established beyond any doubt that the military collapse caused the revolution, or contend at least that the revolution would have been impossible if a demoralizing war had not preceded it.

In the Lokan Anzeiger General Ludendorff attempts to contradict the White Book, especially its official preface, and from his memory, as it seems, because he quotes no official documents. The once almighty General attempts to whitewash himself by replacing certain statements imputed to him by others in less compromising phrases, but his excuses are so weak they are hardly worth repeating.

Regarding the insinuation by the Diplomatist Grünau, visiting headquarters on Oct. 1, that Ludendorff and the other Generals were suffering from collapse of the nervous system, he says:

"I cannot understand what Grünau meant. I admit we were all deeply impressed by the disastrous events of the last few days, but none of my officers, least of all myself, lost our nerve."

Ludendorff says a Berlin diplomatist visiting headquarters about that time asked him so many foolish questions as only men absolutely ignorant of war can ask. Still he cannot deny he answered these questions as well or as badly as he could and he cannot explain away his panicky desire for an armistice on Oct. 1 and his demand later for the continuation of hostilities.

Ludendorff concludes by expressing the hope that his book appearing in August will contribute a clean history of the end of the war.

In the Süddeutsche Monatshefte Admiral Scheer attempts to help his friends by declaring that he, Ludendorff and Hindenburg came to Berlin on Oct. 25 to ask the Government to break off negotiations and rouse the people, but it was too late. Vice Chancellor Payer refused to accept Ludendorff's view that Germany's existence must be sacrificed for honor.

Italian Police Say It Was Part of Strike Terror—Five Killed.

TARANTO, Italy, Aug. 2, (Associated Press).—High power explosives, said by the police to have been placed by Radicals in order to terrorize people during the proposed general strike on July 21, suddenly exploded today near Chiatona. Five persons were killed. Parts of their bodies were thrown several hundred feet in the air. No damage was done to the railway line.

APPEALS TO ENTENTE TO SAVE AUSTRIA

Not Too Late to Prevent Country from Being Ruined for Generations, Seitz Says.

VIENNA, July 31, (Associated Press.)—Karl Seitz, President of the Austrian National Assembly, urged today that the Allies take steps to save Austria from a plight similar to that of Hungary.

"While our valuables, jewels, gold, and paintings have been slowly finding their way across the frontiers," he said, "it is not yet too late to save us from the fate of Hungary, which has been stripped and ruined for generations within a few months. This the Allies will discover if they ever undertake its reconstruction.

"We have been marking time commercially, as we have been forced to do, because of our deficit of 4,000,000,000 crowns, the large sum we are paying to the unemployed, the large amount dispersed for employes' pensions, and also because of the lack of revenue from tobacco and liquor.

"Speaking broadly, the Allies should realize that European business must be kept going. Unless the people of Europe are employed they must emigrate, for, if they stay at home, they may become trouble makers, disturbing the world's peace. Men won't lie down to die quietly.

"Austria does not expect to live on the old scale, but at least she must have her daily bread.

"Regarding the Danube federation, proposed as a relief for commercial conditions, I am afraid that quarrels over frontiers will prevent that. However, a great Central European union is not only logical, but possible. It should include States from the North Sea to the Mediterranean."

SEVEN JOURNALISTS DIE ON BURNING CAPRONI

Pilot In Italian Air Disaster Brother of One Killed at Mineola.

MILAN, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—Seven journalists were among the fifteen persons burned to death near Verona Saturday when a large Caproni airplane in flight from Venice to Milan caught fire at an altitude of 5,000 feet.

Among them was Signor Zanghieri, correspondent of The Chicago Daily News.

The pilot of the machine was Lieutenant Resnati, a brother of Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati, who was killed while flying a Caproni at Mineola, N. Y., last year.

Nobody in the plane escaped. The machine, which was attempting to lower the speed record between Venice and Milan, burst suddenly into flames and fell to the earth. The cause of the disaster has not been ascertained.

MILAN, Aug. 3.—Among the journalists who perished in the burning of the Caproni biplane near Verona were Cavaliere Ureste Ciprano of the Corriere della Sera, Professor Tancredi Langhieri of the Secolo staff, and Signor Tullio Morgagni, Director of the illustrated edition of the Secolo.

CHANG-CHUN CLASH LEADS TO NEW DEMANDS

Japanese Want Trade Concessions In Cities of Kirin Province As Reparation.

PEKING, Aug. 1, (Associated Press.)—As a result of the clash between Japanese and Chinese soldiers on July 19 at Chang-Chun, (Kwang-Cheng-tse,) Manchuria, the Japanese Consul at Chang-Chun has made three demands upon the local officials.

The first of these is that no Chinese troops shall be allowed within a ten-mile radius of Chang-Chun; the second, that two cities of Kirin province must be opened for foreign trade and residence; the third, that within the city of Ilan, (Il-min?) Kirin province, a monopoly shall be given to Japanese to operate the waterworks.

The Chinese Resident has agreed to grant the first demand, but has informed the Japanese that he has no power to deal with the second and third, which must be referred to Peking.

40 ARMY TRUCKS BURN.

Garage Full of Motors in Brooklyn Destroyed.

Forty army motor trucks burned last night in an army garage in Forty-eighth Street, between Second and Third Avenues, Brooklyn. The loss is placed at about $250,000. The fire followed an explosion at the rear of the garage, where there were sixty large trucks of the Army Motor Transport Service. James Harris, a soldier, on duty, tried to fight the flames, but when a second explosion occurred ran to the street, summoned a score of sailors and soldiers who were near and tried to save the machines. In the meantime two alarms had been sent in, but the flames spread rapidly and enveloped the building by the time that one-third of the trucks had been taken out.

The police ordered a score of families, occupying homes near the fire, into the street with their belongings, but they were permitted to return later.

The fire blocked the Hamilton Avenue and Third Avenue trolley lines for more than an hour.

CONFIRMS LEVIEN'S ARREST

But Berlin Report Says Italian Mountain Patrol Seized Him.

BERLIN, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Max Levien, the Bavarian Communist leader, has been arrested by Italian patrols in the Brenner Pass while trying to make his escape into Italy.

A dispatch from Berne early in July said the Swiss police had been advised from Germany that Dr. Levien had been found at Wiesbaden and arrested. Levien fled from Munich early in May, and the Bavarian Government offered a reward of 30,000 marks for his capture.

at 707 Broadway, who lives on Washington Heights, Manhattan, was questioned by the police. He admitted that his brother had had a quarrel with Barron and that the slain man was prosecuting Barron for extortion in connection with some labor troubles.

After hours of work on the case the police were of the opinion that the killing was the result of a quarrel over the "mystery woman." They said they had information that the woman spent Friday and Saturday at the beach with Barron and Korman, and that the Sunday trip was to be another day at the seaside until the quarrel developed. It was said that the police had located the driver of the taxicab, but that he was "out with a fare," and the detectives were waiting for him to return.

TALK OF CEDING INDIES.

London Paper Suggests Britain May Give Them to Us for Debt.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The National News says that a suggestion that the British West Indies be ceded to the United States in part payment of Great Britain's war debt is being considered seriously on both sides of the Atlantic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The report in The National News that the cession of the British West Indies to the United States, in part payment of Great Britain's war debt to the United States, "is being considered seriously on both sides of the Atlantic," is not taken seriously here.

Secretary Lansing tonight dismissed the report with the statement: "I have not even heard of it."

At the British Embassy it was stated that the matter had never been brought to its attention.

Suppose an authority were to tell you that because of the war the United States is already 800,000 dwelling houses behind normal building.

What do the 1,000,000 new homes, soon to be built, mean to you?

Do you calculate the amount of building material or do you think of the labor problem or of the house furnishings after completion, or do you think of the human beings who will people these houses?

Do you think in terms of financing the building or furnishing the paint and varnish?

Is it bath tubs or bath towels—is it of piazzas or pianos that you think?

Whatever you imagine for these new homes and for their new owners—the best of everything is none too good.

Just now, there are 1,000,000 families planning new homes—they are trying to decide what's best—they are eager to be shown. Help them decide—advertise.

RUMANIAN ARMY HALTED BY ALLIES

AUSTRIA WILL INTERN KUN

NEW CABINET TEMPORARY

Belief That It Will Be Supplanted by Coalition with Karolyi Partisans in It.

PARIS, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—The Supreme Inter-Allied Council sent a message yesterday to the Rumanian Government requesting that the Rumanian Army along the Theiss River cease its advance upon Budapest immediately.

The Council held no formal meeting today, but its members eagerly awaited further communication from the new Hungarian Government at Budapest.

The note which the Council communicated to the new Hungarian Government through the Italian Mission in Budapest was temperate in tone, showing that the disposition on the part of the Peace Conference to assist the Hungarian people in an effort to create a stable government under the direction of the new Premier, Jules Peidll, need not in any sense be considered a threat of violence against the new Government. It lay stress, however, on the necessity for Hungary to comply with the terms of the armistice and disarm completely.

Rumania and Czechoslovakia, in addition to the other Balkan States, have urged the complete disarmament of the Hungarians immediately, and the Peace Conference apparently is disposed to take every possible step to prevent further military action on the part of the Hungarians.

VIENNA, Aug. 3.—All Budapest is celebrating deliverance from the Bolshevist yoke. There is a feeling of relief everywhere, and the hope is expressed that the Entente will now cause the Rumanians to stop their advance, for otherwise the Rumanians might play havoc with the immense collection of valuables taken from private persons and deposited in the Austrian-Hungarian Bank at Budapest, and exact a heavy indemnity.

The news of Bela Kun's downfall caused general satisfaction in Vienna, and the feeling is universal that the danger of Bolshevism has been definitely removed from the Austrian capital. Tibor Szamuely, the most-hated member of the former Budapest Government, has committed suicide, having shot himself when stopped by Austrian frontier guards while trying to escape from Hungary.

Bela Kun has arrived in Vienna with members of his former Cabinet. By permission of the Hungarian Government he will be interned pending a decision as to what disposition is to be made of him.

VIENNA, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Reports received here from Budapest say that Minister of Foreign Affairs Agoston has obtained permission for all the compromised members of the Bela Kun Cabinet to remain interned with their families at Camp Rosenau, Lower Austria.

There has been a mad rush on the Vienna Stock Exchange by persons who desire to purchase the more important of the Hungarian bank stocks, the shares of which have risen as a result of the new Government. There is much comment in Vienna on the fact that there is no Jewish member of the Peidll Cabinet.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 3. (Associated Press.)—The city today presents a pitiful appearance after the flight of the Communists. The streets are half deserted, no stores are open, there is little food in the hotels or private houses, and no soap, coffee, tobacco or linen is to be had.

The new Cabinet is sitting day and night working on the formidable task of reconstruction and the bringing about of order.

The Communists, who robbed both for political and private purposes, left the banks empty. Financial institutions which contained roudly 5,000,000,000 crowns now have barely 50,000,000 crowns in good money in their vaults. Finance Minister Miskics does not know which way to turn, as the only money left him is Communist paper.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Sketches of some of the leaders in the new Hungarian Government are published today by the Vossiche Zeitung.

Premier Peidll is described by the paper as a Moderate Socialist. He was an editor and a leader in the Bookbinders' Union. He held office in the Berinkey Ministry, which was supplanted by the Soviet.

Joseph Haubrich, Minister of War, also is said to be a Moderate Socialist. He was Commissioner for the Army under the Soviet and city commander of Budapest. He is said to be regarded as the Hungarian Noske because of the energy with which he maintained order. He is General Secretary of the Iron Workers.

Dr. Peter Agoston, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and former Soviet Minister of Justice, was a professor in the Nagyvarada Academy of Law. He belonged formerly to the Bourgeois Radical Party, but went over to the Moderate Socialists.

Alexander Garbai, Minister of Welfare, was Chairman of the Soviet until it was reconstructed in June. He is one of the oldest and best known of the workers' leaders. Since 1908 he has been President of the Social Democratic Party.

Anton Dovohak, Minister of Commerce, is a railroad man. He formerly was President of a powerful organization of iron and steel workers. He was in captivity in Russia since early in the war.

Other members of the Cabinet are said by the newspaper to be well known labor leaders, but not political figures. One of the first acts of the new Government, it is said, will be to call for elections to the National Assembly.

KUN WEPT WHEN DEPOSED.

Admitted Hopelessness of Situation to Revolutionary Council.

VIENNA, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—The dowfall of Bela Kun, virtual dictator of the old Hungarian Soviet Government, and the fight he made almost alone to maintain the power that had caused the Allies so much trouble for months, is described in dispatches received here today and by refugees from Budapest.

Final action in upsetting the Communist Government took place on Friday at the meeting of the Central Council of Revolutionary Workmen and Soldiers at Budapest. Zoi Ponay, former Minister of Justice, announced the Government's resignation. He explained that the dictatorship of Bela Kun, effective on March 3, was based on three assumptions, namely: World revolution, military aid from the Russian Soviet, and the Hungarian proletariat's capacity for self-sacrifice. These conditions, he said, had not been fulfilled.

Bela Kun then appeared before the council. With tear-stained face and in a choking voice he admitted the hopelessness of the situation.

Speakers at the meeting told how the Rumanian troops were within forty kilometers of Budapest and that the Allies threatened to tighten the blockade.

Jacob Weltner, President of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Soviet, and Dr. Peter Agoston, then Minister of Justice, who conferred with the allied representatives at Vienna and had been told plainly that Kun must go and a new government be formed, got up in the council meeting and stormily demanded Bela Kun's resignation. They asked him if he wished Budapest's pitiful plight to be made worse by the hated Rumanians.

Then Bela Kun yielded. He predicted the coming of a "White Terror," robbing the workmen of their freedom and means of production, all of which he deplored. He added that the people would return to him.

The formal decision to demand the dictator's resignation was made on Thursday at a meeting of the Trades Union Council after President Samuel Jaszi gave a vivid description of the desperate political, economic, and military situation. The council voted 93 to 3, for the immediate resignation of the Soviet Cabinet.

Those who knew the fallen leader said that it probably was his impending defeat that caused his wife to appear so sad, and that his wife's suffering had much to do with his final decision to yield.

Even up to Thursday morning, when it was apparent to all that the Soviet army was not showing fight in the campaign against the Rumanians, he met the conference at Bruck, on the frontier, where the allied terms were given to him, and refused to resign. He then sent out a wireless message declaring that the Soviet would fight on and that the proletariat, which had thrown off the yoke of the bourgeoisie and the nobles, would not permit the return of that power.

It is estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 Hungarians who sought refuge here intend to return to Budapest to save their remaining possessions.

ONEGA RECAPTURED FROM BOLSHEVIKI

TSCHAIKOVSKY IN LONDON

President of North Russia Demands Definite Statement of Britain's Policy—Wants Recognition.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The town of Onega on the North Russian front has been bombarded and captured by anti-Bolshevist forces, according to a wireless Bolshevist military report received this evening. The wireless says:

"Following a bombardment of Onega the enemy landed and took the town, the northern part of which was burning."

Nicholas Tschaikovsky, President of the North Russia Provisional Government, arrived here today to confer with British officials in an effort to induce the Government to announce a definite policy in North Russia. He said that the lack of a clear-cut Allied policy was affecting the morals of the North Russian population and troops and preventing recruiting. What he most desired was recognition of the Archangel Government by one or more of the Allies.

"The Allied force in Northern Russia," said M. Tschaikovsky, "has never been sufficiently large to be of real aid in fighting the Bolsheviki. The report that any nation is about to withdraw really does more harm than the actual withdrawal. These reports, which have been numerous the last few months, are keeping our people in constant turmoil. We are forever facing stories that the Allies are abandoning the situation. A definite policy one way or the other is what we need."

M. Tschaikovsky asserted that the Bolsheviki must be crushed militarily or else Bolshevism allowed to die a natural death. He saw great danger in the latter course, because with the appointment of Sieman and Halske as Bolshevist Minister of Trade and Commerce and Minister of Military Supplies, Ways and Communications, respectively, "Russia will be absolutely dominated by Germany unless we fight. If we fight, the Northern Government must have the same assistance given General Denikin, if not in men, then in food, clothing, and arms for troops. If we could advance a short distance south on the Archangel front, we could recruit thousands of sympathizers, who hesitate because they see the Bolshevist power, and very naturally doubt ours."

M. Tschaikovsky said he considered that this was the time to strike hard at the Bolsheviki, because he was advised that they had ammunition for only two months and their production was at low ebb.

The town of Onega is situated on the Gulf of Onega, an arm of the White Sea lying to the west of Archangel. Late in July Major Gen. William E. Ironsides, Commander-in-Chief on the Archangel front, reported to London that the Russian troops had mutinied, joined the Bolsheviki, and handed over the town of Onega and the Onega front to the Bolsheviki.

GENERAL GREGORIEFF SHOT.

Rival General Fires on Commander Who Took Odessa.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—A wireless Bolshevist dispatch received from Moscow reports the shooting of General Gregorieff, the Russian commander who captured Odessa early in July and whose troops are reported to have carried out a massacre in the Jewish quarter of Odessa recently. The dispatch does not indicate whether Gregorieff was killed. It says:

"Hetman Gregorieff, who commanded the troops in the capture of Odessa a month ago, has been shot with a revolver by a rival, General Maksno, commander of the Ukraintan insurgent forces, at the village of Sektovo, in the Kherson District, during a personal interview."

THREATEN BABY IN HOLDUP.

Thugs Hold Pistol at Child's Head Till Father Gives Up Cash.

Holding a revolver at the head of his baby daughter in her carriage, highwaymen compelled Louis Barber, an ice cream and candy dealer of 830 Seventeenth Avenue, Brooklyn, to hand over $70 about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

Barber closed his place of business at 1432 Eighteenth Avenue just before 1 o'clock and with his wife, Carolyn, and their 18-month-old child, Hazel, started home. Mrs. Barber pushed the baby carriage. They were about 200 feet west of the Eighteenth Avenue station of the West End elevated line, in an unfrequented spot, when two men dashed out of the dark. One pointed a revolver at Barber, while the second held a pistol at the baby's head.

"If you don't come across we'll kill the baby," declared one of the robbers.

Mrs. Barber, as her husband in the excitement of the affair hesitated, pleaded with him to give the men what he had, and he handed over $200, the receipts of his business for the day.

The robbers then crossed the street to a large black automobile with all lights out, a man in the driver's seat and the engine running, jumped aboard, and dashed away.

Barber, who reported the robbery to the police, said that on Friday night, at about the same place, men appeared when he was on his way home, but as other persons were in the vicinity they merely strolled past him. He is convinced that these were the same men and that they intended then to hold him up.

No Decision Yet on Fiume.

ROME, Aug. 2.—The report that the Inter-Allied Military Commission had arrived at a decision hostile to Italy on the Fiume question was denied today by Popolo Romano. The newspaper says the commission has not yet finished its work and its conclusions will be presented to the Supreme Inter-Allied Council at Paris for a definite decision.

CLUB BARS HEIR TO ABYSSINIAN THRONE

National Democratic Organization Cancels Dinner After Learning Guests Are Black.

"LADIES' NIGHT" IS EXCUSE

Affair Held on Hotel Roof After Two Postponements, an Hour and a Half Late.

H. H. Topakyan, the Persian Consul General in New York, decided yesterday to give a farewell dinner in honor of the Abyssinian Mission, which sails today on the Martha Washington. Reservation was first made for the party at the National Democratic Club at 617 Fifth Avenue, of which Mr. Topakyan is a member; then at the National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street, where Mr. Topakyan also is a member, but finally the party dined at the Ritz-Carlton roof.

With the change in arrangements came charges from Mr. Topakyan, in which he accuses the National Democratic Club of cancelling the dinner reservation when they learned that the guests were colored. This was followed by an equally vehement denial by the club officials.

The National Republican Club Mr. Topakyan exonerated. He said the substitution of the Ritz-Carlton was made at the suggestion of J. Cornell Tarler, the representative of the State Department with the mission. Mr. Tarler advised that, since one club had given them the "cold shoulder," it would be better not to risk another affront, and to patronize a public hostelry.

Incidentally, the heir apparent to the throne of Abyssinia, Prince Dedjajmatch Madao; his Prime Minister, Kantiba Geiron, and Ato Heromy, the members of the Mission waited for their evening meal until 9 o'clock.

Mr. Topakyan probably did not have time to think of hunger during his hurried trips from hotel to club and back again. Stopping at the Democratic Club to get some cigars during the afternoon caused the trouble, he said. It was while lunching with members of the mission at the Waldorf, he said, that he decided to give the dinner to the distinguished visitors. He called up the superintendent of the National Democratic Club, said to be a Mr. John Hines, and arranged with him to reserve a table for eight for 7:30 o'clock.

Having finished luncheon, the party entered Government automobiles, intending to drive through Central Park. Mr. Topakyan stopped to get a cigar as they were passing the Democratic Club. Members of the club saw the proposed guest of honor, and one member in particular objected. His objections, it is said, resulted in the reservation being canceled.

The National Republican Club then was appealed to, and similar arrangements made for the same hour, without objection, although the circumstances of the previous refusal, it was said, were explained. Here Mr. Tarler intervened with the suggestion of the Ritz-Carlton, which was accepted.

This time the affair was set for 8 o'clock, but fate again took a hand, for the members of the mission said they had an engagement to appear at a colored church in Harlem that they simply had to keep, so it was not until after 9 o'clock that the silk-gowned and white-pantaloned guests were bowed into their seats at the Ritz-Carlton roof.

The Chairman of the House Committee of the Democratic Club explained last night that no functions are ever scheduled for Sunday night, the building being reserved for the members and their women friends. Sunday night is "ladies' night," he said.

Captain Paul Morrisey, who has been the Government's official representative with the mission since its arrival, July 5, said he would report on the occurence to President Wilson. He said he requested an explanation from the club officials, but could obtain none.

RADICALS INCITING NEGRO TO VIOLENCE

rival the American Federation of Labor."

This publication prints an article by a man who, it is stated, was a negro officer of the 367th Infantry. The writer says making the world safe for democracy, so far as the negro soldiers were concerned, was a mockery.

"When black officers taught black men bayonet practise," he said, "they usually substituted the picture of the white Southerner for that of the Hun. This method oftentimes inspired the soldier with dash and vim. * * * The colored officer, maltreated and thrust aside, has cursed the flag and the country for which it stands a thousand times. Thousands of these soldiers now possess weapons to demonstrate, if need be, their legal right to self-defense against Southern encroachments and lynch law. Intelligent negroes have all reached the point where their loyalty to the country is conditional."

Representatives of thirty or more denominations engaged in educational and home mission work among the negroes will meet in New York next month to formulate a program for betterment of the conditions under which they live. Announcement was made yesterday by Bishop Wilbur P. Thirkield of New Orleans, representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, that the conference was decided upon by the After-war Committee of the Federal Council of Churches and the Home Missions Council. Bishop Thirkield for years has been active in work among the negroes.

"The conference," he said, "will include white and colored men from the North and South. They will consider the situation precipitated by the recent race riots, and it is proposed to adopt a program looking to the co-operation of all religious, civic, and other forces of the country to bring about safe and sane relations between the races."

ORDER PREVAILS IN CHICAGO

Aside from Minor Disturbances, Race Riots Have Subsided.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Aside from a few minor disturbances, order prevailed today in the Chicago "Black Belt," where race rioting last week caused thirty-five deaths and injury to several hundred persons. The militia and police continue to patrol the negro district.

With the exception of an attack on Captain A. R. Wehrheim, G Company, 4th Reserve Militia, who was fired on and stabbed by three negroes, and the forming of a white mob in the stock yards district early this morning, no outbreak of consequence had occurred since Thursday. The Captain was severely wounded, but will recover.

Six hundred whites were dispersed only after a machine gun mounted on an automobile had appeared and militiamen with fixed bayonets had prepared to charge them.

The Sheriff is swearing in former soldiers as special deputies and expects to have between 1,000 and 2,000 on duty in the riot zones tomorrow.

Growth of the Quality Idea

Character of Circulation Determines Leadership

THE leading publication in the farm paper field can best be determined by its QUALITY—by the editorial quality of the periodical itself, by the quality of its subscribers, and by the quality of its circulation methods.

As a result of its 39 years' experience, Farm and Home has brought together all these qualities into one national monthly magazine of rural life. Its readers have such close affection for and profound confidence in Farm and Home that it wields a powerful influence.

What the Quality Circulation Analysis Shows

(a) The count made in June, 1919, shows that (*) 88.3% of Farm and Home subscribers live on R. F. D. routes and in towns under 2,500; only 11.7% in towns over 2,500. Can any other farm paper show a like percentage of rural subscribers?

(b) The June analysis shows that 42.2% of its subscribers have paid for Farm and Home beyond June, 1920, or for more than one year in advance.

(d) The June analysis further proves that 44.7% of all subscriptions received were for more than one year.

Yet NOT ONE of these subscriptions was received or secured through a newsdealer, canvasser, agent, trial offer or any kind of a contest.

Isn't this the best evidence that Farm and Home circulation is QUALITY circulation? Your farmer, the man you want to reach with your advertising and your goods, buys Farm and Home because he wants it; because it occupies a definite place in his business and in his home; because it is indispensable in the life and work of himself and his family.

A Steady Gain in Quality Circulation

Furthermore:

Last 6 months of 1917----- 519,925 net paid
First 6 months of 1918----- 532,262 net paid
Last 6 months of 1918----- 558,036 net paid
First 6 months of 1919----- 572,559 net paid

June 1919 Issue—575,909 Net Paid

(f) An analysis of subscriptions received in the year ended June, 1919, shows that 88.6% were secured through the publisher's own direct efforts—46.3% were received direct by mail in single subscriptions, and 42.3% were received direct by mail from club-raisers in lots of two or more at the full subscription price. Only 11.4% were received from other publishers and by miscellaneous efforts, and these netted from 60% to 100% of the full subscription price.

(g) All publishers pay us 60% of regular subscription price. All subscription agencies pay us full price.

(h) The above (f and g) show that all but 11.4% of subscriptions received are originated and controlled by the publishers through their own direct efforts.

*Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

(i) Analysis also shows that 86.8% of Farm and Home's subscribers are concentrated in the states of greatest buying power—Northwest and Central West, Middle Atlantic and New England.

(j) The June count further shows that 93.3% of Farm and Home's increased subscription list was made in the Central West, Middle States and New England. Not only are farmers in these states normally of the largest purchasing power, but this August finds general crop conditions the highest for ten years throughout these states and the Northwest. Thus the largest part of Farm and Home's circulation is concentrated in the region that today has the best crops, and that will have the largest purchasing power.

Recognized National Institution

The above cold facts tell the story of Farm and Home's place in agricultural journalism. And an analysis of the figures proves that it leads as a quality farm paper and as a profitable medium for advertising to the farm trade.

The very nature of its service to subscribers, together with the ample evidence cited above, explains why farmers tie to Farm and Home as to their intimate friend, best counsellor and close co-worker, thus enabling it to assist farmers in civic affairs, as well as on the farm, at the market and in the home.

Farm and Home was the original champion of Rural Free Delivery. It advocated and secured the lower postage on seeds, plants and bulbs, still in effect.

Farm and Home fostered monetary reform, paved the way for the Federal Reserve Act and secured the enactment of the Federal Farm Loan system. It then immediately undertook a vigorous campaign to popularize that loan system, with the result that by August 1 Federal land banks had loaned upward of $300,000,000 to about 100,000 farmers.

Service and Practical Helpfulness

Such genuine service and practical helpfulness accounts for the unlimited bond of confidence between its readers and Farm and Home.

It provides strong, up-to-date material for practical farmers. It is edited by practical farmers, and maintains as a regular feature a Farm Engineering Department, conducted by a real farm engineer—Professor K. J. T. Ekblaw.

Farm and Home is full of good, clean reading and worthwhile family features. It appeals to the women and young folks as well as the farmer. It is a quality paper clear through, with attractive make-up, well illustrated, good print—and it is read by the quality people of our rural population.

Its editorial policy and general helpfulness furnish excellent surroundings for your advertising in Farm and Home if you have a worthy product to place before 650,000 of the most substantial and prosperous farm families in agricultural America.

SHUBERTS TO STAGE MANY ATTRACTIONS

Plans for Coming Season Call for the Greatest Activity Ever Undertaken.

PATRONS AID ACTORS.

Equity Association Gets $625 from "Lovers of the Theatre."

The Actors' Equity Association announced yesterday that its fight against the Producing Managers' Association was receiving unsolicited popular support. One evidence of this, it was said, was the fact that persons describing themselves as "lovers of the theatre" had voluntarily sent in $625 "to aid the actors' cause."

The managers yesterday received official notice of the action of the actors in delegating full power to their executive committee, but professed not to be disturbed by this or any other steps taken by the Equity Association. The centre of action shifted yesterday to Chicago, where a meeting of the Actors' Association was held.

THE SCREEN

"The Career of Catherine Bush," adapted by Kathryn Stuart from a novel by Elinor Glyn and directed by Roy W. Neill, with Catherine Calvert in the leading rôle, is the photoplay at the Rialto this week. It is a Paramount-Artcraft Special. The acting and the staging, despite the story, make it something special.

Miss Calvert not only has the principal part, but is the principal player. In her the screen has one of its exceptional pantomimists. Her facial expressions are full of meaning, her gestures take the place of words, and she has the rare ability to make her feelings in emotional scenes seem genuine. There is restraint, yet full expressiveness, in what she does—when she is permitted to act.

Many of the scenes in "The Career of Catherine Bush," however, do not permit her to act. They are too talky. They show characters going through the motions of conversations for which the words come lagging along in subtitles. Not even Miss Calvert can make such scenes mean anything. They are deadwood in a photoplay. Nor does the story of "The Career of Catherine Bush" offer the actors any opportunity for characterization. It might be named "From the Lower Middle Class to the Nobility; or, How a Poor Girl Married a Duke," for the career of Catherine consisted of her rise, by determination and good looks, from the lowly state of a clerk in a money lender's office to an exalted place of social position and power as the wife of an English Duke. There might be something to this if Catherine was a shrewd, calculating woman of the world seeking her own advantage, but the heroine of the photoplay, although guilty of one misstep, is the embodiment of the beautiful, the true, and the good. The moral of her "career" would seem to be, "There is a Duke for every good little girl if she goes after him with a pure heart."

Miss Calvert, however, does much to make the photoplay enjoyable in separate scenes, and she has assistance from a competent cast, noteworthy among whom are Crauford Kent and Mrs. Matilda Brundage. Realistic English settings have been made by Mr. Neill, who is also responsible for many pleasing scenes.

"Through A Rubber Plant," showing processes in the Goodrich factory, is the educational picture at the Rialto, and the Magazine and music are entertaining.

There is much of the early wild west, as it was or is supposed to have been, in "The Westerners" at the Strand this week. This is a screen version of Stewart Edward White's novel of the same name, and has the "approval" of the author, which means that Mr. White has not simply sold the motion picture rights to his book, but has either participated in the making of the photoplay or authorized the exhibition of the finished product. It is, therefore, offered as the screen work of a writer, and is especially interesting as one of the first of the long list of such productions announced by different companies.

Whatever Mr. White did in the producing of "The Westerners," he did not attempt to make it simply a series of animated illustrations for his novel, and for this he should be given honorable mention. Apparently, Benjamin B. Hampton, described as the producer, and Edward Sloman, the director, were permitted to go ahead and use the story as material for a play in moving pictures. "The Westerners," in company with every other photoplay to date, sometimes leans upon written words needlessly, but it makes its main effort in pictures—and succeeds. It depends chiefly upon its actors and its scenes, and these do not fail it.

In the cast, Roy Stewart, Robert McKim, Willard Lucas, Mildred Manning and Graham Pettie are most convincing, and little Frankie Lee is amusing except when allowed or instructed to be an unnatural child. The settings are true to the primitive West, at least as popularly imagined, and much of nature's beauty is brought effectively into the action.

The story cannot be told with any detail in short space. It deals with the adventures of a group of people in the melodramatic life of caravan and mining camp. Although improbable in plot, its characters, in the main, ring true. The hero does not become a plaster saint when he falls in love and is "reformed."

The photoplay is preceded by an enjoyable musical number, in which the Strand Male Quartet, costumed as Westerners, sing appropriate melodies. A slow-motion picture shows the Giants in action on the diamond.

The photoplay at the Rivoli is "The Dark Star," an adaptation of Robert W. Chambers's novel, directed by Allan Dwan, with Marion Davies in the leading rôle. There is also the music, a Christie comedy, and the Pictorial.

Overbuying

"What am I entitled to?"

This is a question frequently met by the banker, and comes from the man who, submitting a statement with the intention of establishing credit with a bank, puts it in this form in order to learn how much the bank will lend him.

On the basis of mere figures, the inquirer is "entitled" to nothing, but the said figures, having been made by an honest, successful, intelligent business man, reflect his ability and personal responsibility, and, therefore, do form a gauge as to what extent the bank may reasonably accommodate him.

However, a bank does not like to have the matter brought to it in this way, for it corresponds exactly with a strange buyer coming to this merchant and saying to him, "How much goods will you sell me?" Of course, if the buyer comes from a house of world reputation, there is practically no limit to the amount of goods which will be sold him, but if he is not so well known, the amount of goods which will be sold him will be dependent upon his standing with the trade from which he makes his purchases, his banks, and the community that knows him, his personal habits, and other data.

There is another side to this question. A bank might offer a merchant more than he could legitimately use in his business and the merchant might accept it, showing therein the same unwisdom as he would show if he overbought in goods.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DOCUMENT IN HISTORY.

The German Peace Treaty is recognized as the most important document in history—that is, in its effects on civilization. This treaty, just as it was signed, just as it reposes in the archives of the French republic, is printed word for word, together with the League of Nations covenant and the labor covenants, in August CURRENT HISTORY MAGAZINE. The same issue also contains the Polish Treaty, the French Treaty, and a survey of the important happenings in July on all nations. On news stands, 25 cents.—Advt.

GENERAL LUDENDORFF

THE KAISER
Whose Government Ludendorff Does Not Hesitate to Criticise.

German Effort to Dominate the World

This is the first time that a great and epoch-making book will appear FIRST through the columns of the daily press, and The World has procured it for its readers. The first part of this inside story of the war from the German side is here and is now being translated. The extraordinary revelations of Germany's greatest military leader will appear in The World in daily instalments of about 2,500 words each, beginning Wednesday, September 3rd. It will be the sensation of the year.

Do Not Miss This History-Making Feature Written Entirely by Ludendorff

Every Morning in THE WORLD, Beginning September 3rd

The German side of the war has been shrouded in mystery, and up to the present time no one who knows has spoken. Now Ludendorff—the man who conceived, planned and carried out the most colossal military campaigns and who directed the most stupendous military machine in the world's history—tells the whole story.

Shortly after the signing of the Armistice, General Ludendorff went to Sweden, taking with him a tremendous mass of records and a large staff of assistants. From these records and his own knowledge and experience, he, PERSONALLY, has produced this amazing document—one for which the whole world is waiting.

We know so much about our own defeats. Germany was so silent about hers that it seemed at times as if the balance of victory was all on her side. But Ludendorff discloses the real condition of Germany just before the war and gives credit and places blame where he believes it belongs. He tells also when and where the German plans miscarried and the military crises through which the Central Powers passed, all unknown to the allied world.

Ludendorff's story will be complete—the history of every great battle and campaign. It will not deal with disjointed events, but will lay bare, without fear or favor, the whole German side of the war. It will not be a justification, but a history for all time.

The German story of the First Battle of the Marne is sure to be a revelation. The German side of Ypres, Arras, the Aisne, Cambrai, Verdun, the Somme, the Russian, Italian and Rumanian campaigns will thrill the world as Ludendorff tells it.

No other great and compelling figure of the German military machine has survived. Von Hindenburg, von Kluck, von Falkenhayn, Mackensen were favorites of the moment and passed out. Ludendorff's star rose constantly higher and never set till the whole German scheme was smashed. He is the one big, outstanding genius of all Germany's campaigns.

This is the first time in the history of journalism that the first publication of so momentous a work has been obtained by a newspaper.

Ludendorff Says—

"IT WAS THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT'S FAULT GERMANY WAS DEFEATED."

"THE U-BOAT WARFARE WAS JUSTIFIED."

"THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT THOUGHT MORE OF MAKING PEACE THAN OF MAKING WAR."

"CHANCELLOR BETHMANN-HOLLWEG DID NOT BACK UP THE GERMAN ARMY CHIEFS."

"GERMANY'S SITUATION WAS SERIOUS FROM THE START; IT WAS CRITICAL LONG BEFORE SHE COLLAPSED IN 1918."

"AUSTRIA-HUNGARY WAS A BURDEN AND NOT A HELP TO GERMANY."

"BERNHARDI'S BOOK SHOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN WRITTEN."

Ludendorff's book is vital and stirring. It is an incomparably important war document. Written by the one man who towers above all others among the German war lords, the book is sure to rank as one of the greatest contributions to the literature of the world's hugest conflict.

THE BROTHERHOOD DEMANDS.

Capital and labor by co-operating for the full measure of production can maintain the present prosperity of the country's industries, can maintain wages at the prevailing high rate; and increased production is the one sure way to reduce the cost of living. It is in the power of capital alone or of labor alone to destroy prosperity and to compel not merely the reduction of wages by widespread unemployment, but loss of wages through the enforced closing down of industries.

The chiefs of the Railroad Brotherhoods have most unwisely taken a step the nature and certain effect of which we are sure they have not sufficiently considered, for the success of their design would entail consequences from which they and the country may well pray to be delivered. The reading of the proclamation of purpose in which they demand the Government ownership of the railroads convinces us that SAMUEL GOMPERS should be here, not in Amsterdam, for his wiser mind and experienced eye would have detected the fallacies and false teachings ingrafted upon the document, evidently by that insidious influence which for many years has been trying to wrest from him the control or guidance of organized labor in this country. The demand of the Brotherhoods is based upon the delusion that by operating the railroads "democratically" by a board of fifteen members, in which labor, the operating officials, and the public should have equal representation, increased efficiency would be assured, "enormous" savings effected, rates reduced, and "a share of the surplus at the end of each year" would be available for distribution among the wage earning force. Human experience disproves this assumption altogether, and our present disastrous venture in Government operation of the railroads trumpets forth a warning that all but the deafest ears have heard against any further experiments of that nature.

The plan of the Brotherhoods commits the railroads into the joint control of politics and labor. The Government-appointed members of the board would inevitably and at all times be most solicitous to placate the labor members, and the two elements together would control railway policies. The chiefs of the Brotherhoods may deceive themselves by the attempt at reasoning which they address to this point. They will not convince or deceive the public. Upon the great public of taxpayers would devolve the duty to make good the enormous deficit sure to accrue from the control of the lines in the interests of politics and labor, just as it falls upon them now. Instead of a billion or so a year, the cost assessed upon the taxpayers would rise to two or it may be to three billions a year, and for a service far inferior to that under private operation.

The Brotherhood chiefs seek the enforcement of their purpose through duress upon Congress and the country. They use the language of menace, as they did three years ago. They declare that "the employés are in no mood to "brook the return of the lines to their "former control." We are sure that on reflection they will see that these words are ill-advised. It is an occasion for candid counsel and not for threats; and the Government, capital, and the country were never in a mood to be more considerate of the interests and the just demands of labor. Besides, they will not win by truculence. It is untimely. The country has just held a practical referendum on this very question, and the answer is a thundering demand for the return of the lines to private operation. We are told that the Brotherhoods control two million votes. Well, if the Suffrage Amendment goes into effect in time, there will be thirty million voters in the United States at the next election. Make their two million votes six million and they will still be overwhelmingly beaten on this issue.

No party will be cowardly enough or reckless enough to invite disaster by yielding to this demand. Have the Brotherhoods forgotten that they very nearly elected a Republican President in 1916 by the course they took to force the eight-hour law to enactment? In August Mr. WILSON's election was sure. The Republican Party had been rent asunder by the Progressive division of 1912. That it would be reunited and elect its candidate was considered impossible. The threat of the Brotherhoods to paralyze the industries of the whole country by a strike, and the unheard-of audacity of the methods they adopted in their dealings with the President and with Congress, changed in a week the whole face and outlook of the campaign. In November, the great industrial States, Ohio excepted, cast their votes for Mr. HUGHES. After a period of harassing doubt, it was known that Mr. WILSON had been elected by the votes of California, where the blame for an unlooked-for result was put in part upon HIRAM JOHNSON and in part upon the blunders of the Republican management. A change of less than two thousand votes in that State would have defeated the party that yielded to the Brotherhoods and made the Adamson bill a law.

Party prudence and economic safety call now not for yieldings, but for the firmest resistance to the demand for running the railroads in the interest of a class at the cost of the whole people. There must be something more than that. The Brotherhoods may sincerely believe in the efficacy of their remedy. It must be demonstrated to them candidly and patiently that they have been badly advised, that the path they have chosen leads to disaster for them and for the country. We trust that the President, profiting by what we have always considered grave errors of judgment in the course he followed three years ago, will now use his powers of persuasion with the railway men to win them from the delusions that possess their minds. The executive and legislative departments are giving earnest consideration to the problems of living cost. That is the surest way to present relief. And the resolve of every American who works either with brain or hand to eschew the dangerous nostrums of socialism and to go about the task of restoring the economic balance by the hard toil of the greatest possible production is the only way to permanent welfare and happiness.

THE HIGHEST AMERICANISM.

It is the boast of the Republican opponents of the Treaty and the League covenant that they are "for America first." Senator WATSON of Indiana, in the course of his interview at the White House, "called Mr. WILSON an internationalist," an appellation the President declined to accept.

Mr. WILSON may well decline to be called an internationalist, for in seeking the application of the Peace Treaty and the establishment of the League of Nations he is doing more for America, for America first, than all the Republican Senators opposing the League will be able to do for their country even should they live to Biblical ages. We are profoundly interested in the welfare of our sister nations—none but the narrowest and most crabbed of the foes of the Treaty would deny that—but the League of Nations will be the great bulwark of our own peace and security. In proportion to our greatness as a nation, to the immensity of our interests, which would be imperiled by war, we are more deeply concerned than any other nation for the erection of this great safeguard of the world's peace.

If the League of Nations had existed in 1914 there would have been no war. For that war we raised an army of four million men. We sent over two million soldiers over the seas. The casualty lists of the War Department show that 34,000 American soldiers were killed in action, 13,000 died of wounds, 23,000 of disease, 5,000 by accident. There were 214,000 wounded. The Secretary of the Treasury, in a statement just issued, shows that by the 30th of next June, when the whole cost of the war will have been financed, we shall have a total public debt of twenty-six and a half billions; all but about one billion of that vast sum will be war debt. To these losses and burdens we must add the grave social and industrial disturbances due to war.

By rejecting the League covenant, or endangering its acceptance by all the nations, we expose the United States of America to a repetition of these calamities, we invite a recurrence of war with all its awful costs and disasters. President WILSON and the supporters of the League are zealously striving to secure for the whole world the blessings of assured peace, but to no other nation would the assurance of peace be a greater blessing. It means that we want to be left free to work out our national destiny undisturbed by the clash of arms, and the history of the last five years warns us that a resort to arms in any part of the world must compel us to take thought about our own responsibility, our own security.

The people of the United States ordained and established their Constitution not only to form a more perfect union, but to "establish justice, in"sure domestic tranquillity, provide "for the common defense, promote "the general welfare, and secure the "blessings of liberty to ourselves and "our posterity." Every one of these great ends will be served by the League of Nations. International in their scope, Mr. WILSON's labors in behalf of the League are intensely and in the very highest degree national and American.

JAPAN AND CHINA.

"I am at a loss to understand what "all this fuss about the Shantung set"tlement is about," says Dr. IYENAGA, in a speech marked by his wonted intelligence and moderation. There is an infinite deal of pretense and humbug in the passion and King Cambyses vein of the performers at Washington who rant about Japan's inheritance of German rights (or wrongs) in Shantung, seek to persuade the public, which knows better, that Kiao-Chau of the 200 square miles is Shantung of the 55,000 square miles, and so try to make "campaign material" against the League of Nations and Mr. WILSON, the unpardonable sin in Republican eyes.

Still, as Dr. IYENAGA candidly admits, the weak point in the Kiao-Chau award to Japan is that it is made "at the expense of a friendly nation." And Japan has promised to give it back. The pledge of restoration "has so many times been made by Japan's statesmen" at Paris and in Washington that he wonders "whether its reiteration at the present time would do any good."

Frankly, then, it is not reiteration of old or recent vague engagements, it is a sharp, clear, definite, unmistakable agreement, to be followed by specific performance, that will confute the enemies, real or shamming, of Japan, delight her friends of good judgment, and do a mighty lot of good here and in China.

OUR INDEMNITY.

A few covetous patriots are protesting against the President's policy of demanding no share of the German indemnity for America. There are Americans who have suffered loss at the hands of Germans, and the aggregate of their claims will run into the hundreds of millions. But it has been supposed that the German property seized here will be sufficient to settle them all.

These gentlemen who insist on getting a profit out of the war will not wait for this. We must get our share of the German indemnity, and a good and sufficient share. To be sure, everybody knew before Mr. BARUCH told us that the Germans would not be able to pay all the claims against them; that some of the reparations bill would have to be left unsettled. That is to say, there is not enough to go around. Every dollar of indemnity which came to America would be a dollar taken away from France or Belgium or Italy or Serbia, whose cities were destroyed, whose territory was devastated, whose movable property was carried off by German armies. The war was fought on the continent of Europe and not on the continent of North America; a nation which was spared the devastations of German invasion might afford to yield some of its claims in favor of the countries which were the theatre of war. But suggestions that we might do this are sniffed at by some patriots.

And there are others who suggest that we take our share of the indemnity and magnanimously hand it back to the Germans "to feed the starving women and children." This proposal, naturally, comes from those who during the war regarded with horror the spectacle of hungry women and children in Germany, but were left unmoved by German crimes in Belgium and France. From such sources a proposal to reduce the amount of the German indemnity at the expense of France and Belgium is intelligible. The mass of Americans, however, are not likely to feel much sympathy for the one group which insists that we must get all that is coming to us, even if we take it away from Belgium and Serbia, nor with the other which would like to have us act as Germany's receiver of stolen goods. Let the indemnity go to those who have suffered most. The just claims of American victims can be met in other ways.

THE STRIKE THAT FAILED.

It speaks well for the good sense of the London and the provincial British police that only a small percentage of them obeyed the orders of the direct action leaders of the Police Union to strike. The Chief Commissioner of Police tells the deserters that they are "now at the disposal of anybody who can find them jobs." The police authorities have never been weak in supporting discipline. It is the Government, tender and sensitive and yielding, as is the way of politicians to all "demands" made insistently enough in the too often desecrated name of "labor," that showed itself weak at first in its tolerance of a movement guided by Socialists, obscurely favored for sinister ends by revolutionists wishing to open the door to disorder, preached in Hyde Park by seditionists and anarchists. The Government, after the original police strike excitement, of which this later one is an attempted revival, did go so far as to make trial of the National Union of Police and Prison Officers, that strange amalgam, a combined strike of whose members would let disorder out of jail and lay the community open to all criminal and violent attacks. The executive officers of this union blandly promised not to tamper with discipline. Of course it was their main purpose to destroy that discipline, to make the police obey them, not its heads, not the Government.

Mr. SHORTT, the Home Secretary, told the House of Commons early in June that the Union Executive had broken its promises. Moreover, it was hand in glove with radical extremists, social revolutionists. Consequently, the Government would not allow policemen to belong to a trade union, but would establish an association of policemen. Meanwhile, grievances of the police were admitted and would be redressed. In fact, police pay has been increased, the increase going back to April. Policemen are to live near their posts. A modest annual payment will secure to a policeman at his retirement, or to his widow after his death, a definite sum in cash.

Not in police wages, pensions, or amelioration of conditions of service are those extremists, fomenters of social revolution, interested. They want to make the police subject to their commands, auxiliary to their attacks upon the industrial and political order.

No man has to be a policeman. If he consents to be one, his duty and responsibility must be to the public, represented by the police authorities, the municipality, or the State; and it is as intolerable that he should throw away that responsibility and duty at the order of an exterior leader or body as it would be if a fireman at a fire should strike because a union so directed him.

THE MAYOR AND TRANSFERS.

There was so much less opposition than had been expected to the charge for transfers to street car riders that their conduct was praiseworthy, and the Mayor's in particular. It is a duty to remark how Mayor HYLAN's wisdom and restraint shine in comparison with Mayor GAYNOR's on a similar occasion. Mayor GAYNOR, it will be remembered, counseled riders to make themselves on the spot their own judges of what was a lawful fare. Naturally there followed painful scenes of disorder. The Court of Appeals on that occasion unanimously decided that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company was right in the claims revived in the last few days that it could lawfully charge more than one nickel in many cases where it was giving transfers which were ruining it.

Nobody is to blame for not remembering that Mayor GAYNOR took the popular side of the question and the wrong side in both law and economics. Under the transfer system of that time it was possible to ride fourteen hours for 10 cents. In 1868 a nickel ride was one mile. In 1872 the average ride was two miles, in 1888 three miles, in 1898 eight miles, in 1910 twelve miles, and all over five miles were a loss. The comfort and cost of rides have increased with the length, and transfers rose from 2,000,000, when the record began, to 194,765,342 when it was decided that the burden was intolerable. A trifle over half the riders were on transfers, and the nickel had shrunk to 3.29 cents. There was then a series of bankruptcies, and the reorganizations of that time have been followed by others. Yet there are still those who doubt that the companies have cause to resent the burdens put on them or that their statements are made in good faith.

The reason for recalling this ancient history is to praise Mayor HYLAN's advice that fare-payers should trust the courts and take to them their grievance, of whatever nature. That is worthy of an official sworn to execute the law. Those who have dissented from some of Mayor HYLAN's acts and advice are with him on this issue. Together with him they will abide the decision of the law as to which is the better of differing opinions about what fares ought to be or what the law makes the fares.

No doubt the Mayor is aware of the Gaynor incident, and his action presumably is based upon the danger of being on the wrong side. The law-abiding conduct of those who paid for their transfers cannot be explained in that manner, for it would be surprising if one in a thousand knew of it. What the incident shows is that the people are fair on the fare question. There has not been a tithe of the trouble this year that there was in Mayor GAYNOR's time, for no other apparent reason than that those who pay their pennies for transfers have learned that they get the worth of their money and appreciate that if they do not pay for what they get they will lose it.

THE NEW GERMAN ARMY.

General BERNHARDI is a person of infinite variety. On one and the same day he tells an interviewer from The Sun that the next great war must be between America and England, with Germany a disinterested looker-on, and writes to a correspondent of The World that Germany is getting ready to turn upon France and England when her time comes and pay them back for the humiliating peace terms. And to BERNHARDI all this is logical and reasonable enough, for he is a person who is likely to see bloody war in prospect wherever he turns his eyes. His prediction of an Anglo-American conflict we may regard without much perturbation. He is undoubtedly sincere in regarding this as a historical necessity of the future and in assuring the interviewer that he was not saying it to make trouble. A gentleman of his turn of mind cannot conceive the possibility of friendship between two great commercial nations. We can leave this Bernhardian judgment to history.

When he speaks of the German revanche of the future he speaks, beyond doubt, for all the old military class. Time will tell how deeply this spirit has affected the industrial, intellectual, and wage-earning classes of the German people; and the history of the twentieth century may largely turn on the extent of this feeling in Germany. The thing which deserves consideration now is the preparation which Germany is already making for the next war, and we have evidence as to this from the Military Intelligence Office of the American occupation forces on the Rhine. The Peace Treaty was explicit in its requirement that the German Army must be reduced to 100,000 men; it would not tolerate the possible evasion through such media as rifle clubs and school cadet corps. But now the enterprising NOSKE is organizing a home guard all over Germany, a force of hundreds of thousands of men, which could be called into service as rapidly as any reservists of old; as well as a State police of other hundreds of thousands—veterans living in barracks, ready for service on instant notice.

The excuse is that these troops are police reserves, under the jurisdiction of local authorities, and organized solely to keep down the long-lived Spartacus. For the moment this may indeed be the purpose, as is suggested by NOSKE's instructions to admit no members who are not wholly in sympathy with the present Government. But NOSKE himself admits that care is to be taken to avoid arousing the suspicions of the Allies, to get around the provisions of the Treaty with as little publicity as possible. Military organizations are to be "civilized" and turned over to the new force, and its rank and file is to be composed of veterans.

Here is a new German army in the making; while it exists there can be no very complete disarmament in France. Perhaps the threat of cutting off Germany's food supplies might bring NOSKE to terms; if he is allowed to complete the organization of this innocent reserve, the Germans will have a weapon ready which can be flung on a few days' notice at any neighbor incautious enough to think that the serpent's fangs will not grow again.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Reasons Remain Conclusive.

Every word that President WILSON wrote about daylight saving when he vetoed the Agricultural Appropriation bill applies with equal force to the separate bill that has for its object the repeal then attempted by means of a "rider." It should be remembered by those who are wondering what he will do with the bill now in his hands that in his veto of the other measure he recognized the seriousness of the inconveniences to be caused by delaying much-needed and entirely proper appropriations for the Agricultural Department, but he expressed in vigorous language his belief that these inconveniences, serious as they were, could be better borne by the country at large than could the losses and injuries sure to be suffered if the daylight saving plan were abandoned.

He then reminded Congress that there was nothing hasty or experimental in the adoption of the plan. It had been thoroughly tested for several years abroad, and for one year here, and the demand for setting back the country's clocks in Summer had been based on careful consideration of all the questions involved. "It resulted," the President wrote, "in very great economies of fuel and a substantial economy of energy." His conclusion was that "it served the daily conveniences of the many communities of the country in a way which gave all but universal satisfaction, and the overwhelming testimony of its value which has come to me convinces me that I should not be justified in acquiescing in its repeal."

The testimony that then was "overwhelming" has lost nothing of its force, and while the repeal of the daylight saving law as now attempted, viewed as a legislative procedure, is not open to the same sort of condemnation as was the effort to do it by means of an irrelevant rider on a great appropriation bill, the repeal itself, if accomplished, will injure national interests to precisely the same degree and is equally reprehensible.

Another Veto Demanded.

As the arguments and facts that compelled the President to take his original stand in favor of daylight saving still retain all their force and weight, it is to be expected that he will veto the separate repealing bill as promptly as he did the repealing rider. Possibly in both houses of Congress the mysterious powers that demand the ignoring or defying of what undoubtedly is a demand from a large majority of the country's inhabitants are influential enough to bring about a veto of the second veto by a two-thirds vote against it. To do that, however, will take a good deal of courage, or rather of audacity, now that nobody has the excuse of wanting to save a really important bill carrying appropriations immediately needed, and, just as the recent threats to insist on the retention of the tricky rider were not carried out, so the determination now expressed by some of the statesmen to kill daylight saving in spite of the President's action may come to nothing.

Whether it does or not the fact that the President has expressed his opinion of daylight saving and can have no reason for changing it is enough to warrant expectation of another veto, and after that responsibility for what happens will not be his.

A Scandal Promptly Ended.

When Lieutenant ELLERT pleaded guilty to six of the fifty-one charges made against him, and in effect confessed that they were all true, the navy had earned sincere congratulations on the way in which it had handled one of the most deplorable little scandals that ever arose to trouble it.

ELLERT and the associates in his sordid little conspiracy, who have already been convicted and sentenced, showed themselves utterly without appreciation of the responsibilities they had assumed, and to fill their pockets with petty bribes they had not hesitated to betray the trust with which their country had honored them. Of course they are no worse, really, than are the miserable slackers or more miserable cowards to whom they sold "bombproof" positions in the service, while better men risked their lives in the nation's defense, but that is another side of the problem, and in due time, presumably, it will receive the attention it deserves.

Meanwhile, the navy can be commended for the promptitude with which it discovered what was going on in the Third District, the carefulness and thoroughness with which it investigated all phases of the corrupt tactics, and the frankness with which it made known all the facts in the case. A scandal, so treated, ceases to affect either the character or the reputation of the navy, for the guilt revealed becomes personal, not institutional or departmental, as it does when attempts at concealment of abuses are made.

Comparing Peace and War.

When Mr. HOOVER mentioned in a recent speech as among the world's great needs at this time "a revival of the spirit that won the war," he suggested consideration of a curious and possibly somewhat disquieting phenomenon. For he implied that the war has power to arouse sentiments and devotions and unselfishnesses that tend to disappear in peace, and, however reluctant we may be to ascribe any superiority to war over peace, who can doubt that the world today would be not only safer, but very appreciably better, if the spirit that won the war could be revived?

While the war was on, sacrifices were made willingly, and even gladly; readiness to suffer, and if need be to die, in a good cause was an almost universal characteristic, and if self-interest received consideration it was the higher form of self-interest that sought advantage only as a part of the general welfare.

Little, or at any rate less, of all that is to be seen now. People and nations have become individualists again, politics has degenerated far toward mere partisan fealty, and oftener in all countries is heard the cry, "What can we get?" than that of "What can we do?"

It is to be noticed that what Mr. HOOVER praised was not war, but the spirit that won the war. Everybody except the pacifists can join him in doing that, and without claiming that war is better than peace, either.

A Correction from Mr. Malone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of Saturday published an unintentional misstatement that a judgment had been taken against me of $89 for a "board bill at Paul Smith's, N. Y." I have never boarded at Paul Smith's and owe no such bill.

A year and a half ago an acquaintance made me his guest with the use of his camp and servants in the Adirondacks for a short vacation. Soon after, my host suffered financial reverses and left New York. Months later an attempt was made to collect from me a bill of expenses incurred in running the camp during my visit. As a guest I was neither legally nor morally responsible for the bill, but last May, wishing to close the matter, I sent my check for the bill rendered. However, I have refused and shall continue to refuse to yield to an unwarranted attempt to collect interest from me on the above bill.

I realize that this personal matter of mine is of no public interest, but, in view of the erroneous statement printed, I am sure THE TIMES will grant me the courtesy of a correction. DUDLEY FIELD MALONE.

The Death of Richard Epstein.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The brief notice in your columns of the death of Richard Epstein—very probably written at a late hour—scarcely does justice to one of the finest pianists and soundest musicians of his time. I write this with the greatest freedom, as I was personally unacquainted with him, and knew him only by his work in this and other countries, where I have heard him play on many occasions.

An almost flawless technique, perfect balance, and fine sanity were the principal characteristics of his playing, while he rarely missed the spiritual and emotional values of the music he interpreted. As a soloist he might have continued to rank with the highest had he not given most of his time to teaching and ensemble work, his playing with such an organization as the Elschuco Trio being exquisite. He was also that very rare creature, a perfect accompanist. His loss to music is considerable, and I cannot refrain from placing my own view of Richard Epstein's merits on record.

Croats and Serbs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot pass without reply the letter that Othmar Schmidt wrote in your today's paper. Besides that, I find it pitiful to see brothers, after four years' common effort and common suffering, attacking each other for reasons of imaginary prerogatives. I think also that a higher cultured man will always help his lower cultured surroundings to a higher level, instead of stepping down to their lower level. So, no fear for Croatian culture when associated with Serbian.

But what Mr. Schmidt should remember, above all, is this, that "concordia parvae res crescunt, discordia maximae dilabuntur." Let Mr. Schmidt do serious work for the reconstruction of our poor, suffering country and he will have no time to create discord between brothers.

CHILDREN OF THE CITY STREET

Ye children of the city street,
Who run to me with laughing cry,
Who run to me as I pass by,
And pluck my dress with courage fleet,
Then hang your heads, abashed and shy;
Ye children of the swarming way,
Whose world is dark and pinched and gray,
My heart beats quicker when you smile,
And walk with me a little while.

Pale blossoms, choked 'twixt brier and stone,
You reach to me as I pass by,
You reach to me, I know not why,
Who neither bairn nor flower have known;
For you I'd pillage God's blue sky—
The perfumed air, the golden sun,
The myriad stars—aye, every one
I'd give to you, ye bitter-sweet,
Who bloom and wither in the street.

Oh, children of the cruel street,
So helpless and ashamed am I,
So weak to answer to your cry;
Though bread I bring, or drink, or meat,
I bring no light from God's blue sky;
Ye children of the swarming way,
Whose life is starved and gloomy gray,
You stab me when you love and smile
And walk with me a little while.

AUGUSTA KORTRECHT.

TO CONTEST LAND BILL.

Minority Report Assails the Proposed $500,000,000 Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Mondell bill, which is intended to stimulate a back-to-the-land movement among soldiers, will cause a lively fight when it reaches the House of Representatives. The bill, introduced by the Republican floor leader, establishes a "national soldiers' settlement fund" of $500,000,000, with which the Secretary of the Interior would buy tracts of land to be improved and reclaimed by naval and military veterans of the world war, and upon which they would afterward take up farms. The bill was reported last week.

Nine Republicans and seven Democratic members of the Public Lands Committee reported the bill favorably. The remaining four members, Messrs. Snell of New York, Nichols of Michigan, White of Kansas, and Benham of Indiana, all Republicans, have submitted a report, declaring the bill unjust to "millions" of men who fought in the war, and really "a great reclamation project," which would chiefly benefit private persons. These contentions will furnish the argument for the opposition.

The minority report asserts that the fears of Secretary Lane six months ago that millions of soldiers would find themselves out of employment has not been realised. "Some economic phenomena have occurred," says the report, "and three-quarters of the soldiers have returned to civil life, and there is a shortage of labor in the cities and on the farms. Therefore," say the minority signers, "the need for the bill has passed." The report says: "We have witnessed the complete collapse of the contention that the Government will have to give work to any great percentage of soldiers in order that they may not suffer by being out of employment."

The report goes on:

"The testimony of the proponents of the bill shows that the scheme which was originally to provide employment for soldiers has become a great reclamation project. But such a colossal plan for reclamation of lands would never have been seriously considered had it not been possible to link the name of the soldier with it. And soon the inevitable selfish interests appeared. Men who have much to gain in the upbuilding of certain localities began to talk about 'helping the soldier,' the while they labored industriously in behalf of this bill which proposes not to reclaim public lands only but for the most part that the Government shall buy the land that they shall afterwards reclaim and sell to the soldier. A publicity agent was put to work spreading propaganda all over the country. With every member of Congress favorable to the enactment of some legislation for the soldiers' welfare, an agent was employed by the Southern Settlement and Development Company.

"With brazenness amounting almost to effrontery, this press agent attended all open meetings of the committee, and then gave to the papers of the country glowing accounts of what was claimed to be the beneficial provisions of this measure for the soldier. This press agent was not employed by the soldiers who were supposed to benefit by this legislation, nor by the Department of the Interior, so that there is a natural conclusion that private interests had something at stake."

"The late President Theodore Roosevelt advocated the soldier settlement policy, as proposed by Secretary Lane, in the last article which he wrote for the press. President Wilson has urged it upon Congress in two messages. The Governors of twenty-seven States have appointed commissions to co-operate with the Secretary of the Interior, and all of these commissions have expressed their earnest interest in legislation of this character.

"The most vital question that can be asked in regard to this policy is this: Does the soldier want it? The answer is: He does. The American Legion has officially indorsed the bill, after a consideration of its provisions. Up to the present writing 112,088 soldiers have made formal application for opportunities of employment and home getting under the terms of this bill. The number, which is increasing every day, ranges all the way from 6,732 in Illinois to 860 in Delaware."

WHEELER REPLIES TO ROOT

Anti-Saloon League Counsel Holds Volstead Act Is Constitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The statement by Elihu Root and others of counsel for the National Brewers' Association that the Volstead prohibition enforcement act was unconstitutional was denounced today by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America. He characterized as a "scarecrow" the talk about the Anti-Saloon forces being connected with a campaign against the use of tobacco.

"Congress has the same power to enact a war prohibition enforcement code that it had to enact the original law," said Mr. Wheeler. "The authority to enact the war prohibition law rests on the provisions in the Constitution which gives Congress power to support the army and navy. This power and obligation extend through demobilization. The courts have so held. Congress evidently intended to prohibit all beer and wine in the original act. Some of the courts hold the act does this. Others hold differently. Congress is simply trying to make clear the intention of the original act.

"It is now well settled by the Supreme Court that if Congress has power to enact a law it has also the power to enact additional legislation to make the original act effective and enforceable. To define the term intoxicating liquor is necessary to make the act enforceable, especially where courts have defeated its purpose by construction.

"War prohibition and the code to enforce it are authorized acts. Congress may repeal the original act or refuse to pass the code, or the President may declare demobilization complete when the war officially ends. This is the only legal way to prevent the enforcement of the act. The gap between the end of war prohibition and permanent prohibition may be closed by a prohibitive tax. Congress has undoubted power to enact such a law.

"The anti-tobacco scarecrow of the Anti-Prohibition Association does not fool anyone. The Anti-Saloon League forces have no intention to start this crusade. The tobacco habit may be a private or personal bad habit, but it is not in the same class as intoxicating liquor, which is a public nuisance."

TO RUN AGAINST ROOSEVELT

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 3.—After several unsuccessful meetings the Democrats of Nassau County obtained a candidate today to run against Theodore Roosevelt as Assemblyman. Elias Raff, a lawyer of Sea Cliff, is to be his opponent.

Thomas H. O'Keefe, Democratic leader of Nassau and head of the Oyster Bay delegation, urged the convention to indorse Roosevelt. Delegates from North Hempstead opposed this, and for two weeks have endeavored to get a candidate. Every one who was approached declined, till this afternoon at a meeting in Mineola Mr. Raff consented to run, and the Oyster Bay delegates indorsed him. The Assembly district is normally about 1,500 Republican.

250 MILES OF DECORATIONS.

Service Ribbon Ordered for 8,000,000 British Men and Women.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—More than 250 miles of colored ribbon is to be given away by the British Government. It is a golden ribbon edged with blue and white stripes that goes with the medal for general service in the great war.

It has been awarded to all that served, whether men or women, and as there are over 8,000,000 of them and each is to get two inches, as a preliminary issue, the Government order will reach this stupendous total.

TEN JUDGES DECIDE 2.75 BEER IS LEGAL

Anti-Wartime Prohibition Forces Survey Court Decisions Throughout Country.

CLAIM VICTORY IN COURTS

Only One Judge, They Assert, Holds That the Present Law Forbids Non-Intoxicating Beer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—So many different cities are meeting the wartime prohibition restrictions in so many different ways that a survey of the situation has been made by the anti-wartime prohibition forces in order to set before the country the facts in regard to the decisions which have been made in various Federal court jurisdictions. They claim a preponderance of legal sentiment against the jailing of a citizen under the present law, for the sale of 2.75 beer, which is still being sold in New York and other large wet communities as well as in a majority of the smaller wet centres. Here is the finding:

"Fourteen United States Judges have dealt with this question. Ten of them have held that the statute does not forbid non-intoxicating beer. One Judge has held that the statute does forbid non-intoxicating beer; a second Judge has held that while it prohibits only intoxicating beer, anything which is called beer must be assumed to be intoxicating. The remaining Judges have rendered decisions on the question of pleading, and on the main question involved have taken a neutral position because they state it was not their duty to decide that question at the particular stage which the proceedings had reached when they were required to make a decision."

"The first decision on the subject was rendered by Judge A. N. Hand of New York on May 17," declare the anti... "After a careful review of the legal authorities and a thorough discussion of the question involved, Judge Hand reached the conclusion that the wartime prohibition act was intended to prohibit only such liquors as are in fact intoxicating, and actually did prohibit only such liquors.

"In the course of the proceedings in the same cases the matter came up before another United States Judge in New York City, Judge Mayer. After argument before him he gave the complainant brewing companies a temporary injunction against the Government on the ground that the statute forbade only beer which was intoxicating, and that the proofs submitted to the Court by the complainants on the preliminary hearing were sufficient to justify the preliminary finding that beer containing not in excess of 2.75 per cent. of alcohol by weight is not intoxicating.

"Thereafter the Government appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Three United States Judges heard the case and rendered opinions. The unanimous conclusion was that the wartime prohibition act prohibited only intoxicating liquors, and that beer which is not intoxicating in fact, was not prohibited by that statute.

"A sixth judge came to the same conclusion. This was Judge Rose of Baltimore who made the first decision in a criminal case involving this question. Judge Rose reached the same decision as the five New York judges. In the course of his decision, he said:

"'Five of the judges of the Second Circuit have each expressed the opinion that it (the wartime prohibition act) has no relation to anything which is not intoxicating. I have profound respect for their opinions not only because they are judges, but because they are unusually able men.'

"The seventh United States judge who reached the same conclusion in the construction of the statute was Judge Anderson of Boston.

"The United States District Judge in New Orleans was the eighth United States Judge to come to this conclusion. The ninth Judge, who was Judge Brown of Providence, R. I., also held that the wartime prohibition act does not forbid non-intoxicating beer. The tenth similar decision was by Judge Sawtelle of San Francisco.

"Five of the above-mentioned judges were dealing with criminal cases, in which the United States Government filed informations or indictments charging that the defendant had manufactured beer. In none of these cases did the United States allege in its indictment or information that the beer which was involved in the case was intoxicating beer. The same was true in four other cases in which decisions have been rendered by United States Judges.

"The result in the other four cases was different, and in two of those other four cases the decision was based expressly on the question of pleading. These two cases were brought in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. The Pittsburgh decision was by Judge Thomson, and was followed by the Philadelphia decision, handed down by Judge Dickinson. He states expressly that he is following the decision of Judge Thomson and his reasons, and therefore reference to Judge Dickinson's decision will explain both his decision and the decision of Judge Thomson of Pittsburgh. Judge Dickinson refers again and again in his opinion to the fact that the case is really one for advising both the Government and the defendants as to the meaning of the statute, and he says that he does not deem it the duty of the court, under existing circumstances, to perform such a function.

"Of the two remaining decisions, one is by Judge Chatfield rendered in a criminal case in New Haven. He states in the course of his opinion that he desires to follow the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, but in spite of what he says his decision is squarely opposed to theirs. The New York Judges squarely held that the statute does not apply to beer which is not intoxicating in fact. Judge Chatfield said that, even though this is correct, it must be assumed that anything which is called beer is an intoxicating liquor.

"Finally there is a decision by Judge Page of Chicago, handed down on July 25. He takes the position squarely contrary to the decision of the New York Judges and the Judges of the four other districts, and finds that the statute prohibits any kind of beer."

CAILLAUX SEEKS LETTERS.

Counsel Asks for Correspondence Between Becker and Jusserand.

PARIS, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Replying to a petition made to Premier Clemenceau by counsel for Joseph Caillaux, a former Premier of France, who is charged with intrigue to bring about a premature and dishonorable peace with Germany, that letters passing between Deputy Attorney General Becker of New York State and M. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States, be incorporated in the Caillaux dossier, Edouard Ignace, Under Secretary for Military Justice and Pensions, declared that all documents he had received concerning the case had been handed over to the court.

The Under Secretary adds that the Becker-Jusserand correspondence has not reached him, but that it is open to the petitioners to apply for its production by legal means.

UNDERWOOD FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT

SENDS WORD HE IS ILL

Case Set for Thursday, When He Promises to be on Hand to Fight Test Action.

Frederick D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad, who caused himself to be arrested Saturday, on a charge of disorderly conduct, to vindicate the principle that a person who has a round-trip ticket to Staten Island may stay on the ferryboat until the round trip is completed, failed to appear when his case was called by Magistrate William H. Croak in the Staten Island Court yesterday.

The Magistrate ordered the bail of $500, furnished by Thomas R. McGinley, a local undertaker and Democratic leader, to be forfeited. McGinley had furnished the bail when asked to come to the relief of the railroad President, although he did not know him personally. The undertaker was somewhat disturbed when he learned the fate of his investment, and much running around and telephoning resulted.

Later, while the court was still in session, Arthur M. Simonson, a lawyer, arrived in an automobile and rushed into the courtroom. He said he had been in communication with Mr. Underwood, and had learned that the Erie President could not appear because he was sick. The Magistrate revoked the order forfeiting the bail and set the case for Thursday morning.

Mr. Simonson said Mr. Underwood would appear at that time to fight for the right to ride to Staten Island and return without having to leave the boat at the other end and risk losing his seat. It was asserted that Mr. Underwood likes to ride on the ferries and that his only object is to establish the right to enjoy this recreation without having to disembark and re-embark. It was said that Thursday he will be accompanied by John B. Stanchfield.

The complainant against Mr. Underwood is Daniel Murphy, a deckhand. The complaint recites that Mr. Underwood delayed the ferryboat seven minutes by his refusal to get off the boat and that this delay and "nuisance" amounted to disorderly conduct.

Pleasure seekers formerly rode back and forth on the Staten Island Ferry without getting off, but the practice was abandoned because of the complaints of commuters that they could not get seats because of the crowds using the ferryboats as pleasure craft.

EARLY ARCHITECTURE.

As an example of early American architecture, the beautiful entrance porch to the Bristol House, New Haven, Conn., a gift to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Cass Gilbert, has been placed on exhibition in the Recent Accessions Room of the Museum, where it will remain through August. The Bristol House from which the porch was taken, was built by David Hoadley, of whose work many examples are to be found in New Haven and Middlesex Counties. The architect was born in Waterbury in 1775 and died there in 1839. The house was built in 1800-1803.

The porch is a large one, broad and high, with a pointed roof and two columns at the front, each with twenty-four flutes, surmounted by simple, delicately carved Scamozzi capitals. Hoadley entered his profession by way of the crafts, being a carpenter and builder. Nothing is known of his education, but his work shows his understanding of the canons of good architectural design.

Three different woods are used in the porch, probably from convenience—ash for the columns, pine for the entablature and black walnut for the framework for the door. It was painted, probably white, in its early days.

In the Recent Accessions Room there is also to be found this month an interesting bust of Herodotus, second century A. D. It is interesting in itself as one of the six known portrait busts of the Greek historian, and also for having what Director Edward Robinson of the Museum calls an inside history, as it was recently rediscovered in the Museum itself. The bust was presented to the Museum by George F. Baker, now a trustee, in 1891, secured for him that year by the late Emil Brugsch Bey.

It had been found shortly before at Bersha in Lower Egypt, and the Museum authorities have found traces of Nile mud in the waving hair.

Much interest is manifest in the summer loan exhibit at the Museum. In the last two weeks it has had some 1,000 visitors.

PARDON THIS DESERTER.

Many Who Won Honor with Canadians Restored to Army Here.

CAMP DIX, Burlington, N. J., Aug. 1—Four years ago, when it appeared as though the United States would not get into the war, Private John E. Shea of the 30th Infantry deserted his regiment, crossed the Canadian line, and joined the 60th Canadian Battalion and went overseas with that organization. The Government officials of the United States, not knowing of this, reported Shea a deserter, and had been looking for him since.

A few days ago Shea was discharged from a Canadian contingent and surrendered to the officials here, expecting to be court-martialed, but friends had interceded the officials at Washington in his case, and Major Gen. Hale, in charge of the camp, informed him that orders had been received to restore him to "good standing" in the army, because of his fine record with the Canadian soldiers. He is now a private in Company B, 50th Infantry, the Post Garrison.

After going overseas with the 60th Canadian men, Shea was transferred to the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and saw it in the fighting in Northern France and Belgium, winning a lieutenant's commission. He was commended for bravery by Canadian officers, after he had been gassed five times and been wounded in the knee in action.

TO TAKE ROCKEFELLER GIFT.

Mayor Said to Have Changed His Mind as to Hospital Buildings.

When the Board of Estimate meets on Tuesday it will reconsider the offer made by the Rockefeller Foundation to give free to the city the hospital buildings on the upper east side which it used during the war and which gift was refused by Mayor Hylan at the last meeting of the board. At the former meeting of the board twelve votes were necessary to accept the gift, while those in favor of the proposal could muster only ten votes. Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland strongly urged the board to accept the buildings as he wanted them removed to Warwick, N. Y., to be used as a hospital for drug addicts. When the matter comes up again only nine votes will be required to put through the plan, which carries an appropriation with it.

Mayor Hylan is said to have changed his opinion regarding the proposed gift and to be in favor of it now. One reason given for the Mayor's change of sentiment is the protest which has arisen in the Bronx over the proposal of Health Commissioner Copeland to use the buildings of the Pelham Bay Naval Station at Pelham Bay Park as a hospital for drug addicts. The Health Commissioner said that $50,000 was necessary to put these buildings in shape for use as a hospital. When the suggestion to use the buildings as a drug addict hospital first came up, residents of the Bronx made many protests. A mass meeting to continue these protests is scheduled for this evening, and many organizations of the borough will appear at the Board of Estimate meeting to urge that no hospital be established there.

UPHOLDS GIRL'S CONVICTION

Magistrate Declares Evidence Warranted Sentence He Imposed.

Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso issued a statement yesterday defending his action in the case of Helen Edwards of Los Angeles, whose acquittal by a jury in General Sessions last week on a retrial of a charge of vagrancy evoked caustic comment from Judge McIntyre on the manner in which the Magistrate's Courts accepted uncorroborated testimony. The verdict in this case was followed by an announcement from the foreman of the jury that the members believed the law should be changed so as not to allow a woman to be convicted on the testimony of one policeman. In his statement the Magistrate declared that evidence before him warranted the woman's conviction.

"Much has been said," the Magistrate said, "about convicting women charged with these offenses on the uncorroborated testimony of the police officers. There is nothing in the law at the present time which provides otherwise, and until the laws are changed, a Judge must interpret and enforce these laws as they exist on the statute books. In the greater majority of cases of this nature the officers are the only persons present, and to say that a conviction cannot be had on the unsupported testimony of the police officer would be folly and ridiculous. Thousands of women have been convicted on testimony similar and even weaker than that offered in the Edwards case, and hundreds of convictions upheld by the higher courts."

Magistrate Mancuso denied a statement appearing in a morning newspaper that at a meeting of Magistrates it was decided that he would not sit in the Woman's Court longer. He asserted that no such meeting had been held and that he would continue to preside in this court.

DENIES 'DRY' LEAGUE WILL FIGHT TOBACCO

Anti-Saloon Leader Says Its Program Will Not Permit It to Take Part.

HAS BEGUN WORK ABROAD

Agents Now in England, Mexico, and Other Countries — Home Enforcement a Problem.

Andrew B. Wood, Assistant Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, denied yesterday that that organization would take part in any movement to prohibit the use of tobacco. He said the campaigns mapped out by the league to bring about prohibition in other countries and to enforce prohibition in the United States were completely absorbing the energies of the league.

"They have been saying that we plan to attack hot bread, tea and coffee, tobacco and other things," he said, "but this is merely a trick to stir up resentment against the league. We are fighting only one thing, and that is 'booze.' The people have had time to find out by now that we are not bolstering up any other movements. I understand that the W. C. T. U. and perhaps some other organizations are getting ready to fight tobacco.

"When we take our law enforcement programs in this country and our programs abroad, where we are assisting local and national organizations, who invite our aid, we have all we can do, and have no intention of scattering our attack.

"We are sending experts to help fight liquor in all countries that call for our help. We are taking an active part in the World League Against Alcoholism, composed of representatives of France, England, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Japan, Sweden, Mexico, and other countries, including several in South America. We have sent representatives to England, Scotland, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, and elsewhere.

"William E. Johnson, spoken of in dispatches from London as 'Pussyfoot' Johnson, is in London. He got his nickname while in the Government service, enforcing liquor laws among the Indians. He has been visiting many parts of England, and he reports that while the situation is a little more difficult there than here, still there is a strong and growing prohibition sentiment, especially since the war.

"Sweden is considering absolute prohibition, and it will probably arrive there sooner than any other nation in Europe. Diplomatic pressure from France, at the instance of the French wine trade, is the only obstacle at present, but that will be overcome.

"J. M. Farley, a national representative of our league, is working in Mexico City, with two other representatives. They report a strong feeling in favor of prohibition. Within the last year three States have gone dry.

"We have a big work before us in the enforcement problem in this country. President Wilson made a mistake in recommending to Congress the repeal of the War Prohibition act, but his attitude since Congress refused to act has been correct, according to our view.

"As for the failure of the authorities to enforce the present Prohibition act, we have felt all along that it was difficult to accomplish much without legislation or court definitions. We have not seen the advantage of interesting ourselves in litigation, when an act of the President at any time might allow resumption of the sale of liquor until next January. The lax enforcement of the law proves the need for drastic legislation to make prohibition effective."

Four Vacancies on Board of Governors to Be Filled by Women.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 3.—Tomorrow marks the annual meeting of the Newport Casino Corporation, which will be one of the most important in its history, in view of the resignation of Henry A. C. Taylor, many years Chairman of the Executive Committee, who declines to serve longer.

Among those mentioned for the places are Mrs. Vincent Astor, Miss Ruth Twombly, Mrs. Barger Wallach, Mrs. Daniel S. Fearing, and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer.

A bridge tournament will be held in the tea rooms of the Newport Country Club Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the children's clinic of the Newport Hospital, which has a Summer camp on Ocean Avenue, in which the Summer residents have shown great interest. The prizes will be presented by Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia.

Not in years has there been so many golfers on the links of the Newport Country Club and others attending tea in the club house, or as many registrations as the books show from last Saturday to this afternoon.

The Tombstone handicap golf tournament for prizes by Mrs. Ward Douglas was won by Miss Florence J. Loew, Saturday's debutante, and Austen Gray.

Among those registered from New York are George M. Woolsey, stopping with Governor and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman; Henry Whitehouse and F. W. Ripley, visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Registered at Bailley's Beach are Miss Frazer of Cleveland, visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Grosvenor; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus F. Kountze, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Russell of New York, stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor; Captain R. R. Glen of the British Embassy; Henry Whitehouse and daughter, stopping at the New Cliffs.

IN TRIBUTE TO HAMMERSTEIN

John McCormack Offers to Sing at Impresario's Funeral.

John McCormack will sing at the funeral of Oscar Hammerstein today, it was announced last night by Arthur Hammerstein, who said that Mr. McCormack desired to show by his appearance something of the gratitude and friendship he felt for the impresario. The singer was one of those who were associated with Mr. Hammerstein in the heyday of the Manhattan Opera House.

Many persons went to Campbell's Funeral Church, at Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway, yesterday, to view the body and letters and telegrams continued to pour in upon the family. Although no definite plans were announced, it was said that those who had been closest to Mr. Hammerstein were carrying on the discussion of a suitable memorial to him. The proposal of a memorial is reported to have been made first by Morris Gest, who suggested the erection of a building or a monument in Times Square, and others have indorsed the idea as fitting and practicable.

There will be a large gathering of theatrical and operatic notables at the public funeral services which will be held in the Temple Emanu-El at 11 o'clock this morning, conducted by Rabbi Joseph Silverman.

As announced the honorary pallbearers will be Lee Shubert, Abraham L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw, David Belasco, George M. Cohan, Al Woods, William A. Brady, J. J. Shubert, Morris Gest, Percy G. Williams, Lyle D. Andrews, and Henry Rosenberg.

Legislature attempts to relieve Housing situation ~ Passes Bill To Allow One Family Houses to be Remodeled to hold Four (see page 823 of Real Estate Record ~ Builders Guide)
ELECTRIC SERVICE ALSO HELPS
WHEN the amendment to the Tenement House Law made permissible the alteration of four story and basement houses to hold four families instead of one, electric service was the most important improvement which owners installed.
Without electricity the high class of tenants attracted to these altered residences would not have been obtained, for these people were attracted to the comforts and conveniences of wired buildings.
As if by magic electric service brings to the interior of the most venerable dwelling an atmosphere at once modern, cheerful and attractive. It puts the building in a different class, on a par with the most modern of houses. And then it costs so little to install.
That is how electric service is helping to relieve the housing situation, by attracting the high class of tenants which the owners of these altered dwellings must obtain.
A postal card or telephone request (Stuyvesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. And if the investment involves a greater immediate expenditure than is convenient, we may be able to arrange terms.

YANKEES' OWNERS NOTIFY JOHNSON THEY WILL CARRY MAYS CASE INTO COURT

OWNERS OF YANKS TO ENJOIN JOHNSON

REFUSE TO ATTEND MEETING

Big Baseball Battle Precipitated by Ban's Belated Action Against Former Boston Pitcher.

Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Lieut. Col. T. L. Huston, owners of the New York Yankees, have declared open warfare upon Ban Johnson, President of the American League, and today the famous case of Pitcher Carl Mays will go into the civil courts. Unless Johnson changes his stand in regard to the pitcher the battle will be carried to the bitter end, as the New York owners do not intend to let up in their fight until they get the action which they feel is their due.

Johnson arrived in New York yesterday afternoon from Washington and he met Colonels Ruppert and Huston at the Holland House early last evening. They presented their side of the case, arguing that if Johnson believed Mays should be suspended he should have taken the action before they had purchased the player. They base their argument on the fact that other clubs were dealing for the player's services and any let-up on their part would mean his capture by one of the teams battling the Yankees for the American League pennant. As Johnson failed to take any action against the player until he found out that Mays had been purchased by the Yankees they charged that the league President was not acting in good faith.

Johnson declined to raise the suspension. He gave as his reason that five clubs in the league had requested that he suspend the player for the balance of the season, a most unusual request as viewed by the local owners. The clubs he mentioned were Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, and Philadelphia. The owners of the Yankees have positive knowledge that two, possibly three, of these clubs were bidding for Mays's services up to the time that the Yankees closed the deal with Owner Harry Frazee of the Boston Red Sox. The Chicago White Sox, one of the strongest bidders for the player, are not mentioned by Johnson. It had been intimated since Mays's suspension by Johnson that the league President did not care to offend Charles Comiskey.

Will Enjoin President.

This morning the Yankee owners will go into court to ask that Johnson be enjoined from taking any action against Mays that will interfere with their rights to his services in games played by the club. Carrying baseball squabbles into the courts is a somewhat unusual procedure, but Johnson made no attempt to block Connie Mack last year in the celebrated Perry case, so this move against him is not exactly without precedent. In that instance Johnson disagreed with his conferees on the National Commission, and their decision against Mack's right to the player was battled in the courts. Connie got an injunction, and Ban did not come out with anything to indicate that he was against the Mack system.

Johnson notified the Colonels near the close of yesterday's conference that he would call a special meeting of the American League for this city on Tuesday in order to consider the case. He would take this action, he declared, inasmuch as five clubs had requested him to suspend the player and he did not feel at liberty to raise the suspension without consulting them.

If Ban believed such a move would placate the New York owners he thought incorrectly. They notified him promptly that they would attend no such meeting with a majority all set before the doors were opened and would seek to get their rights through legal channels, rather than through club owners who may be fighting them for a pennant. The proposed meeting will have no effect on the plan of Ruppert and Huston to fight Johnson in court. This action is scheduled to get under way this morning, and nothing will stop it except Johnson raising the suspension of Mays.

Statement of Owners.

The owners of the Yankees last night gave out the following statement as to their attitude and plans regarding the Mays case:

We met Mr. Johnson at the Holland House tonight, (Sunday,) and requested that he lift the suspension on Mays. Mr. Johnson refused, stating that five clubs of the American League had requested that Mays be suspended for the balance of the season. These clubs are supposed to be Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, and Philadelphia. We both know that two, possibly three, of the clubs which Mr. Johnson states request the suspension of Mays are clubs which were negotiating for the services of the player up to the time that we secured him.

Mr. Johnson, throwing the blame on these clubs, said he would have to consult them and he is calling a meeting of the American League club owners at New York on Tuesday next. This meeting we refuse to attend, inasmuch as the five protesting clubs would form a majority of the meeting. We will proceed at once to protect our rights by enjoining Mr. Johnson from interference with the club.

We feel that if it were a matter of discipline in the case of Mays New York would be the first club to back up Mr. Johnson, but Mr. Johnson's whole action in this matter seems to have been actuated by a desire to give Mr. Frazee the worst of it, and the Cleveland club the best of it. His negligence in not acting promptly has precipitated this situation.

JACOB RUPPERT.
T. L. HUSTON.

Parting of the Ways.

Both Ruppert and Huston have been stanch supporters of Johnson since they purchased the New York holdings of Frank Farrell in January, 1915, but they positively refuse to submit to any such action as the American League President has taken in this case. They have positive knowledge of other clubs' efforts to get Mays and will produce the same when the time comes for a showdown. Johnson probably could find out the same details before taking action.

The Mays case dates back to last month, when the pitcher quit the Boston Club during a game in Chicago and turned up two days later at Boston. He sent word to Edward Barrow, the Red Sox manager, that he was disgusted with conditions and was ready to quit baseball. He had previously been fined for hitting an abusive spectator at Shibe Park, who was hurling loud talk from one of the boxes.

Once it became known that Mays had quit the Boston club some very active bidding for his services developed. Chicago, Detroit, and Cleveland, all of which clubs are in the American League pennant fight, positively entered into negotiations for the players. The Yankees' owners got busy at the same time. For three weeks nothing happened, and then it was announced that Mays had been sold to the Yankees for a price estimated at from $25,000 to $40,000 and Pitchers Russell and McGraw.

During all the time of negotiations Johnson did not intimate that the player was to be suspended for the season, nor did he notify the various clubs that he would not allow any other team to use him. As soon as announcement was made of the sale to the Yankees Johnson announced that Mays was suspended, expressed great surprise that any club would deal for the player and later made some mention of a possible suspension for the season.

Mays reported to the Yankees last Wednesday, and has been in uniform daily. He is ready to work now, but Manager Huggins has not been able to use him, owing to the Johnson decree. Meanwhile the two players given up by the Yankee owners with the large amount of cash, have reported at Boston and have played in games with the Red Sox.

DODGERS AND CARDS DIVIDE TWIN BILL

Doak Gets 2-1 Decision in Duel with Mamaux—Brooklyn Wins Second, 8-3.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 3.—The Brooklyn Dodgers split a double bill with the St. Louis Cardinals here this afternoon while about 6,000 spectators looked on. The Cards took the first game, a pitchers' battle between Al Mamaux and Wild William Doak, by a score of 2 to 1. In the second clash all the Brooklyn heavy artillery was concentrated on the combined efforts of Elmer Jacobs, Marvin Goodwin, and Frank Woodward, and when the carnage was over the Robins were nestling comfortably on the attractive end of an 8 to 3 score.

Mamaux worked hard for victory in the first game, but the fates were against him. The Dodgers drew first blood, scoring in the third frame. In the sixth the Cardinals knotted the count on a pass and Rogers Hornsby's double, and in the seventh Jack Miller and Jack Smith rapped out a brace of hits, which, with a sacrifice in between, gave the Cardinals the game.

Otto Miller paved the way for the Dodgers' run in the third with a single. The Brooklyn backstop raced to third when Mamaux nicked Doak for a safety and scored when Olson forced Mamaux at second.

In the sixth Mamaux presented Scott with a free ticket to first which resulted disastrously. Hornsby scored his teammate with a resounding double to right and the score was tied. The Cardinals continued in the seventh where they left off in the sixth, and won the game. J. Miller beat out a hit on the third base line, and Lavan sacrificed. Jack Smith then rapped out a single which scored Miller with the winning run.

Burleigh Grimes held the Cardinals spellbound in the nightcap encounter, allowing them but one safe blow in six innings. The sight of his Brooklyn cronies on a batting rampage meanwhile caused the Dodger right-hander to relax his vigilance in the closing innings and he was nicked for two runs in the seventh and another in the ninth. Burleigh, however, didn't let the Cardinals become too familiar with his offerings.

While Grimes was baffling the Cardinals the Dodgers leaped hungrily on Jacobs, Goodwin, and Woodward in order and pelted them to all corners of the lot. Hy Myers led in the Brooklyn attack, driving out a home run in the opening game, which gave the Dodgers a three-run margin to start with. Johnston and Griffith were safe on errors by Lavan and Hornsby in the first inning and Myers selected the occasion to send the ball sailing over Smith's head in right field for a circuit drive.

GIANTS BLANK REDS IN LAST OF SERIES

Barnes Pitches Masterly Ball While McGraw's Men Bunch Hits Off Reuther.

RECORD CROWD SEES GAME

Official Paid Attendance is 32,121, the Largest in Redland Baseball History—Burns Hits Hard.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 3.—The Giants closed their series with the Reds with a victory today by a score of 4 to 0. Jess Barnes, cool in the face of a hostile crowd that numbered more than 32,000—the paid attendance was 32,121—hurled superbly and received gilt-edged support, so that the Reds never really had an opportunity to get started. Walter Reuther, Pat Moran's sensational southpaw, faced the Giants at the start of the fray, and was hit hard in spots, while his support was not of the best. Reuther retired in the eighth to allow Ivy Wingo to bat for him, and Hod Eller pitched the last inning. Burns's batting played a big part in the victory.

The crowd was the greatest in the history of baseball in Cincinnati. The exodus of the fans from the downtown section of the city in the direction of the ball park began at noon, and when play was called the Redland rooters jammed the stands and overflowed the field. Other hundreds viewed the game from windows and roofs of houses in the vicinity of the park, while still other hundreds were turned away when the big gates swung closed as the teams took the field for the contest.

The gathering was, on the whole, an orderly one, though after the game a horde of rabid fans surrounded the Giants as they left the field, tagging at their heels and shouting defiance at the players as they disappeared within their dressing rooms. The prompt arrival of policemen prevented an outbreak, as the officers dispersed the mob speedily.

Reuther Makes Fine Start.

Reuther started strong, fanning Burns and Young in the first inning, while Fletcher lifted a fly to Roush. Rath welcomed Barnes for a single to start the home half of the inning, and Daubert poked a single to centre on which Rath dashed to third. Groh lifted a pop fly, which was gathered in by Gonzales in front of the plate. Roush chopped the ball in front of the rubber, and Barnes tossed it to Gonzales in time to nail Rath as he attempted to score. Neale then forced Roush, Fletcher to Doyle, Fletcher making a splendid play on Neale's sharp grounder.

The Giants again went out in order in the second. Kopf led off for the Reds in that frame by smashing a hit past Zimmerman. Bressler expired, Gonzales to Chase, and Rariden lifted a short fly to Young. Reuther then struck out. Again in the third Reuther disposed of the Giants in regular order, and the Reds failed to get a man on base in their half of the inning.

Giants Score in Fourth.

Burns led off in the fourth with a double into the crowd in left field. Young moved him along to third with a sacrifice, and Fletcher, who played a wonderful brand of ball throughout the entire series, pasted a single to centre on which Burns romped over the plate. On the hit and run Doyle slammed a single to right, Fletcher racing to third. Kauff sent a blazing sacrifice liner to Neale, Fletcher, in a great slide, sweeping past Rariden and over the plate as the backstop took a splendid throw from Neale. Zimmerman hit to Groh, who tagged Doyle out on the line between second and third.

Barnes again turned the Reds away in order in their half of this inning. Roush flied to Young, Burns pulled down Neale's liner, and Kopf was retired by Doyle and Chase.

To start the fifth, Chase got two bases on Neale's muff of his long fly to right centre. Gonzales attempted a sacrifice, but Reuther made a fine play on his bunt and whipped the ball to Groh in time to head Chase off at third. Barnes also tried to sacrifice, but bunted the ball on a line into Reuther's hands. Burns then hammered a triple into the crowd in right field, Gonzales scoring. Young drew a base on balls, but when Burns and Young tried a double steal Burns was trapped and run down between third base and the plate, Rariden to Reuther to Groh.

Bressler was thrown out by Fletcher at the outset of the Reds' half of the fifth and Rariden sent a fly to Burns. However, Reuther lobbed a hit to short right centre and Rath worked Barnes for a pass. Daubert hit a scorching drive through the box but Fletcher went over back of second base to whisk the ball off the turf and toss it to Doyle in time to force Rath.

Kauff singled to centre with two out in the sixth, but nothing came of it, as Zimmerman was pegged out by Rath. Fletcher made a shoestring catch of Groh's liner in the Reds' half of the inning but Roush crashed the ball into the crowd in left centre for three bases. Neale smashed one savagely at Zimmerman, but Heinie clutched the speeding pellet with both hands and, stepping on third, doubled Roush several feet off the base.

Another Run in Seventh.

At the start of the seventh Chase got two bases on a hit to right field that would have been good for only a single had not Neale loafed on the drive. Gonzales pushed Hal along to third with a sacrifice. Barnes grounded to Daubert, Chase holding third. But Burns beat out a hit to the short field, scoring Chase. Burns continued on to second on Kopf's wild peg past first. Young then was retired by Kopf and Daubert.

Kopf and Bressler expired on flies to Kauff in the Reds' half of the seventh and Rariden was an easy out on a hopper to Doyle.

Fletcher led off in the eighth with a line single to centre, but Roush pulled down Doyle's high fly. Kauff forced Fletcher at second, Rath to Kopf, and Zimmerman ended the inning with a fly to Roush.

Young skirted the crowd in right centre to drag down Wingo's fly in the Reds' portion of the eighth. Rath lined to Zim and Daubert was easy for Doyle and Chase. Eller, an exponent of the shine ball, went to the hill for the Reds in the ninth and fanned Chase and Gonzales in rapid succession. Barnes scratched a hit through the box, but Burns was called out on strikes.

The Reds died without a struggle in their half of the last frame. Barnes tossed out Groh, and Doyle threw out Roush and Neale.

NEWARK BATS OUT A DOUBLE VICTORY

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 3.—Newark won two loosely played, free hitting games from Reading today. The first game ended 9 to 7 in Newark's favor after a seesaw contest. Rommel started this game, but was lifted after a five-run lead had been effaced by Reading. McCabe finished strong, while Newark batted Barrels, who succeeded Schwartz for Reading, at will.

In the second game Rommel went back and won over the full route by a 10-to-6 total. Bruggy was the star of this game, getting four hits and driving in six runs. Weinert was knocked off the rubber in the third, when Newark grabbed four runs by bunting safely thrice and then switching to hitting. Brown, Reading's star pitcher, came in at this stage, but fared not a whole lot better than his mate.

SKEETERS GET EVEN BREAK.

Blank Orioles in First Game and Are Shut Out in Second.

Bill Donovan's Skeeters and Jack Dunn's Orioles split up yesterday's bargain bill at the Jersey City ball park. The local athletes got away with the opening scramble by a margin of 1 to 0, but after their splendid battle in the inaugural the Skeeters' efforts relaxed in the final setto, with the result that the Orioles had the issue all their own way, and turned the tables, 9 to 0.

YANKS FLAIL DAUSS AND TAME TIGERS

Batting Outburst in Sixth Nets Eight Runs and 10 to 2 Victory—Umpire Owens Injured.

All the ammunition that is done up in the Yankee batting order was touched off in the sixth inning at the Polo Grounds yesterday and it demolished what promised to be a close ball game. The Tigers and Yankees were racing along neck and neck, with the score 2—2, when Wallie Pipp touched off the fuse. When all the smoke had cleared away at the end of this boisterous inning the Yankees were out in front to the extent of eight runs. They held the advantage to the end of the game, winning by the score of 10 to 2.

In this one impressive demonstration of their swatting power the Yankees broke the tie for fourth place with the St. Louis Browns, vaulted over the Tigers, and ensconced themselves in third position in the chase for the muslin. The victory of the Indians at Washington kept the Yankees from going into second place. The big inning also served to disprove the age-old idea that the Yanks must go to pieces before their big crowds at the Polo Grounds.

For the second successive day the attendance at the Harlem meadow ran above the 30,000 mark. It was the largest Sunday crowd that the Yankees ever played before at the Polo Grounds and was only 2,000 short of the great gathering of the day before. In view of the fact that a double header was not on the card for either day the turnouts were particularly impressive. If two games had been scheduled for either day there is no telling what would have happened.

Owens Painfully Injured.

There was one happening to mar the pleasure of the big Sunday crowd. In the seventh inning Umpire Clarence Owens was hit on the neck with a foul tip from Peckinpaugh's bat and painfully injured. He crumpled to the ground before a player could reach him, and for fifteen minutes he lay prostrate while four doctors worked over him. Yancey Ayers, who pitched the ball which deflected from Peck's bat, is an M. D., and he was the first to reach Owens's side.

For a few minutes it was impossible to tell just where Owens had been injured. He could not talk, in fact, he found great difficulty in breathing. Ice water, fanning and rubbing—the usual first aid to the injured player—had little effect. After Ayers and the Yankees' club physician had worked over the prostrate official for several minutes a call was made to the stand for more help and two other physicians responded. It was some time before Owens was able to breathe normally, the crowd in the meantime gazing in silence while players massed about the plate. The idea prevailed that a real tragedy had been witnessed and when this idea was dispelled by two physicians raising the umpire to his feet the relief of the big crowd was attested in a demonstration for the umpire. It was, perhaps, the greatest cheer Owens, or any other umpire, ever got in this or any other man's town. Then the crowd saw a strange sight for these days, something that harkened back to the time when the double umpire system was unknown. Tommy Connolly, who had been giving decisions on the bases, had to finish the game alone, so he took his place behind the pitcher. There was not the sign of a protest at any decision Tommy made while laboring under this difficult handicap.

Outburst Against Dauss.

It was against George Dauss, veteran member of the Tigers, flinging force that the Yankees unlimbered their heavy attack and more than atoned for what happened in the tenth inning of Saturday's game. For five innings Dauss had stepped along at a fast clip, allowing hits at intervals but tightening up when real danger threatened. He had set the side down in order in the fifth, and the Tigers tied up the game in their sixth, so the tornadic thumping was a most agreeable surprise. Before the inning was over straw hats left their owners, never to return and sane men accepted the opportunity of taking a temporary vacation on the other side of the fence. The Yanks went wild with the stick and on the bases, but not half as wild as those 30,000 fans in the stands and bleachers.

Huggins had Bob Shawkey, his pitching ace, all primed for the rubber game of the series and Bob came through much better than the hit column would indicate. The blows of the visitors lacked real lustiness in many instances and they were so well scattered that Shawkey came close to a shutout. An error paved the way to the first Detroit run. The other developed in the sixth when a slow hopper, with two men out, took a flying leap over Peck's shoulder and went for a hit. A double without any flaws came a minute later and the run was over.

Wallie Pipp was the big gun in the Yankee attack. His single in the second inning started the Yankees on their way to the first run and his single in the third inning drove New York's second run over the plate. He pried open the can of gunpowder with his single in the sixth, carried over the run that broke the tie, and before the inning was over he had lashed a home run to the right field corner with two runners aboard. All together Pipp carried in three runs and drove as many more across. He got four hits and missed a fifth when Young made a great play on his hard smash in the eighth inning.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Cleveland attained undisputed possession of second place in the American League race, by taking the final game of the series with Washington today, 4 to 0, while Detroit was being defeated by New York. Murray Gives Ten Hits, and Chicago Wins, 7 to 1.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Bunched hits, coupled with daring base running, enabled Chicago to defeat Philadelphia, 7 to 1, here today. Vaughn pitched shut-out ball after the first inning, when Bancroft's double and Williams's single netted a run. Murray, a recruit from Notre Dame, made his début with the Philadelphians. Herzog, received from Boston in the trade for Mann and Pick, was in the game for Chicago.

LAUX WINS TWICE IN CYCLE EVENTS

Captures Three-Mile and Quarter Races at Crotona Field in Close Finishes.

Fred Laux, a former Empire City Wheelmen rider, scored one of the closest victories of his career yesterday in the three-mile bicycle race which topped the list of competitions conducted at Crotona Athletic Field in the Bronx, as the seventh annual cycling carnival of the Century Road Club Association. Laux, leading a field of thirty-five aspirants in this race, was forced to employ all his strength in beating off a closing challenge by Ray Caldwell of the Century Road Club Association. At the finish line Laux's margin of victory was measured by less than half the length of his front wheel. The time for the race was 7:20 2-5.

This event furnished the principal competition in a program of nine cycling races, witnessed by a crowd of about 2,000. The carnival was the greatest ever conducted by the C. R. C. A. from every standpoint. More than 200 cyclists turned out for the sports and the large number of starters necessitated numerous heats in many of the races.

Laux had the most successful day of any rider. He gathered in three prizes. Two of them came in the three-mile race, for in addition to gaining the winners' prize Laux was awarded a token for leading at the second mile. A prize was offered for the first mile, and this was won by Teddy Urbach of the New England Wheelmen, who failed to place in the ten prize winners at the finish.

Laux's other prize came in the quarter-mile scratch race. This victory of the former Empire City Wheelmen rider was impressive.

OSCAR EGG CYCLE VICTOR.

Swiss Racer Defeats McNamara in Ten-Mile Event.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 3.—Oscar Egg, the Swiss cyclist and star six-day bicycle rider, defeated Reggie McNamara, the Australian, before 17,000 spectators at the Velodrome here this afternoon. It was the first appearance of the Swiss rider in the country this season.

Egg arrived from France last Monday, and today was his first race. The race was ten miles, paced by six crack pluggers. Two laps from the finish the pace dropped, leaving Egg and McNamara to battle it out to the tape. Egg was in front at the time, but a lap from home McNamara went by him and it appeared as if the Australian would win. But Egg, on the last turn of the last lap, using every ounce of speed he had, rode by McNamara and finished a winner by open lengths. The crowd gave him a great ovation as he circled the track after winning.

Curves and Bingles.

"Come on, Eddie, we're still in this old ball game," yelled Dan Howley from the coaching lines to Eddie Ainsmith in the eighth inning, while the score stood 10 to 2. The echo answered: "Still, very still."

The grass and the high pitching peak almost hid Tommy Connolly from the view of the populace when he went behind the pitchers' box to umpire after Owens had been injured. Tommy should stand on a chair on such occasions.

Veach picked Peck's smash off the watch ad. on the left-field fence in the sixth inning, and thereby took a radio-lite from every member of the Yankees. Huggins and his troupe will continue to use matches if they are curious to know the time of night. Bobby pinched the flock of timepieces without a blush, while 31,000 looked on.

The fan who is not a souvenir hunter was discovered in the eighth inning. He got a ball which Jones fouled into the upper stand, and he promptly tossed it back.

The crowd rode Brick Owens in the early innings when he was battling with Bob Shawkey on the subject of discoloring a ball. They all were rooting for the umpire later, when it seemed that he had been seriously injured.

Ty Cobb had a prosperous stay at the Polo Grounds. In the three games against the Yankees Ty toed the plate fifteen times, and came out of the series with a triple, a double, seven singles, and three passes.

The game played yesterday was originally scheduled for today, so this is an off day for both Tigers and Yankees. The Detroit players will remain in New York until tonight, when they will leave for Washington.

An odd play robbed the Yankees of a possible run in the third. With two out and runners on first and second, Pratt grounded to Jones, who fumbled. The ball rolled away, hit third base, and Jones was able to pick it up and touch the bag, forcing Lewis for the third out.

Pipp batted as he did during the seasons of 1916 and 1917, when he was regarded as the most dangerous hitter in the league. If he is back to his old-time form, it will make considerable difference with the Yankees' pennant prospects.

Hugh Jennings was back on the coaching lines, his suspension having been removed after Saturday's game. As usual, Jennings got a fine reception from the fans. He is a big attraction—bigger, in fact, than many of his players.

Fewster walked on three of his first four trips to the plate. In the eighth inning he held his bat on his shoulder until the count reached three balls and two strikes. Then Doc shot another strike over while Fewster stood motionless at the plate, waiting for his fourth walk. He walked again—this time to the bench.

BEHR AND RICHARDS GAIN TENNIS TITLE

Defeat Binzen and Henderson in Five Sets for North Side Championship.

THIRD TROPHY OF SEASON

Victorious Pair Had Previously Captured Two Other Metropolitan Tournaments.

In a spectacular five-set match, staged on the clay courts of the University Heights Tennis Club, Vincent Richards and Allen Behr yesterday afternoon won the North Side doubles championship, defeating Elliott H. Binzen and Embree H. Henderson of the home club, 7—5, 3—6, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

This tournament had been on the way to conclusion since shortly after July 4, the absence of Richards in the West forcing repeated postponements, and a complete replay being necessary after the start had been interrupted by darkness and rain, with the sets at one-all. Yesterday's decision was reached through a full session of sparkling tennis, all four players hitting hard overhead, and generally refusing to resort to safety play, preferring to go after the points as quickly as possible with forcing shots.

The winners played in far more attractive style than when they captured the Metropolitan and Manhattan titles early in June, both having since then rounded into close to their best form. Binzen also, although he has not been on the courts much recently, flashed his most sensational shots yesterday, while Henderson supported him in his usual dependable fashion.

The match was remarkable in the fact that the losers won three points more than the winners, totaling 171 to 168, and also leading in the points score at the opening set, 40 to 30, although at the short end on games. It was a very even battle all the way, with a slight superiority of team work and individual play eventually deciding the issue.

Binzen had an unbeatable streak in the third set, driving back the hardest smashes for clean counterkills, and working his most reckless strokes successfully. Toward the close of the fourth set and in the early stages of the fifth Richards experienced a similar period of brilliancy, also taking long chances and getting consistently good results. Behr used his lobs and chops to good effect, occasionally driving one by way of variety, and keeping very steady on his volleys. Henderson's play was careful and conservative, his service being always well placed, though never severe, and his net play bringing in many a tally through his quick eye for the openings.

Richards started the serving, followed by Binzen, Behr, and Henderson, all four winning in order, with the indoor champion repeating for a 3—2 lead. By breaking through Binzen's delivery, the Metropolitan title-holders increased this advantage to 4—2 and went on to 5—2 on Behr's service. Henderson replied with a love game, and the upsetting of Richards made it 5—4, a love game served by Binzen completing the pull-up and deucing the games. Behr, however, won again and a deuce game resulted in another break, this time through Henderson, the set going at 7—5.

Comment on Current Events in the World of Sports

Ban Johnson and the Mays Case.

The owners of the Yankees will be justified in taking the Mays case into court if President Ban Johnson does not back water. After sacrificing two valuable players and a large sum of money to get Mays in a legitimate transaction, the head of the organization has suspended the player for the season. This is an apparent interference with property rights which would hardly be tolerated in any other business. The American League head has been conducting affairs in a high-handed way for years, but he has made one serious mistake. He has failed to change with the times. Baseball cannot be conducted in the manner in which it was carried on when Johnson organized the American League.

Baseball men have always been skeptical about taking baseball into the courts. It finally was dragged to the bar by the disgruntled Federal League invaders of Baltimore, with the result that it was declared a trust and a violation of interstate commerce. Last Summer Johnson himself permitted Owner Connie Mack of the Athletics to take the Scott Perry case into court, so Messrs. Ruppert and Huston have a precedent on which to carry their case before the legal authorities.

The owners of the Yankees cannot but believe that Johnson's interference in the Carl Mays case is one of discrimination. If he wanted to suspend Mays for violation of rules of discipline, he had three weeks to do it in before Mays was traded to New York. While Mays was a member of the Boston Club his case was not taken up at all by Johnson. It was a case between the Boston club and the player and was settled satisfactorily to both parties concerned. Johnson did not make it a part of his business until he learned that the player had gone to the New York club, when Chicago and Cleveland were both negotiating for him. Ruppert and Huston proved to be the better bargain makers, and now the fruit of their bargaining is annulled by Johnson's arbitrary ruling.

There has been a lack of unity in the ranks of the American League club owners for some time. There is strong opposition to Johnson. Last Winter's movement was on foot to dethrone him and it was the influence of the vote of the New York club which really kept him in office when the opposition was ready to take radical action.

There have been numerous cases in the American League where players have committed the same offense as Mays and have been traded to another club without a word of protest from Johnson. One recent case of this was that of Hubert Leonard, the player traded to New York who refused to report here. Detroit and other clubs were allowed to negotiate for him and Detroit landed the player. Johnson didn't suspend him after the trade was made, as he did in the Mays case. New York has legal rights in this case which apparently are much stronger than the legal rights on which Mack carried the Perry case to the courts. This case broke the power of the National Commission and if the Mays case is taken to the courts it is a fairly safe prediction that it will break the power of Ban Johnson.

Baseball followers have not believed, however, that Johnson, no matter how strong his wish to discriminate against the New York club, would permit this case to go to a showdown. The fewer legal entanglements baseball gets into the better it will be for the game. Ruppert and Huston mean business in this matter. They got Mays by fair competition and mean to use him. The New York owners have a large amount of money invested in the game. If they cannot conduct it in their own way, without being harassed at every turn, their investment will prove worthless. The two Colonels were highly successful business men before they went into baseball. They know what they are doing and the present extraordinary case has brought about a situation in which it must be decided whether Johnson or the men who have the money invested are to run the New York club.

Boxing Conditions in New Jersey.

The need of a strong, fearless body to control the boxing game was never more urgent than at the present time, when some of the bouts in New Jersey are being conducted in such a haphazard manner. The first incident which showed the undesirable conditions in New Jersey occurred in Newark when a number of prominent spectators were unable to reach the seats their tickets called for because of incompetent, careless management. Similar confusion and inefficiency were evident at the bout last week in Jersey City between Britton and Lewis. Numerous spectators, who held reserved seat tickets were unable to get seated and had to stand up during the bout. There was a total absence of any pretense of courteous attention, of any wish to give the public proper service. The Boxing Commission is apparently giving little attention to how fight patrons are treated. As for the promoters, they are following the same grab-all policy which killed the boxing game in this State. "Get the money" appears to be their one idea.

Boxing is more popular in this country than ever before because of the great benefit it proved in the army and navy. Jersey promoters are making capital of this popularity, and some of them seem to think that boxing patrons are docile enough to stand for careless treatment indefinitely. In this they are mistaken. Boxing patrons will tolerate the Jersey brand of handling the public for just so long—then will come general resentment, expressed in something besides words, and the boxing game will be doomed, just as it was in New York. The game was popular here and was well patronized as long as the clubs were adequately conducted and patrons treated with some fairness. Madison Square Garden a few years ago was a fine example of a well-conducted boxing club. However, grab-all promoters organized clubs right and left, and these soon had the game on the rocks. It will be the same old story in New Jersey unless the decision is reached, before it is too late, to give decent treatment to the public.

Will Jerry Travers Come Back?

The leading figure in the Victory Tournament, which starts at Siwanoy on Wednesday, will undoubtedly be Jerry Travers. In years gone by he was the idol of American devotees of the royal and ancient sport, and during the heyday of his fame, while he was gathering to himself four national amateur championships and the national open title, there was no more interesting figure or magnetic personality on the links than the Wykagyl golfer. Handicapped from the tee by the inability successfully to control a wooden club shot, he was consistently inside his opponent on the second shot through the green. His putting was a joy to behold when he was on his game, and it was through his keen touch with the smallest club in the bag and his accuracy with the irons that he reached the leading position in amateur golf and held it over a period of years.

Of late years, however, practically since that June day in 1915 when he led Tom McNamara home at Baltusrol and was the second young American amateur to wrest the open title from the assembled multitude of foreign and home-bred professionals, his putting touch seemed to have deserted him and his famed control of his iron shots went a-glimmering. In four-ball exhibition matches played here and there through the country he generally had the highest single score, where formerly he was the glittering star of the cluster with a brilliant card. With the indomitable Travers spirit, he kept plugging away in silence, and his playing this season is causing rays of hope to spring up over the horizon of amateur golf. He was a tower of strength formerly; his loss was bitterly felt and deeply mourned, and his return to his old form would be a cause for great rejoicing among all enthusiasts of the game.

At Siwanoy this week he will be put to a severe test. Here he will find arrayed against him Oswald Kirkby, metropolitan amateur champion, playing the best game of his career; Max Marston, New Jersey champion and winner of so many invitation events of the year that he has lost count; A. L. Walker, Jr., intercollegiate champion and runner-up to Kirkby at Brooklawn; Jesse Guilford, the long-hitting New Englander; G. L. Conley, Westchester title holder; Bobbie Jones, and still other golfers who can make it interesting for any opponent. On the form that Travers displays in this tournament will be judged his chances to regain his national amateur laurels at Oakmont. This does not mean that he must win at Siwanoy to be considered a contender over the Pittsburgh course, but it is hoped that the former champion will prove by his playing that he is once more regaining control of those shots and clubs that once placed him on the throne of amateur golf. With that to start with, coupled to his long experience and superb fighting qualities, he will be a prominent contender wherever he plays.

Tennis Tradition and Popularity.

There was a time when lawn tennis was considered an exclusive game, the sport of the idle rich, something past the understanding and therefore beneath the contempt of the average athletic fan. That period has completely faded into oblivion, and tennis is today conversely in danger of being overpopularized, if such a thing be possible. It has already been proved that more people, the world over, play or try to play tennis than the wildest total of devotees that any other sport can legitimately claim. As a spectacle, also, the game is growing to such proportions that the number of spectators at important tournaments is beginning to suggest even the crowds drawn by such popular sports as baseball and racing. And herein lies a problem, which is already making its presence felt.

The traditions of tennis demand that the spectator be an absolute neutral so far as the match is concerned, an emotionless, unprejudiced, unopinionated automaton, trained to applaud at the proper time, but forbidden to express his feelings beyond the precincts of strict decorum. The ruling of an official is never to be questioned; an error on the part of a player is never to be greeted with partisan enthusiasm; no act or sound shall ever intrude upon the silent concentration which is the constant due. Tennis, says tradition, is to be a gentleman's game, no matter how many animal instincts have to be curbed in the process of keeping it so.

All this is right and proper. But inevitably, as tennis grows more and more popular as a sport it appeals more and more to those who are fundamentally ignorant of its traditions and its etiquette, it will be subjected to the rough familiarity and intimate partisanship which are the very life-blood of our national game. A striking example of this occurred in staid, well-behaved Boston last week. The spectators refused to accept one of the decisions in the challenge match for the Longwood Bowl, and the howls and protestations were enough to make one believe that "Take him out!" "Oh, you robber!" and "Kill the ump!" were already waiting in the not far distant future. In this particular case, Umpire Mansfield very properly upheld the questioned decision, and the profiting player, William M. Johnston, with equal grace, declined to accept the advantage. But this by no means atoned for the "rooting" propensities of the Bleacherites. Such rowdyism must be nipped in the bud, or the prestige of tennis, built up through centuries of true artistocracy among games, will become a mere memory, a formless shadow of vanished significance.

The National Tennis Umpires' Association, of which Edward C. Conlin is Chairman, should make it a special feature of its activities to see that the gallery at all important tournaments is kept in order. If ignorant or wilfully disorderly spectators insist upon interfering with the decisions and interrupting the proceedings on the court, it should not be a difficult matter to eject the offenders. A few test cases, vigorously prosecuted, might do wonders in establishing a standard of behavior for future tennis galleries. Popularity is desirable, but let it not be purchased at the sacrifice of traditions which have become practically unique in the annals of sport.

The Jockeys at Saratoga.

Although the West has so far produced but few horses of real championship calibre, it has at least made one valuable contribution toward the success of the Saratoga racing season. The Western jockeys are already making their presence felt and, since among these are half a dozen boys who have made fine records in Kentucky, there is a prospect that the quality of riding will be improved during the meeting.

There has been much criticism this season of the jockeys riding on the Eastern tracks. With the exception of some half a dozen riders, the boys who appeared in silks on the metropolitan courses were not up to the standard of other years, in the opinion of most horsemen. There is little doubt that many good horses have gone down to defeat this season through bad jockeyship rather than through any failure of their own.

When racing was being conducted in various sections of the country it was almost impossible to obtain enough good jockeys, and owners were obliged to trust their racers to boys of inferior skill. But now that Saratoga is the Mecca of the turf for the month without opposition anywhere in the country, or in Canada for that matter, the best jockeys have come East.

Among the boys from Kentucky who have already made an impression here are C. Robinson, Murray, the Howard brothers, Thurber, Gentry, and Boyle. In addition, Earl Sande, who is one of the top-notchers and a really finished rider, has returned to the saddle after being on the ground for a month. With these, along with such riders as Loftus, Fator, Knapp, Fairbrother, Shuttinger, and Kummer, enough good boys can be had to fill out almost any race on the card.

Sande, who was set down at Latonia for a foul which merited the long suspension he received, is a capable rider, as he demonstrated Saturday when he came home on two winners, and in both instances contributed much to the victory by his good judgment of pace and ability to ride out a race. His riding on Milkmaid was worthy of comment. Had Sande been on Cirrus he probably would have won with the Hildreth colt, for it was the ride that decided the event.

Robinson and Murray were regarded as two of the best riders in the West. They topped the list in Kentucky for numbes of winning mounts. Both have the advantage of being able to make fairly light weight, and thus are able to ride often. Johnny Loftus, who is undoubtedly the best rider the East has seen this season and who stands at the top of the list throughout the country, finds it more and more difficult to accept engagements. He has reached the stage where it is a task to keep down to weight and constant training forced him to take a rest. He has been seen only two or three times in the last month, and then only when his mount was carrying high weight. He will be seen oftener during the Saratoga meeting owing to the numerous stake and handicap events in which high imposts will be assigned to the best performers.

DAVIS AND JOHNS VICTORS.

California Pair Take Western Tennis Doubles Title.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 3.—Willis E. Davis, San Francisco, and H. Van Dyke Johns, Berkeley, Calif., won the title in the men's doubles of the Western championship tennis tournament by defeating Fred Josties and Theodore Drewes of St. Louis, holders of the Central States doubles title, in the finals of the Rockhill courts today.

The California pair swept the Central States champions off their feet, winning in easy sets, 6—2, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3. The playing of both Josties and Drewes was very erratic.

MISS WAGNER WINS LONG ISLAND TITLE

Defeats Mrs. Lynch for Women's Championship in Two Warmly Contested Sets.

Miss Marie Wagner of the New York Tennis Club won the women's championship of Long Island at the Woodmere Club yesterday afternoon by defeating her clubmate, Mrs. E. V. Lynch, in straight sets, 8—6, 6—3. It was far too windy a day for first-class tennis, but under the adverse circumstances both players put up an exceedingly good exhibition.

Mrs. Lynch surprised the gallery with the remarkable steadiness of her tennis, holding her own all through the match by consistent court covering and making a very strong bid for the opening set. She led at 4—0 on games, and later at 6—2 and 6—5, but did not quite have the power to put over the winning strokes. Her slicing drive, forehand and backhand, worried Miss Wagner from the start, forcing her into many errors and often finding the side lines for well-earned points.

The winner was far from her best form during the early games, her shots lacking both speed and accuracy, but after she began her uphill fight her game increased steadily in effectiveness, and toward the close she had assumed complete command of the situation.

Three of the first four games went to deuce, but they all fell to the credit of Mrs. Lynch, whose steady returning of the ball drove her opponent into mistakes of execution on most of the crucial points. A good backhand volley was instrumental in putting Miss Wagner on the score card, and once started, she advanced rapidly. By consistently outplacing her rival she broke through service for her second game, and although she dropped the next on a net cord her three more in a row tied up the set at 5—all.

Mrs. Lynch won the odd through a flurry of overdriving by Miss Wagner, but the latter squared the score again with a splendid drive down the side line. A similar shot, resulting in a clean pass, accounted for the vantage game, and after a long deuce session Miss Wagner served out the set at 8—6.

On both actual and corrected time, T. B. McGovern's Joyant won the rating class of the annual "night race" of the New Rochelle Yacht Club to Stratford Shoals and return. The yacht covered the fifty-five-mile course in 9:11:12, which, although it was excellent time, was more than an hour slower than the record for the race. In the yawl class, the winner was Columbine, entered by W. H. Bowes. Columbine won on corrected time, the first yawl to finish being Feu Follet.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Note How Everyone

It Has Become a Familiar Car
On Nearly Every Highway

Hails the Essex

Essex owners report the satisfaction they experience at the way people speak of their cars. It increases their pride of ownership. Motorists and even boys on the street hail the Essex with some such greeting as "There is an Essex."

Curiosity in the car that possesses quality and performance at moderate cost and without the expense and weight of such cars as formerly were the only ones that possessed those advantages, has given way to openly voiced admiration.

Essex Owners Are Its Salesmen

At first it was what people who had seen the Essex said about it that led to its popularity.

Now owners—and there are thousands of them—are endorsing it on every hand. People stop Essex owners to inquire about their car. The answer is unanimous. When asked as to its performance they make no reservations. Admiration of its riding qualities is never lacking.

Every wanted quality in an automobile seems to have been met in the Essex. Ask the first Essex owner you meet.

Essex Performance Is Always Mentioned

There is no uncertainty to the owner as to Essex performance. Drivers know positively that their cars will meet any acceleration or endurance test they impose.

They know they can match the performance of whatever car they encounter.

There are now enough Essex cars on the road to permit you to note their performance. They are always in the lead when quick acceleration is desirable. They hold their own on the road against cars regarded as the fastest. They keep going and require little attention.

The repair shop is no place to learn about the Essex for it has little need to know the repairman.

Won't you make some inquiry about the Essex? You will find it interesting and convincing.

The Post-War Maxwell is the Surprise Car of the Year

Maxwell

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

IT'S a mental stimulation to look over this post-war Maxwell and see one surprise after another in fine engineering.

Then there's the heavy, new rear axle with the extra large, indestructible four pinion differential. And two universal joints of the oilless disc type. They require no attention during the life of the car.

Brakes! The emergency is now found on the transmission, as on so many foreign cars. The service brake is the larger toggle type, and is equipped with equalizers, which prevent the tendency to skid.

In the rear now is slung the gas tank, large and with vacuum feed. No more gas fumes or gas leakage up in front.

Also equipped with Hot Spot and Ram's-Horn.

There are many more rare treats in store for you, but remember this Post-War model is the continuation of the original Maxwell chassis as laid down 5 years ago.

To date more than 300,000 have been built. The public has paid $200,000,000 for previous Maxwells. This Post-War Maxwell is a greater car.

MERCHANTS PLAN THRIFT CAMPAIGN

SELL BONDS OVER COUNTER

Securities to be Offered to All Buyers in $10 and $100 Denominations.

A movement to convert the nation's wage earners into a vast army of investors will be launched within a few days, according to plans announced yesterday by the National Thrift Store League, with offices at 9 East Fortieth Street.

One hundred prominent merchants, representing department stores in almost every section of the country, have organized the league to conduct a campaign for thrift. As an incentive to this end they will offer for sale over their counters $10 and $100 thrift bonds, which will be sold just as cigars, socks, linens, hats, or gowns are sold. The merchants say that eventually thrift bonds will be sold everywhere men and women go.

The movement has the approval of the Treasury Department. The idea back of the plan, it was pointed out, is to continue the thrift lessons taught by the war and to encourage savings and investment. Officers of the league say the plan to sell the bonds over the counters gives to the public a safe and accessible medium for saving.

Federal, State, and municipal bonds are to be offered, and their sale will be under the supervision of the banking laws of this State. The $10 bonds carry ten-cent interest coupons and the $100 bonds have $1 interest coupons attached. They may be bought or cashed at any time, and may be exchanged for merchandise when necessary. It is said the members of the National Thrift Store League collectively employ more than 100,000 persons, each of whom will be an agent boosting the benefits of the bonds.

"Save What You Save" is the working slogan adopted by the league. Its message will be sent into every home by an intensive advertising campaign in newspapers and magazines and printed matter distributed by manufacturers, schools, churches, fraternal organizations, and other co-operating agencies. The announcement adds: "The National Thrift Store League sees many benefits in this novel campaign. With the advent of the wage earner into part ownership of municipal bonds, his interest in community politics and in the progress and financial affairs of his city will increase—all making for better citizenship.

"As the great source of wealth of a community is in the savings of the wage earners, the campaign will have the effect of rescuing the people's money from themselves to finance local improvements, the money being paid out again in better salaries, circulating more freely, and in the end going back to the merchant—hence the greater prosperity."

The distribution of the bonds to the merchants will be made through the National Thrift Bond Corporation of New York, operating under the State banking laws. Its officers are: Trustees—Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, Chairman; William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association; Adolph Lewisohn of Adolph Lewisohn & Sons, New York; Andrew Squire of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey of Cleveland, and Henry Rogers Winthrop of Harris, Winthrop & Co., New York.

The Directors are Ingalls Kimball, President; Henry E. Cooper, Vice President, the Equitable Trust Company, New York; Raymond E. Jones, President Merchants' National Bank of New York, Treasurer; Henry Bruere, Vice President American Metal Company, New York; William J. Graham, Vice President Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States; Lindley M. Garrison, ex-Secretary of War; Charles P. Howland of Murray, Prentice & Howland, New York; James Imbrie of Imbrie & Co., Darwin R. James, Jr., President of the American Chicle Company, and John Harsen Rhoades. Colonel Barrett Andrews is Director of the mercantile division. The Title Guarantee and Trust Company is the register and the Equitable Trust Company is trustee for the bondholders.

DEMANDS BOARD'S REMOVAL

W. C. King Calls New Jersey Utility Commissioners Unfit.

The resignation, or removal by Governor William N. Runyon, of every member of the New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners, on grounds of incompetency and failure to protect the rights of the public, was demanded yesterday by Warren C. King, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. He gave as his reason the commission's decision in abrogating the war surcharge for electric power to private consumers.

Mr. King said the surcharge, which, on the report of the commission, netted the company in 1918 a gain of $594,000 more than the company's estimate of its requirements, was removed only after the board's attention had been called to the facts by the Manufacturers' Council of New Jersey, and that the board should have remedied the condition on its own initiative. Members of the board are John W. Slocum, Alfred S. March, George F. Wright, Andrew Gaul, Jr., and Harry L. Knight.

Mr. King's demand was made in a letter to Governor Runyon. In a statement, Mr. King said the board's report showed that the public was mulcted by the surcharge in 1918 of more than half a million dollars.

"If the Public Service Corporation has been able to derive this excess profit from the comparatively small proportion of its business affected by the decision," he wrote, "what are the conditions affecting its other interests—the gas and transportation interests? If the board permitted itself to be blindfolded to these facts for more than six months after the termination of the war, of what service is it to the people? When it is necessary for a private organization to perform the functions of the board, the time has come for a drastic remedy."

SOLDIER BUREAU NEEDS AID

Must Close Employment Service Unless Funds Are Raised.

William Fellowes Morgan, Chairman of the Re-employment Committee of New York City, announced yesterday that a campaign for $75,000 would begin today to continue the work of the Re-employment Bureau for Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines. In the last three months, he said, this bureau had found jobs for 12,000 ex-service men.

"The bureau has funds to maintain it until only this Saturday," said Mr. Morgan. "The Finance Committee, comprising Dwight W. Morrow, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., and Lincoln Cromwell, believes it is of vital importance to raise additional funds immediately. The men still in the service will not all be discharged until September. It has been our experience that it takes from three to five weeks after the man has been discharged for him to get on the books of the bureau. Another three weeks should be allowed to find positions for men listed at that time. The committee wants funds to carry on the work until Nov. 1.

"The bureau has been supported by welfare organizations which have made the following contributions: Y. M. C. A., $13,000; Jewish Welfare Board, $13,000; War Camp Community Service, $13,000; Red Cross, $13,000; National Catholic War Council, $6,500, and Salvation Army, $1,000. The employment appropriations of these associations are about exhausted and we must appeal to the public for assistance."

DE VALERA BACK FROM TRIP.

He Declares He Was Well Received on Tour.

Eamonn De Valera, who calls himself "President of the Irish Republic," returned yesterday from his transcontinental tour of the United States. At the Waldorf-Astoria he said that throughout the trip, except for the objection of a British naval attaché to the Sinn Fein flag swung out from the window of his hotel in San Francisco, he had been well received.

Mr. De Valera said he found little support for the covenant of the League of Nations, but a great demand for a league based upon truly self-determined nations.

Frank P. Walsh, who with Edward F. Dunne, issued a report of alleged atrocities by British soldiers after they had visited four provinces of Ireland, yesterday made public an answer to the denial of Ian MacPherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in which it was asserted that Mr. Walsh's charges were false. Mr. Walsh reiterated the charges as first made and offered to produce witnesses to corroborate them.

CHURCH CONFERENCE ENDS.

New Era Delegates Pledge Themselves to Evangelical Campaign.

STONY BROOK, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The Presbyterian New Era Conference of the past week came to a close tonight with a communion service at which the lay and clerical delegates united in a service consecrating themselves to the New Era campaign for nation-wide social service and evangelism.

It was voted to summon local delegates from the Presbyteries of the Middle Western States to a New Era Conference at Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 1 to 4, to map out the Western campaign.

Five hundred young people of the Presbyterian churches throughout the East will assemble at Stony Brook Tuesday morning for a week's conference on "intensive training in Christian methods for community and mission service." The Rev. William R. Hall of Philadelphia will be the leader of the conference.

Lima Bean Worm Biting in Jersey.

Hordes of small green worms are laying waste the bean fields of Southern New Jersey, and entomologists of the State Experiment Station have dubbed them "lima bean worms." They recommend arsenate of lead as deadly to them. This is not the first appearance of the worm in New Jersey, but never before has it come in sufficient numbers to be of consequence. It has a voracious appetite, and beans of any kind, size, or description are equally acceptable to it.

ART'S VALUE TO INDUSTRY.

The industrial value of an art collection may be as great as its artistic worth, and the loan exhibition of tapestries and laces now on view in the Metropolitan Art Museum is said to be of importance to the producers in these branches of industry. A pamphlet recently issued by the museum authorities gives an interesting description of the exhibit from this point of view.

"The intrinsic value of this exhibition," runs the pamphlet, "is decidedly overweighed by the inspirational value not only to the public at large, but specifically to that branch of the producing world in the arts here represented, as well as to those branches in some way related to them in material or technique or applied uses, which must constantly draw their motifs, ideals, and encouragement from the great works of past masters in their crafts.

"The laces," the bulletin says, "are chiefly French and Italian, showing in kind of pieces and in technical manipulation the characteristic handicraft of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The exhibit runs the gamut from chalice veils and ecclesiastical flounces to lappets and cap crowns. The tapestries range from the opulent designs of the age of Louis XIV. to the exquisite refinement of the late eighteenth century pictorial tapestries. Among the designers are the names of Boucher and Berain; among the weavers, the great Behagle.

"This exhibition will play its part in the expressed policy of the museum to make the galleries work for the benefit of American design in the industrial arts."

Select Conservative Investments

In these exceptional times even the most conservative investments yield unusually liberal returns. To obtain on your money an average yield of, say, 6%, you can keep well within the limits of conservatism. All the more reason, therefore, why you should be careful to avoid the pitfalls of unsound or untried enterprises, and exercise the utmost discrimination in selecting your investments.

Preferred Stocks

Many investors do not realize that income from preferred stock is exempt from the 8% Normal Federal Income Tax. It is a fact that on incomes of less than $36,000 the Normal Tax of 8% is more than half of the total tax; therefore investors whose income is under that figure save half or more of their tax by investment in preferred stocks as opposed to taxable bonds.

We have just issued our 1919 pamphlet fully descriptive of certain preferred stocks, yielding 6½% to 7% income, which we recommend for investment.

Booklet and information on request.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Cost of Living Inquiry an Important Factor for Industrial Growth

Something of the troubles and problems which have been bothering Europe ever since the war effort ceased is now being experienced by the people of the United States. Labor is finding that, despite the highest wages ever paid in many lines of endeavor, the cost of living is getting out of hand. While the demand for goods continues heavy, there are signs in more than one industry that the persistent rise of prices is working to make buying irregular. Where shortages exist prices still seem to be secondary to the matter of getting products in hand as rapidly as the mills can turn them out, but increased costs must be handed on to the ultimate consumer, and he is beginning to hesitate about buying. Necessities he must have to the limit of his resources, but now it seems to be more pertinent than before what this limit may be. Railway shopmen have struck for an increase of wages which they maintain is necessary merely to buy what they and their families need. A few days ago the chief of a powerful railroad brotherhood called upon President Wilson for assistance. The appeal was less marked than former "demands" made upon Government officers by an insistence upon "rights," and contained more of an urgent call for a solution of the situation upon economic grounds. The railroad men are finding that their dollars are steadily decreasing in purchasing power, and they want to know exactly why this is. The question evidently has been raised by a great many other workers of considerable mass influence, for Congress, under Executive guidance, is examining into the whole broad scheme of living costs. While the inquiry is aimed primarily along the line of proving or disproving charges of gross profiteering in necessities there should develop broader findings than are involved in this single issue. A sidelight may be found in the relation between living expenses and speculation, and it will not be speculation limited to the security markets. The investigators should uncover facts which will give the public a clear understanding of artificial influences at work to make prices go up, and also of true economic forces which cannot be denied in periods like the present. The relation between the wastage of a long war and stocks of food and merchandise will be disclosed so that all may know it. There should develop a greater public knowledge of the effects of such enormous credit inflation as the world has seen in the last five years. It should be discovered whether increases of wages are the cause or the result of advancing commodity prices.

A great corporate interest as well as an individual interest is contained in the proposed investigation of living costs. Employers could continue to raise wages as long as their customers were willing to pay steadily rising prices for their goods, but it requires no sage to see that such a process could not go on very long. The Federal Reserve Board has advanced the opinion that high prices will continue for a considerable period, and this is acceded to by producers, yet every one whose outlook is not purely selfish knows that the situation of industry will be made stronger with the establishment of an equilibrium between wages and selling prices. A vast foreign demand for American goods is being held in abeyance by the lack of sufficient credit facilities and by the unfavorable position of the exchanges, but it is not to be overlooked that high prices are playing a part also. The proper credits will be arranged in time, and these will have a beneficial effect on exchange, yet it is not inconceivable that a mounting price scale, if continued without bounds, would tend to check foreign buying when other conditions were favorable.

In dealing with living expenses there are facts to be considered which promise to have an important bearing upon the future outlay at home and abroad. The Government's report on the cotton crop condition as of July 25 indicated a yield not greatly in excess of 11,000,000 bales. In the last crop year a total 800,000 bales greater was gathered, and this left a surplus for the present year which was not enough to fill the necessities of consumers without a great outturn from the 1919 planting. The crop, instead of being large, threatens to be small, and the most trying month of the growing period still lies ahead. Private estimates on the wheat disclose a disappointing yield in many localities, and the most optimistic forecast now comprises no more than 1,000,000,000 bushels, compared with 1,200,000,000 bushels or more expected six weeks ago. Europe will probably need 300,000,000 bushels from us, and the home demand for bread and seed is calculated at a figure between 600,000,000 and 700,000,000 bushels. The indications, therefore, are for no surplus to speak of, and the question arises as to what prices might do if a suggestion heard in Washington were followed and the market made free, the Government standing ready to make good the farmers' guaranteed price out of its $1,000,000,000 fund. The prices of hogs and hog products rose to record levels after restrictions were removed; corn advanced to unusual figures, and cotton around the 35 cent level tells the story there of practically unhampered dealings.

Stocks have not been as good media of late as a month ago for acquiring profits on the long side. The market has been bereft of its Spring exuberance; it has looked tired, and signs appear now and then of distribution by traders who bought lower down. Whether or not the process of discounting prosperous times for the industries has been fairly well completed, the fact has been evident for some time that stocks cannot be "bulled" as easily as in May and the first half of June. Call money apparently has a lot to do with it. The corporate requirements at Aug. 1 were moderate, yet they came upon a money market so full of loans last week that the demand loan quotation was quickly bid upward one day to 20 per cent. There has been a tremendous output of new securities in the last few months, the increase in the seven months ended with July being no less than 70 per cent. over the same period last year. A vast amount of investment funds has gone into the new issues, and it is likely that considerable undistributed securities still remain with syndicates, necessitating heavy accommodation from the banks. This is one factor which has helped to tighten money. Another is the needs of growing industry, for, when all unfavorable items are reviewed and catalogued, the evidence supports a belief that the country's business turnover is very great.

Oil Loss in Storage

Enough work has been done to show that the losses on oil are large during the first year. The results of all data are so conflicting, however, that it would be impossible to make a statement of the percentage of loss the first year. It has been shown to vary with the type of tank and with the climate. From available information we assume a 6% loss for the first twelve months that oil is above the ground. Two per cent. or three per cent. of this six per cent. may be lost during the first two or three months, while the other 3% or 4% may be lost during the next nine or ten months.

NIXON WOULD MERGE ALL CITY'S TRACTION

END PERPETUAL FRANCHISES

Proposes to Protect Legitimate Investments and Eliminate Holding Concerns.

In a statement issued yesterday Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon replied to some of the attacks made upon him because of his 2-cent transfer order and his attitude toward the railroad companies. He also outlined a plan for the reorganization of the companies which he thought would simplify operation, safeguard investors in the properties, and serve the public better than the present method.

Replying to his critics, chief of whom is Mayor Hylan, Mr. Nixon refrained from mentioning names. He said in substance that those who made declarations against public officials without submitting some sort of proof to sustain them covertly charged the existence of improper relations between them and those apparently favored.

His plan for bettering the transportation situation is to place all of the lines under one management, or possibly two, by the separation of the surface and the rapid transit lines, the termination of all present franchises and the substitution for them of franchises to live only for fixed periods, and a flexible fare to be subject to the financial needs of the companies. He also suggested that the city have upon the Directorates of the companies a representative to see that the public's rights were protected.

The idea of consolidating all of the lines into one concern, abolishing holding companies, and carrying on the business of the lines in the full view of the public has been suggested before. It is believed that such a course would meet the approval of Federal Judge Mayer, who appointed the receivers for the New York railways and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Companies.

Mr. Nixon's Statement.

"The recent decisions of the Court of Appeals," says Mr. Nixon's statement, "have clarified the traction situation in a way which presents to city and State officials both duty and opportunity.

"Their duty is to promote the interests of the traveling public by insuring adequate facilities and service, and further avoid any recurrence of the present emergencies by just and equitable readjustment of the entire traction situation.

"It is to be regretted that statements made to the public have given the impression that under any existing conditions the traction systems can fall into the hands of the city government.

"Those responsible for such statements know that the courts will protect property rights, thus safeguarding bondholders by receivers. And even when they know from their own previous statements that the city is unable to acquire such systems, except through confiscation or abandonment, both of which they know also to be impossible, they cannot promise cheaper or better conditions for the traveling public under their ownership.

"Such arguments follow a vicious circle very similar to the open charging of improper relations between public officials, who must be guided by their intelligence and judgment, and those seemingly favored.

"The opportunity is that the relations between municipalities and railroads may be so readjusted that co-operation shall take the place of conflict, that flexible fares shall meet changing conditions, that both city and investors shall receive fair returns, and that the city may be able to establish municipal ownership or operation, or both, when it desires and is in a position to do so.

"The present situation is intolerable and must have an early solution. The transportation systems are, some bankrupt, and others approaching bankruptcy.

"Their ability to meet or even properly protect the necessities of passenger traffic is suspended or threatened. Those who deny this and do not try to furnish proofs, but rely upon vague insinuation, do not understand the facts as they exist or prefer to leave the public in error.

"Insofar as the transfer orders are concerned, they were based upon the fullest power on my part as well as a sense of justice to all concerned. Simply for purposes of controversy to question my power does no good. The courts will attend to that.

Suggests Solution of Problem.

"My study of the question confirms my earlier conclusions. From the viewpoint of the city, or the public and of the investor the solution of the present emergency must be along the following lines, which in the main repeat the views I have heretofore stated:

"1. Each of the present transit systems to be simplified by the consolidation or merging of the constituent companies into one railroad corporation.

"Of course, it may be found desirable to have separate corporations for surface railroads and rapid transit railroads, respectively. Personally, I trust to see such steps taken as will insure one corporation only, with which the city and the commission can deal, but this is a detail.

"2. All holding corporations, so called, (not railroad corporations,) to be abolished.

"3. Leases of roads to be terminated.

"4. Perpetual franchises to be changed to franchises limited to fixed periods within city charter limitations, or to what are known as indeterminate franchises.

"5. Values of properties to be agreed upon or arrived at by such means as will leave them unquestioned.

"6. The city to have the option of acquiring the properties within a fixed period at the agreed valuation, plus the cost of additions, extensions, and improvements. (It may be desirable to provide for amortization of purchase price out of earnings.)

"7. A flexible fare to be established, whereby fares shall be automatically adjusted to meet the cost of service, together with a reasonable return both to city and investors upon the agreed fixed valuations and upon the cost of additions, extensions, and improvements. The variation in fare to be secured mainly by maximum and minimum limits in a surplus fund, the operation of which shall be so simple that it can be taught to and understood by the pupils of our public schools.

"8. The city to have representatives on the Directorates of all companies.

Sees No Need for Long Delay.

"If the transportation companies are disposed to take up this matter along such lines, I am prepared to use all my official power to bring about a satisfactory, and it is to be hoped a permanent, settlement of the whole situation.

"If the corporations consider their situation as bad as represented it should be possible to work out an agreement along the above lines without too serious delay.

"Difficulties, of course, will present themselves in connection with the rapid transit contracts, but they can be overcome. Legislation may be necessary to empower the city to act, but with all parties in agreement this should not be difficult to secure, provided it be a fair and equitable settlement, advantageous to the city, protective of honest investment, and serviceable to the public. Other cities facing similar emergencies have entered into somewhat similar agreements.

"The very ones who have been most bitter in their denouncement of transit contracts can find in the present situation New York's great opportunity for the permanent settlement of its greatest problem directly in the public interest.

"As regards the changes in transfer arrangements, they have gone very easily into operation, the common sense of the people being perfectly able to understand the necessity, which for a time put the travelling public to such inconvenience."

FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING.

President Urged to Veto the Repeal Bill.

Organized labor in New York and the National Daylight Saving Association, of which former Borough President Marcus M. Marks is the President, have begun a campaign for the defeat of the latest effort to have the daylight saving law repealed. Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, who says he represents 350,000 organized workers in this city, sent a telegram to President Wilson yesterday urging that the bill to repeal the present law be vetoed.

"Organized labor wants the daylight law continued," he told the President. "I speak for 350,000 workers and their kin, a total of more than 1,000,000 residents of New York City. They have been benefited by the extra hour of light and want the law continued.

"Daylight saving has been proved to be of great economic value. Amateur gardening in one year produced more than $525,000,000 worth of foodstuffs. And thousands of organized workers, through the extra hour of light, availed themselves of the opportunity to till their little plots and raise produce for their homes, thereby saving a tidy sum that would have gone into the pockets of the profiteers."

Marcus M. Marks, President of the National Daylight Saving Association, issued a final appeal for all to protest against the Senate's action.

"Millions of protests," he said, "should be forwarded to Congress by the residents of New York. They should get their relatives and friends in other cities to do likewise.

"The next few days are fraught with danger for the daylight law. But vigorous action by those who favor daylight living—and they number 90 per cent. of the nation—should still forever the opposition."

COAL SHORTAGE IN ITALY.

Its Lack Causing Great Economic Distress, Says Returning American.

Henry M. Rae of the Rome Executive Committee of the American Free Milk and Relief for Italy, Inc., is making a special trip to America to aid in a nation-wide drive for funds with which to extend the present relief work. Mr. Rae, a New York man who has twice been decorated by the Italian Government, once for bravery under fire, is expected to arrive here Wednesday on the Dante Alighieri.

"More than 2,500,000 soldiers of the Italian Army, recently demobilized, have been added to the millions of other men unable to find employment," says a message from Mr. Rae. "With the exception of those who are farmers, these men cannot hope to find employment until the country's industries again are started; and they cannot be started without coal, which has become almost an unknown quantity. Even now the children of the poor actually are starving, and the general undernourishment of the adult population has resulted in an alarming increase in the number of babies of normal parents being born blind. Italy must have help, immediate help, to tide her over the crisis."

Sound as Bonds

The preferred stocks of some of the strong industrial corporations, with no bonded indebtedness, are actually sounder than many bonds and notes.

They have first claim on all the assets. Their dividends are a first claim on the earnings. Many of them have liberal sinking funds and other special protective provisions.

Yielding higher returns than most bonds and being exempt from normal Federal Income Tax, preferred stocks are growing in popularity with prudent investors. In many states they are exempt from personal taxes.

18 STATES FAIL TO PAY EXPENSES

COST IS $5.47 PER CAPITA

This Is Low Compared with Expenditures of the Large Cities—Connecticut Has Largest Balance.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—In thirty of the forty-eight States the revenues of the last fiscal year exceeded the expenditures for governmental costs, including interest and outlays for permanent improvements, by $37,417,163, or 55.5 cents per capita, but in the remaining eighteen States the revenues fell below the expenditures $14,597,448, or 40.5 cents per capita. Taking the entire forty-eight States as a whole, the excess of revenues over expenditures was $22,819,714, or 22.1 cents per capita. The foregoing are among the facts brought out in a report entitled "Financial Statistics of States, 1918," soon to be issued by the Bureau of the Census.

The aggregate revenues of all the States during the fiscal year were $588,305,651; the aggregate expenditures for current governmental costs, including interest, $499,342,973, and the aggregate outlays for permanent improvements, $66,142,964.

Of the total revenues, $459,774,245, or nearly four-fifths, represented receipts from the various kinds of taxes. About 45 per cent. of this amount, or $209,479,197, was derived from the general property tax, made up of taxes on real estate and personal property. Of the remainder, the largest item, $91,899,583, was contributed by business taxes other than on the liquor traffic; $87,096,809 came from special property taxes; $36,084,155 was raised from license taxes other than on business; $20,849,332 was derived from the liquor traffic; $12,264,613 was received from special taxes other than on property, and $2,100,556 represented poll taxes.

The sources of largest revenue, aside from taxes, are found in the earnings of general departments and in interest. The former are made up of all receipts from fees, charges, minor sales, &c., by the various departments and offices of the State Government, exclusive of the public service enterprises. These yielded, during the fiscal year 1918, $72,543,618.

For all the States, taken as a group, the per capita revenue receipts from all sources combined amounted to $5.69. Of this amount $2.87 was derived from property taxes; $1.58 from other taxes, 70 cents from earnings of general departments, and 54 cents from all other sources.

The average per capita expenditures for all governmental costs amounted to $5.47. Of this sum, $4.61 represented expenses; 64 cents, outlays, and 22 cents, interest.

When these per capita figures are considered in connection with the corresponding ones for cities of over 30,000 population, it is seen that the cost of conducting the State governments is very low as compared with that of carrying on the municipal governments. For the 227 American cities of over 30,000 population the average per capita expenditures for all governmental costs, including interest, but excluding outlays, during the fiscal year 1918 amounted to $26.05, as compared with only $4.83 for the States; for the cities the average per capita expenditures for outlays were $8.11, as compared with 64 cents for the States; and for the cities the average per capita receipts from property taxes were $21.03, as against only $2.87 for the States.

For the forty-eight States taken together the revenues exceeded the payments for current expenses and interest by $88,962,678, an amount considerably in excess of the total outlays, which aggregated $66,142,964. Thus the total revenues of the States exceeded the total expenditures for governmental costs, including interest and outlays, by $22,819,714.

In all but seven of the States the revenue receipts exceeded the payments for current governmental expenses and interest; and in thirty the revenues exceeded the total expenditures for governmental costs, including interest and outlays. These thirty States were Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Arizona, Washington, and Oregon. The greatest excess, $5,646,216, was shown by Connecticut.

Binghamton Fights Fare Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Binghamton has instituted proceedings to restrain the Public Service Commission from granting the application of the Binghamton Street Railway Company for an increase of fare on the grounds that a contract exists between the city and the company in its franchise fixing the fare at 5 cents. The application for a writ of prohibition made before Justice Nichols at Albany was opposed by the Binghamton Railway Company and the Interborough of New York.

B. R. T. MEN PLAN STRIKE.

Will Stop Work Wednesday Morning if Receiver Refuses Demands.

Edward Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee named at the recent meeting of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit employes in Sängerbund Hall, Brooklyn, said last night that unless the men of the system are assured that their demands for increased wages and an eight-hour day are to be favorably acted upon a strike order may be issued, tying up all the subway, elevated, and surface lines of the company at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mr. Smith said: "The committee will meet this morning and go to the offices of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to wait upon Receiver Garrison. We have been informed that he is on a vacation, and will not be back until the end of the month. We do not intend to wait until he returns to have him take up our demands. We will ask his secretary or some other official of the road to send the receiver a telegram asking that he treat with this committee.

"We will also appeal to Federal Judge Mayer, who appointed Receiver Garrison, to help us. Frankly we do not expect much aid from either Garrison or Judge Mayer, but we want to put them on record if possible. The men are all talking strike, and it is hard to restrain them now.

"The success or failure of this committee will be reported at the meeting of the men on Tuesday night, when very probably a strike vote will be taken, calling for immediate action. If the men vote to go out, or if they decide to leave the matter in the hands of this committee, a strike will be ordered for 5 o'clock on Wednesday morning."

FIVE WEEKS' STRIKE ENDS.

National Conduit Co. Will Return Bond Given by Two Workmen.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The five weeks' strike in progress at the plant of the National Conduit and Cable Company here was tentatively settled this afternoon through the influence of Colonel M. J. Regan of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration and Village President Thomas J. Goodwin. The strikers promised these officials to go back to work in the morning if the $1,000 cash bail put up by two strikers when they were arrested a few days ago is returned to them and the charges dropped. When the money is returned the men will go back to work.

Vice President G. M. Hawley of the company stated that the money would be turned over to the men in the morning just as soon as the bank opened. It is expected the entire force will then go into the mill.

The men will get back their old jobs, but instead of the increase of 13 cents they demanded they will receive 3 cents now, with a promise of more later if they speed up production. The strikers numbered about 500, but 500 other workers were kept out of work by the strike.

ATTACKS RAILROAD VIEWS OF LOVETT

Lawyer for Security Owners Defends Plan Criticised by Union Pacific Chief.

CHALLENGES HIS STATEMENT

Proposal Would Let Government Use Excess Profits for Transportation Improvements.

S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, yesterday made public a letter from Forney Johnston of the Association's counsel, taking exception to the views of Judge Robert S. Lovett on the railway problem. Mr. Johnston characterizes statements made by the Union Pacific's President as inaccurate, and says his position is unsound.

Judge Lovett opposed the Warfield plan for the return of the roads. Among other things, he said its principal provision for a fixed percentage rate of return on property investment and the taking of any excess by the Government for transportation purposes was unconstitutional. It is brought out that his views are not shared by such of his associates as Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, and Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore and Ohio, or by such men among the advisory counsel of the security owners, as Elihu Root, John G. Milburn, John S. Miller, and H. L. Bond.

"Railway executives," said Mr. Johnston, "who stand in the way of adequate relief in this crisis assume a heavy responsibility to the public depending for transportation on the existing systems, as well as investors in railway securities." The only right which the strong railroads would be deprived of under the Warfield plan, he contends, would be the right to excess profits.

According to the letter, eighty-four out of 162 systems would not have earned over 6 per cent., net, under the Warfield plan for a fixed minimum return. Seventy-eight systems would have received a total of $24,443,321 over earnings of the pre-war period, and none would be prevented from paying customary dividends.

Takes Issue on Three Points.

Mr. Johnston calls Judge Lovett's proposal for a definite rule of rate making "mere verbiage." He summarizes into three propositions what he terms the broad assertions of the Lovett pamphlet, and replies as follows:

"1. The pamphlet states that the substantial objects sought by the regulation of excess earnings of railroads is to take earnings from the stockholders of prosperous roads and give same to the stockholders of the weak roads.

"The association plan proposes the regulation of excess earnings as a necessary corollary to its primary purpose of providing a definite minimum rate level. It does not propose, involve, or seek the taking of earnings from prosperous roads to give them to the weak roads. So the paper is inaccurate in its statement in reference to an easily ascertainable fundamental.

"2. The pamphlet asserts that Congress is without power to take the net earnings belonging to the stockholders of one railroad company for the benefit of the stockholders of another railroad company.

"If that means to suggest that the association plan proposes any such result the statement is inaccurate. If the writer means to assert that any plan for the regulation of the excess earnings, such as that proposed by the association, is unconstitutional, then his conclusion is demonstrably unsound.

"3. The pamphlet makes studied effort to suggest that under any plan involving the regulation of excess earnings a direct conflict of interest must arise between what it denominates weak roads and what it calls prosperous roads, and seeks to arraign all supposedly prosperous roads against any division of their excess earnings with the Government for expenditure in the public interest in transportation.

"Under the proposal of the association all railroads would derive their revenue from rates and not from the treasuries of the more prosperous railroads. There could be no possible conflict in interest arising out of regulation of earnings. If the suggestion was for the purpose of creating a factitious controversy and thus confuse Congress in this matter, the effort would seem to be indefensible."

Outlines Warfield Plan.

"The proposals for remedial legislation presented by the association are designed to meet two stubborn conditions which have broken down railroad credit. The first is the practice of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make rates in every instance based on the routes or combination of routes showing lowest competitive cost, and to disclaim any responsibility for the result of rates in the aggregate. The second condition is the demonstrated impossibility of securing a substantial lift in rate levels necessary to prevent destruction of less favorably circumstanced carriers without some regulation of the excess earnings that would be received by more favorably circumstanced carriers.

"To meet these conditions the fundamentals of the association's proposal are:

"1. That Congress shall deliver a peremptory mandate to the commission requiring it to consider the result of rates in the aggregate, and never to permit the rates would produce a net return of the rates would produce a net return of less than 6 per cent. on the combined railway investment; and that

"2. Congress shall be encouraged to grant this statutory mandate and the commission encouraged to construe it liberally, by setting up in the public interest a limitation upon any excessive and unnecessary earnings which might be realized under the new levels by carriers with an earning power above the average, through surrender of a fair portion of the excess.

"It is proposed that this limitation be worked out by requiring a division with the Government—not with other railroads—of earnings in excess of 6 per cent., after allowing the railroad earnings such excess to set aside adequate corporate reserve to assure its customary dividends, to protect its credit, and to provide against years of sub-normal traffic.

Use Excess to Buy Cars.

"It is proposed that the portion to be retained by the Government be expended in the public interest in transportation, one purpose being the purchase of cars for common use by all carriers, &c.

"The Lovett pamphlet asserts (Page 7) that the traffic congestion of 1917-1918 did not occur on the so-called weak roads but on the prosperous roads. More than two-thirds of the mileage of the United States must necessarily be included within the class condemned as weak roads, so that statement cannot be accurate. The unsoundness of the position taken by Judge Lovett will be understood when it is realised that the 'weak' railroads, which earned less than 6 per cent. in 1915-16-17, comprised 119 out of the 162 systems, Class 1 railroads.

"The Union Pacific, on the basis of the figures of the first five months of 1919, is earning 134 per cent. of its standard return, and would undoubtedly be classed as a 'prosperous' railroad. If Federal control were relinquished without remedial legislation; but what would be said of the Santa Fe, earning 68 per cent.; of the Burlington, earning 65 per cent.; of the Southern Pacific, earning 47 per cent.; of the Pennsylvania Lines, East, earning 23 per cent.; of the Pennsylvania Lines, West, earning 6 per cent.; or of the Reading or Baltimore and Ohio, earning less than their operating expenses; or, indeed, of all the Federal controlled roads as a whole, earning only 33 per cent. of their standard return, and less than 2 per cent. on their combined property investment?

"Without decisive and courageous remedial legislation by Congress the only transition from the present status of the railroads is into headlong bankruptcy.

Must Make Concessions.

"A fatal defect in the present system of rates, apparently advocated by Judge Lovett, has been that in all presentations to the Commission for general relief the roads earning adequate returns and the roads earning inadequate returns have been chained together. As thus presented by the railway executives, relief has been denied on this joint application because the system makes it impossible to grant relief where relief is peculiarly necessary.

"The security owners have realized that there must be a change, even if it encroaches upon prerogatives heretofore enjoyed by railway executives. Under the existing system the latter have not been able to convince the Commission as to the necessities of the railroads. Without attempting to place the responsibility, or to criticise either of the parties, the association asks Congress to define a governmental policy, rather than leave the executives to deal with this vital question, in the hope that they may be more successful with rate authorities in the future than they have in the past."

PUT 6,760 SOLDIERS IN JOBS.

Pennsylvania State Bureau Reports Big Industries Seek Hands.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Aug. 3.—During July 8,855 returned soldiers applied to the Bureau of Employment of the State Department of Labor and Industry for positions and 6,760 were placed. There were 312 fewer positions offered by employers than the number of soldier applicants, but numerous employers asked for soldiers, especially those who had served in France.

The Bureau's branch offices received applications from 118,729 civilians for work and 16,150 were directed to jobs, while of 1,508 women who applied 1,244 received places. Reports from branches indicate that the big industries of the State are sending in urgent demands for men and that many of the smaller industries are also seeking hands.

SWISS SOCIALISTS ASK CONFISCATION OF FOOD

Party Indorses Strikers and Wants State Monopoly of Exports and Imports.

BERNE, Aug. 3.—The Swiss Socialist Party issued a manifesto today indorsing the demands of the Basle and Zurich strikers. The manifesto demands, among other things, confiscation of all stocks of foodstuffs, clothes, and shoes and introduction of a State monopoly of imports and exports so as to control profits and prevent speculation.

It was announced at a meeting of the Federal Council here yesterday that the strike movement was stationary at Basle and decreasing at Zurich.

GENEVA, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Troops sent by the Government to quell strike riots at Basle, Zurich, and Berne were forced to use machine guns mounted on automobiles during the disorders yesterday. The strikers at Basle ripped up the pavements and bombarded the troops, injuring many. A number of strikers were killed and wounded, and many were arrested.

At Basle the outbreak was said to be of a Bolshevist character, while at Zurich the disorders were attributed to the increasing cost of living.

Newspapers have ceased publication and tramways have discontinued running at Basle. Operation of the gas and electric services is threatened. The ringleaders of the strike are reported to be youths 18 and 20 years old. The military are guarding all banks and factories.

STATE BANKS' RESOURCES.

Increase of Three Billions in the Last Five Years.

ALBANY, Aug. 3.—The resources reported by the 101 trust companies, 211 State banks of deposit and discount, and 89 private bankers under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department on June 30, 1919, totaled $4,949,582,871. Of this amount, according to reports submitted to the State Superintendent of Banks, George I. Skinner, trust companies reported resources of $3,654,927,090; the State banks of deposit and discount $1,270,298,084, and the private bankers $24,357,697.

The reported resources of the savings banks and other institutions and individuals under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department at the beginning of 1919, which are the latest available figures, total $2,430,631,011. It would therefore appear that the resources of all institutions and individuals under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department now total at least $7,380,213,882.

The reports filed with Superintendent Skinner as of June 30 last show that the State banks increased their total resources from $1,120,032,034 on Feb. 21, 1919, to $1,270,298,084 on June 30 last, a gain of $150,266,050. During the same period their total deposits as reported increased from $895,067,542 to $1,050,991,901, or $155,984,359. During this period the reported resources of the trust companies increased from $3,544,184,123 to $3,654,927,090, a gain of $310,742,967, while their deposits increased during that period from $2,553,918,531 to $2,911,933,236, or $358,014,699. During the same period the number of trust companies increased from 98 to 101. Two of the three additional trust companies reporting were formerly national banks, having been converted into trust companies.

During the same period the reported resources of the private bankers increased from $22,057,247 to $24,357,697, or $2,320,450. Their total deposits increased from $16,456,569 to $18,155,167, or $1,698,598. According to the last reports available prior to the adoption of the revision of the New York State banking law on April 16, 1914, just prior to the beginning of the war, the total reported resources of institutions and individuals supervised by the New York State Banking Department were approximately $4,430,377,078. In about five years the reported resources of these institutions and individuals increased nearly three billion dollars.

What About Lumber?

Recently we called your attention to the preferred stock of a brick company with 60% back dividends. This stock has had a substantial rise.

We now call your attention to the preferred stock of a lumber company with over 100% in back dividends. The lumber industry, like the brick industry, is profiting by the building boom. Surplus lumber accumulated during the last 15 years has been used up. This means more earnings and equities for the stock we have in mind.

WAGE-FIXING TEST SET FOR THIS WEEK

MAXIMUM WAGE SCALES

Employers Say This Is Basis on Which They Will Figure New Construction.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the entire Eastern building construction industry to reach a basis of agreement between labor and employers so that construction, now that material prices are practically stabilized, may proceed with some semblance of freedom.

Several important economic factors are operating to stimulate building construction now. In fact, the start already has been made. New York mason material dealers, compiling their reports for actual movement of materials from their yards to actual building operations in July, will show a gain of more than 47 per cent. in volume over June and approximately 11 per cent. gain over the best month since July, 1917. This gain shows a construction market for New York, in spite of handicaps of labor strikes and harbor transportation delays, of about 49 per cent. of a normal pre-war building season.

The volume of building construction easily could be between 60 and 70 per cent. of a pre-war normal year if skilled building labor and employers could effect a maximum wage scale for all trades for a definite period into the future. Building construction is being retarded now mainly because responsible contractors are not inclined to freely figure prospective work. They will adhere to this policy so long as there is no certainty as to how long wage scales will remain at a given level. The point in issue will probably be developed this week. If recourse is taken to a lockout to bring the issue to a point, it is more than likely that considerable impetus will be given to the Bronx house building boom, because the organized employers are more concerned with the big commercial operations in this and other cities.

Index figures pointing to the high cost of living show that July costs were higher than those of June, but that general costs were much higher for the same months last year. Economists studying the factors entering into the cost of living and cost of construction of buildings concur in the belief that the high level has been touched or is almost within touching distance.

The best minds in the building material producing and distributing markets admit that the top has been reached, except in so far as the cost of labor ascends and, perhaps, also, the impending advance in freight rates, which is not generally considered an important factor in its relation to the actual cost of the construction of a building at the present time. This realization of the limit of elasticity to construction costs is shown clearly in current price tables covering not only delivered prices in this market but delivered building material prices in the leading cities of the country.

There has been a noticeable halt in the heedless price advances that have featured the building material market in the first six months of the year. Producers have reached a plateau at which they are apparently trying to hold quotations, at least until such time as actual building construction will so sap building material supply as to force prices upward.

The Dow Service Daily Building Reports does not believe that the high price peak of building materials has been reached, however. Price advances up to the present time have been attributable largely to increased wages. The element of supply and demand for these finished building materials has not been noticeably operative in any line with the exception of Portland cement, sand, crushed stone, and gravel, lumber, and one or two specialties.

Once a standard of wage scale is fixed for a term sufficiently long to enable contractors to figure the vast volume of building work they are asked to estimate on, there will be such a call for building materials from consuming sources as to force prices much higher. If labor would wait for that time to come before asking for wage increases in such quick succession that manufacturers or contractors cannot adjust their figures before another wage boost is demanded, both invested capital and labor would enjoy the fruits of a nation-wide era of building operations that without question would pass beyond bounds not now easily imagined.

It is for this reason that employers are trying to effect a maximum wage for a certain definite period, so that the true extent of this potential building material demand may be realized.

Building interests sense a new condition arising in the construction industry over a large part of the country. It concerns building material supply, labor supply, and transportation facilities.

Something about the magnitude of the building material demand is already known. Skilled labor supply is a settled factor, but unskilled labor supply is one filled with much foreboding by manufacturers everywhere. The transportation problem is a hard problem because of the inadequacy of the railroads to handle an abnormal movement of finished building materials or the raw material now necessary to bring from greater distances.

In the meantime people want to proceed with their building plans. Building materials cannot be produced to any extent in Winter and the Summer has not permitted much of a supply to be laid in. But the more anxious people are to get their building work started the less anxious are contractors to make estimates while the labor wage situation is so uncertain. The chief requirement of the construction market, therefore, is to bring about as much stabilization in the wage of labor as there has developed in the building material market.

The Right Plan for Each Man

Life Insurance Has Not Advanced in Price!

Since the cost of living went up, and the earning power of money remains about the same, you know it requires proportionately more insurance to protect your family now than was required four years ago.

Life insurance is one of the few necessities that haven't advanced in price. From among many plans worked out to meet present economic conditions we suggest:

Plan 43 Guarantees an income of $1,200 yearly to the wife and $20,000 to her children who survive her. A policy that combines a will and a trust income.
Where husband and wife are the same age $1,200 yearly income, with $20,000 for later division to the children.
Requiring a yearly deposit of:

Age 30	$481.80	Age 45	$755.00
" 35	516.80	" 50	921.40
" 40	634.00	" 55	1166.40

THE SECOND DIVISION TO BE PARADED HERE

First Marines of Famous Regular Command, Many of Them Four-Stripers, Arrive Here.

Sam Brown Belt Buried at Sea—Marines Will Return to Navy After March in This City.

New York yesterday welcomed home the first of the marines belonging to the 2d Division of regulars, who arrived on the transports Santa Clara and George Washington. Coincident with their homecoming a telegram from the Adjutant General announced that the famous "Devil Dogs" would be paraded in this city as soon as the entire division had arrived.

Although they came home nine months after the cessation of hostilities the marines received a noisy greeting, both at Hoboken and down the bay, that surprised them. Major Gen. George Barnett, Commandant of the Marine Corps, and his staff went down the bay, as did many friends and relatives, to greet the men.

Major Gen. John A. Lejeune, commander of the 2d Division, was taken by surprise when Major Gen. David H. Shanks, commanding officer of the Port of Debarkation, told him that the "Devil Dogs" would parade before the scattering of the units. General Lejeune said it was a source of great satisfaction to him to know that the people here would have a chance to see his "boys."

As to the date, General McManus, Troop Movement Officer at the Port of Debarkation, said he expected the parade would take place on Aug. 8 or Aug. 12. General McManus said more than 5,000 Marines were now here, with the remainder of the division at sea.

Speaking of his men, General Lejeune, who succeeded Major Gen. James G. Harbord as commander of the division in July of last year, said the men had been anxious to get home for a long time, as they were among the first to go across. Many of his men were four-stripers, he said, and were war weary.

Captain Long gave out a letter of appreciation of the work accomplished by the 2d Division sent by André Tardieu, High Commissioner of Franco-American Affairs, to General Lejeune as the division sailed.

Sam Browne Belt Buried at Sea.

On Saturday, the officers on board the George Washington held funeral services for the Sam Browne belt, which was buried with appropriate ceremonies at sea. On learning that the belt was taboo in this country by military regulations, Captain James Ryland of the Fifth Marines was elected master of ceremonies to arrange for the obsequies. A bona fide casket was obtained and the forbidden belt was placed in it. All the officers were summoned to B deck where the services were held. Chopin's funeral march was played by the combined bands of the George Washington and the 6th Regiment, while four officers above the rank of Captain, in their bathrobes, acted as pallbearers. The funeral oration was delivered by Captain Ryland, and, as the coffin was lowered into the sea, every officer removed his Sam Browne and placed it across his left arm. Least sorrowful of all, according to the officers, were the enlisted men, whose regard for the Sam Browne has been only second to their love of the military police. They lustily cheered as the coffin disappeared under the water.

The mascot list of the Marine units included fifty-six dogs, two monkeys, four deer, one fox, a cat, and an ant eater. The last named pet is an old veteran, having enlisted in the 43d Company of the 5th Marines in December, 1916. Members of the company declared yesterday that he had discharged his duties as mascot with rare success, as the unit had suffered the least casualties of any in the regiment.

The units on board the George Washington were the 5th Marines complete, the Supply Train and 2d Battalion of the 6th Marines, the 2d Division Headquarters Troop and Headquarters Detachment and the 332d Field Signal Battalion. The Santa Clara brought back the Machine Gun Battalion of the 5th Marines.

After the parade the marine units of the 2d Division will return to their original status as units of the navy. A General Order issued by Secretary Baker authorizes the release of the marines from the service.

BERGER GETS FULL PAY.

Socialist Fighting for Seat in Congress Has Had $3,125 Salary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Even if Victor Berger never sets foot in Washington again he has already benefited from the United States Government to the extent of nearly $4,500. Added to this is the cost of the inquiry to determine whether Berger is too disloyal to occupy the seat to which he has been elected in the House.

The inquiry has been suspended until Sept. 15, by which time Henry F. Cochems, attorney for Mr. Berger, is expected to file his brief. The sub-committee which has been hearing testimony will then start making up its report. This report may not be ready until October. No matter whether it recommends that Berger be thrown out of the House, and that body sustains the report, by October Mr. Berger will have been paid a tidy sum by Uncle Sam.

Tomorrow is payday for House members and Mr. Berger will receive his $625 monthly salary as "member elect," just as full-fledged Representatives do. He has received salary ever since Congress convened, March 4, and his salary, in all, counting that due tomorrow, has amounted to $3,125. Of course he will receive salary while the House is in recess, and on Sept. 1 another $625 will be due him.

In addition to this, he has so far received $371.20 in mileage and his clerks have been paid according to schedule. Up to tomorrow the clerk hire of the "member elect" will be $933.34.

By tomorrow Mr. Berger will have received $3,125 for salary, $371.20 in mileage, and $933.34 for clerk salary, making $4,429.54 in all. By October, outside of any additional mileage, this will be increased by $1,250, two months' salary, and $533.32 in two months' clerk salary, making a total of $6,312.86.

WOULD FIGHT BOLSHEVISM.

Representative Suggests Counter-propaganda as Most Effective Means

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Representative Herbert C. Pell, Jr., of New York City, in a statement issued today, warns of the menace of Bolshevism, and urges that the surest way to fight this economic disease is by counter-propaganda, which proved so effective against the Germans.

"It would be a very good thing if we would get volunteer speakers, similar to the four-minute men during the war, to conduct a campaign against Bolshevism," said Mr. Pell. "The menace is serious and should be taken seriously. I sincerely hope that the danger will be averted. But we can rest assured that the best way to meet it is not to shut our eyes to its importance."

Mr. Pell added that the majority of the people of New York did not realize the danger which lies in the Bolshevist agitation.

PLANNED ADVERTISING - FOREIGN -

FUNDAMENTALLY, business is the same the world over. People want certain goods and shopkeepers satisfy the demand. But—

Customs often change as national boundary lines are crossed. Some countries have laws that necessitate special selling methods. Names and labels that are good and protectable in one country often may be ludicrous or might not be permitted in another.

Our Foreign Advertising Department knows.

This department was established primarily to serve our present clients intelligently. They have had the value of Planned Advertising demonstrated to them and desired the same efficient thoroughness to characterize their foreign efforts. The principles of Planned Advertising required no change; the service itself was simply extended.

When a manufacturer has reached the point where further expansion in domestic selling is impractical, he should prepare to corral the Brazilian milreis, the Argentine peso, French franc and English pound. Our services include (1) a thorough analysis of the product as to its adaptability for export; (2) a complete investigation and report on all phases of marketing conditions and chances for success in the countries in which it is desired to operate; (3) a practical merchandising and advertising plan complete to the most infinite detail.

A Woman Banker

To help women in personal financial matters

WE beg to differ with those reactionaries who say, "Women have not made real strides in financial affairs."

On the contrary, our varied experience with women depositors proves this: "In these times women are each day becoming more accustomed to the careful handling of funds."

We welcome this as a healthful sign of the advancing times. And for our part we wish to do all we can to further women's understanding of business and money matters.

As one tangible step in this direction, Miss Virginia Furman was recently elected an Assistant Secretary of the Columbia Trust Company.

As before, she will make her headquarters at the Fifth Avenue and 34th Street Branch of the Columbia Trust Company.

Specifically, how can Miss Furman help women in the conduct of their financial affairs?

We realize that women often prefer to confide in a woman business matters which they might not otherwise care to discuss. Miss Furman welcomes an intimate but confidential contact with women who have the responsibility of handling money.

From her own wide experience she can give advice of real value. And through her you may always avail yourself, if you wish, of the counsel of any of our officers.

You will find Miss Furman in our Women's Room, just to the left of our Fifth Avenue entrance. We have tried to surround this room with an essentially feminine atmosphere. Many women have commented on its attractiveness.

Women in search of a banking home are invited to confer with Miss Furman. And to any man who is thinking of opening an account in his wife's name, we suggest the Columbia Trust Company as a convenient bank peculiarly equipped for the handling of women's accounts.

THE ADVENTURES OF A NOVEL [ONE]

¶ I have never known a novel so cheerfully reviewed as "The Choice," by Maurice Weyl. First of all, it was Mr. H. B. Sell, literary editor of The Daily News, Chicago, who wrote:

"'The Choice' is a real American novel by a man who knows Americans. The best modern novel that I have read in a long, long time. It is clean, it is sophisticated, it is well written."

¶ Now, Mr. Sell, whether he praises or blames, has adopted Kipling's injunction to do it "first and frequent" and has returned to "The Choice" with each succeeding issue of his literary page. In the following issue he said:

"Maurice Weyl is a born story-teller, and to my way of thinking he has written 'The Choice' in a simple, graceful style that marks him as a distinguished initiate to the fraternity of first-class modern American novelists."

¶ This is not the first time Mr. Sell has been the first to welcome a newcomer.

RUMANIAN TROOPS REACH BUDAPEST, OCCUPY BARRACKS

NEW CABINET REPORTED OUT

RED FORCES TO DISARM

Immediate Stoppage of Relations with Russian Bolsheviki Ordered by the Entente.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 4.—Budapest was occupied today by Rumanian troops that advanced from the River Theiss in spite of representations made by Lieut. Col. Romanelli, the Italian representative of the Allies at Vienna.

The Rumanians, in the view of the Hungarian authorities, defied the Allies' instructions to cease their advance as retaliation for the Hungarian occupation of Bucharest three years ago.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 4. (Associated Press.)—When the Rumanian troops arrived at the city boundary of Budapest, where they were met by Joseph Haubrich, War Minister in the new Hungarian Government, and the Burgomaster, the Rumanian commander, General Buresou, informed them he had no instructions to occupy the city itself, but only the country up to the city boundary, according to Budapest advices. He said he would not interfere with the preservation of order in the capital.

Minister Haubrich placed two cavalry barracks in the outer confines of the city at the disposal of the Rumanians and issued an order enjoining the inhabitants to maintain good behavior toward the Rumanians on pain of severe penalties.

BERLIN, Aug. 4. (Associated Press.)—According to newspaper reports received here General Buresou, the Rumanian commander, decided to occupy Budapest for strategic reasons, but was persuaded by Lieut. Col. Romanelli, chief of the Italian Mission, at Vienna, to content himself with two regiments as the occupying force.

Joseph Haubrich, War Minister in the new Hungarian Cabinet, agreed with General Buresou, according to the reports, to demobilize and disarm the Red Army immediately, except for 14,000 soldiers in Budapest and 20,000 in the remainder of the country to preserve order.

The Zeitung Am Mittag prints a dispatch from Vienna which says that the Entente is sending 5,000 men to Budapest at the request of the Hungarian Government.

Meanwhile the Peidl Cabinet has already retired from office, a Vienna dispatch to the Mittag Post asserts, because it says recognition was not accorded it by the Entente Powers.

The dispatch adds that a new ministry composed of workingmen, citizens and peasant leaders will be created, the first duty of which will be to revise all Soviety regulations.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Lieut. Col. Romanelli, head of the Italian Military Mission, in a dispatch from Budapest, in answer to one from Premier Clemenceau, says the new Hungarian Government absolutely intends to carry out as quickly as possible the conditions of the armistice. Colonel Romanelli asks that the allied powers each send a regiment to support the Hungarian Government.

VIENNA, Aug. 4. Britain to Drop Policy of Labor Interference

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Government has decided to revert to its prewar policy of noninterference in industrial disputes, says The Daily Mail today. During the war the Government was compelled to prevent strikes and lockouts and imposed terms which were often costly for the State, but henceforth it will leave employers and workers to adjust their own difficulties, limiting Government action to safeguarding life and property and maintaining essential public services.

JAPAN SETS FORTH SHANTUNG PURPOSE

REAFFIRMS HER PROMISES?

Not Certain Whether a Date Is Fixed for Recession of Province to China.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. — The Japanese Government has issued a statement in Tokio on its policy in regard to Shantung, it was learned today. It was not communicated to foreign Governments but set forth in the press the intentions of Japan.

The American Embassy at Tokio is believed to have arranged to send the text of the statement, taken from the Japanese newspapers, to the State Department for its information, but it was thought improbable that the State Department would make it public here, leaving its dissemination to the press associations.

As understood here, the statement is in response to the desire of the American public for elucidation of Japan's purpose, and there is reason to believe that it reaffirms the promises made by Japan to China in the treaty of 1915.

Responsible Japanese authorities have repeatedly declared that Japan would restore to China her sovereignty in Shantung after Germany, in fulfillment of the treaty of peace, surrendered title to Shantung to Japan. Japan also has promised to admit China to joint control of the Tsing-tao-Tsinan-Fu Railway.

It is thought that no specific date is mentioned in the statement for the restoration to China of her sovereignty in Shantung. Whether the failure of China to sign the treaty with Germany plays any part in the matter is not known.

The foreign policy of Japan at the peace conference in respect to Shantung and Korea was criticised in a statement made recently at Tokio by Viscount Kato, former Foreign Minister and President of the opposition party. In part he said:

"In the matter of Shantung Japan's prestige has been greatly lowered in the eyes of the world, on account of the slipshod manner in which it was handled by the Government. Strictly speaking, the question should not have occasioned such trouble as it did, since the disposition of Shantung had been clearly settled between Japan and China by treaty. It is not a question that should be decided by the intervention of a third party. Despite this fact, the Japanese delegates were summoned before the Peace Conference as if they were defendants and tried to speak in such circumstances.

"With regard to the Shantung question it is necessary that China should be taught that the establishment of an exclusive settlement and the building of railways by Japan does by no means constitute a violation of China sovereignty."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (Associated Press.)—Japan's intentions in the province of Shantung are soon to be set forth in a formal declaration from the Tokio Government, according to information received today in official circles.

The exact nature of the declaration was not forecast, but it was assumed that it would follow the lines of the repeated statements of Japanese statesmen that the province was eventually to be returned to China. In some quarters it was believed that Japan might even set a date for the restoration and acknowledge publicly the secret understanding which she is said to have with China on that subject.

The reported declaration of the Japanese Government to make known its purposes is believed to be the outgrowth of informal diplomatic conversations between Washington and Tokio, reflecting the American Government's desire that all the facts in the case be given to the public.

MANILA, Aug. 4, (Associated Press.)—Chinese residents of Manila announced today their refusal to participate in the Victory Day celebration. Spokesmen for Chinese organizations said that the action of the Peace Council in awarding Shantung to Japan meant the defeat of China's aims in the war.

ARTICLE X. HALTS RESERVATION PLANS OF THE 7 SENATORS

Group Is Unable to Agree on Treatment of Much Discussed Section.

SOME TALK OF ELIMINATION

Other Three Reservations to Covenant Are Settled Upon with Little Difficulty.

LANSING TO BE HEARD

Foreign Relations Committee Summons Secretary for Questioning Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—After informal conferences today the seven "mild reservationists" among the Senate opponents to the League covenant were, it was stated, unable to agree on the reservation on Article X.

Senator Lenroot, one of the seven, said the question was whether to strike out Article X. altogether or accept a proposal that would reserve to Congress the right to declare when the United States would be bound by it, to the extent of sending soldiers in the event of a threat of war. The seven Senators, he said, expected to reach an agreement on the point within a day or so.

Mr. Lenroot said that the seven Senators approved the three suggested reservations pertaining to the Monroe Doctrine, domestic matters, such as immigration and the tariff, and the two years' withdrawal, the United States to decide if its obligations to the League had been carried out.

In a letter to Senator Swanson today, David Hunter Miller, a State Department expert, who accompanied the American delegates to Paris, declared that, as written, Article I., upon withdrawal, explicitly provided that nations, giving two years' notice, might leave the League on the expiration of that time, the League Council having no authority to hold them.

"The contention is advanced," said Mr. Miller, "that in some way the withdrawal clause would permit the right of withdrawal to be passed on by the Council of the League of Nations or, at any rate, does not leave the matter entirely under the control of the withdrawing member.

"This contention is wholly unfounded. The language gives an absolute right of withdrawal to every member of the League upon two years' notice, coupled with a promise on the part of the member so withdrawing to live up to its international obligations until the end of the two-year period. In other words, the paragraph makes explicit the thought that during the two-year period membership in the League continues. It is at the end of the two-year period that liability ends.

"The provisions of the covenant generally show that there is not the slightest thought of keeping in the League an unwilling member. By Article XXVI., no member of the League can be compelled to accept any amendment to the covenant, however slight. Upon its dissent therefrom it ceases to be a member of the League. Still more significant is the last paragraph of Article XVI., which provides for the expulsion of a member of the League by the unanimous vote of all other members represented on the Council. The ground for expulsion is the violation of 'any covenant of the League.'

"It is impossible to discover any foundation for the argument advanced that in some way the Council of the League (or the Assembly) would have jurisdiction to pass upon the question of withdrawal."

Senator McCormick of Illinois, who returned to the Capitol today after two weeks' absence, asserted that feeling in the Middle West was growing for dras-

3 MONTHS IN ARMY FOR ALL BOYS OF 19

War Department's Bill Asks a Peace Army of 510,000 and a War Strength of 1,250,000

IN 21 REGULAR DIVISIONS

To Which Recruits Would Be Assigned for Training—Would Remain 2 Years in Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—War Department recommendations for a system of universal military training of three months for all eligible youths in their nineteenth year was presented by Secretary Baker today to the Senate and House Military Committees for their guidance in determining the permanent military policy of the nation.

The proposal is contained in a bill prepared by the General Staff of the army at the Secretary's direction. In transmitting the bill, Secretary Baker in a letter said that General Pershing had not been consulted and the plan was tentative to that extent.

The department's bill calls for a Regular Army of twenty-one divisions and necessary auxiliary services, with a peace strength of 510,000 enlisted men and a war strength of 1,250,000. The reserves to fill up the divisions to full strength would be provided through a modified form of the Selective Service act, under which the National Army was raised for the war with Germany. For training purposes only, youths in their nineteenth year would be called to the colors for a three-months' period, to be attached to regular divisions for that time. It is estimated that this would provide an annual class of 600,000 men to receive intensive military instruction, stripped of all vocational or other educational features.

For two years after training the youths would be required to summit certain reports giving their addresses, changes in status as to dependents, physical condition, &c. They would receive $1 for each report called for and submitted, thus encouraging the making of reports. In the event of war all men in this status would be called to the colors to fill up the regular divisions and compose the first replacement units.

The bill provides for reorganization of the regular army in substantially the same terms as previously recommended by Secretary Baker when the current Army Appropriation bill was under consideration.

No mention of the National Guard is made in his bill, but in his letter to the committee chairmen Secretary Baker said he assumed that the National Defense act would be continued in force, making the guard subject to Federalization for war.

One feature of the universal training plan of the Department is complete Federalization of the registration and induction machinery. Local and appeal boards would be created as during the war, except that compensation at $10 a day is provided for board officials, but no mention is made of employing State officials or agencies in carrying out the project.

Youths in training would receive no pay, but would receive payment for all expenses and an allowance of $5 a month for incidentals. No exceptions would be granted except to soldiers, sailors, members of the merchant marine, public or private, or to those mentally or physically deficient. To meet the case of those with dependents, however, provision is made for deferring the training period.

The theory on which the bill rests is that an army of 1,250,000 should be available for rapid mobilization at need. It provides that the complete organization of a field army of that size shall be maintained, the only difference between peace and war time footing being in the enlisted strength. The twenty infantry and one cavalry divisions would compose the field army.

To support the plan, General Staff officers have prepared full detailed studies of cost, systems of mobilization, administration, and all other features which the department is prepared to submit whenever the Congressional committees call for them.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Daily Graphic says that the first passenger airship is due to sail from Barrow-in-Furness to Rio de Janeiro some time this month. Twenty passengers and a small cargo will be carried aboard the vessel, which will be fitted out with all the luxury and comfort of an ocean liner.

The airship will fly by way of Lisbon, Sierra Leone, and thence to Rio. The anticipated flight will take about four days each way, and if successful will be the prelude to a regular service, which will be maintained by Vickers.

Sir Woodman Burbidge has booked three berths for himself, his wife, and a friend for the round journey to Rio and back. The price of the tickets was £1,000 apiece.

The R-80, as the airship is now known, has been under construction at the Vickers Barrow works for some months. She was commissioned by the Admiralty last year, with the object of producing a rigid British airship of medium dimension which would give the same performance as the latest German Zeppelin.

She has a capacity of 1,240,000 cubic feet, or rather more than half the size of the R-34. She has a cruising speed of forty-six miles and a full-power speed of sixty miles an hour, and is 535 feet in length.

The passengers' living quarters are on the top of the hull, where are situated a large saloon fitted out like a Pullman car, a roof garden, and a shelter deck, and cabins of sleeping berths.

Railroad Brotherhoods Come Out for Overhauling of Profits in Appeal to Wage Earners.

CLERKS ALSO MAKE DEMAND

450,000 Employes Ask for a 44-Hour Week and 20 Cents an Hour Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Organized labor, as represented by the railroad shopmen, today flatly rejected the program recommended by President Wilson for the establishment of a Federal Commission to adjust wage disputes nad to dictate rates, and served notice on the President and Director General of Railroads Hines that unless Congress provided the money for a cash settlement of their demands the railroad systems would be tied up by a strike not later than Sept. 2. Mr. Hines told the men that he did not have the money with which to pay the increase. The President, according to the railroad representatives, did not definitely state his position.

The shopmen's representatives, after conferences with President Wilson and Director General of Railroads Hines this afternoon, were in a bellicose frame of mind and spoke plainly of their attitude. B. M. Jewell, acting President of the Railways Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, who acted as their spokesman, said the temper of the men was such that he did not know whether they could be controlled until the strike vote now being taken was completed.

The men were in a mood, he said, to demand the democratisation, not only of the railways, but of the basic industries, such as steel, coal, the packing industry, and possibly others, along lines suggested in the so-called Plumb plan, which would require the Government to purchase the industries and to give the workers a share of the profits.

"As we see it," he said, "there is only one satisfactory settlement of the problem confronting the nation. That has two parts. First, cash payment to meet the demands of the employe as a temporary measure of relief; second, the application of the Plumb plan to the railroads and to the basic industries. There is a growing demand upon the part of the working men for this movement. It is the only effective cure."

This position also was taken today by the Railroad Brotherhoods in a statement issued through the Plumb Plan League and signed by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and other prominent officials. In this statement, while attempting to deprecate published reports that the Brotherhoods were taking advantage of the present economic situation to hold up Congress, the railroad chiefs said that "it marks the step by which organized labor passes from demands for wage increases to demands that the system of profits in industry be overhauled."

The statement also says "We demand that the owners of capital, who represent only financial interest as distinguished from operating brains and energy, be retired from management."

Anxiety in Administration Circles.

The attitude of the shopmen and the statement of the Brotherhood Chiefs were viewed with much concern, both in Administration circles and on Capitol Hill. To add to the tenseness of the situation, a strike threat was voiced by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, and Station Employes, who assert that they control 450,000 men, if their demands for increased wages and readjusted working hours are not met forthwith.

The shopmen, who now appear as among the strongest advocates of the Plumb plan, had an interview with President Wilson today and laid before him a lengthy statement, firm in tone, in which they asserted that the President's program for a Federal Wage Board would not be accepted. They said they could not await such a delay, and that the principles of the plan were unsatisfactory.

The shopmen claim to control 500,000 men in the United States and 10,000 in Canada, and their spokesman, B. M. Jewell, said tonight that the other unions connected with railway operation, including the four brotherhoods, were in sympathy with their attitude, and were definitely lined up against the legislation which President Wilson has recommended to Congress.

"Absolutely no," he replied, when asked if the legislation would prove satisfactory. "We will tie up the railroads so tight that they never will run again if that regislation is passed. We are all opposed to it. That much was agreed to among the fourteen branches

Movement to Nationalize All Industry Likely, Says Cummins, if Railway Men's Bill Is Adopted

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senate leaders have suddenly awakened to a realization of the possible danger of the movement among the railroad workers for the nationalization of the roads. Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, thinks such a nationalization of railroads will mean the ultimate nationalization of all industry.

The Senator said today that adoption of the ownership proposal of the railway men would mean the establishment of a workingmen's government of the railroads, and that this step toward socialism could not be taken without promoting a similar movement in other lines of industry.

Senator Cummins told some of his associates today that he saw in the plan of the railroad brotherhoods a purpose to obliterate the relation of employer and employe. He declared his opposition to this purpose, and said he doubted if civilization could survive the termination of this relation. But he doubted also if the movement in that direction could be checked by any mere attempt to maintain the old order.

He favors legislation that will give workingmen a voice in the management of industries and a just share in the profits of their labors. Refusal of employers to recognize that workingmen have a right to suggest betterment of the conditions under which they labor and are entitled to some share in the profits, the Senator said, has created resentment, which is likely to find expression in more radical propositions than would otherwise have been likely.

Senator Cummins expressed sympathy with some provisions of the Railroad Workers' bill. He is framing a measure to give them some share in the management of the roads and guarantee a sha in the profits, but the proposal to transfer the roads to the control of the present employes, who would become in effect the own , Mr. Cummins will oppose to the end.

The provision of the Brotherhood bill th ould divide the employes into two classes, the classified employes in the Brotherhoods, and unclassified employes, who would be the operating management of the roads, he regards as a specious proposition. The two classes, he holds, would be joint owners of the roads. Instead of waiting to divide a share of surplus earnings, he thinks they would vote themselves increased wages, and so there would never be any surplus.

Senator Cummins also regards as impracticable the plan of the Brotherhoods to buy the securities outright by an issuance of Government bonds, doubting whether any more Government bonds could be sold at present unless the interest rates were made very high.

Senator Cummins said today that he would not venture to predict how the struggle over the bill would come out. Senator Lodge, on the other hand, said he was confident that the Brotherhoods would never be able to force their bill through Congress.

Senators Call for Curb on Profits; Reed Urges Jailing Offenders

$4 a Barrel Margin Said to be Made on Flour—Gronna Declares Wheat Shortage Will Keep Up the Cost—Investigations to be Pressed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The problem of the high cost of living occupied the Senate today, debate on it running for more than three hours. For the first time in many weeks the Peace Treaty, with the League of Nations covenant, Shantung and the rest of it, was overshadowed.

In the course of the debate Senator Gronna, Republican, of North Dakota, blamed the Food Administration, with its licensing system and its price-fixing, as being, in a large measure, responsible for the high prices prevailing in wheat and other foodstuffs.

Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, urged the Senate not to "lose its head" in an hysterical effort to readjust prices. He said that the main trouble was that the United States, instead of attending to its own affairs, was attempting, through the League of Nations, to mix in the affairs of the whole world. Mr. Reed denounced the contemplated International Finance Corporation, which the Government is asked to supervise in an attempt to stabilize world markets.

In the broad schemes in which the United States has undertaken to embark in the readjustment of the affairs of the world, Mr. Reed said, the general effect would be to squeeze American finances and deprive Americans of their own food and other products.

Reed Wants Profiteers Jailed.

Various Senators, including Mr. Reed, Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, and Mr. Fletcher of Florida, assailed profiteers in foodstuffs and other commodities. Mr. Reed said that they ought to be jailed and that there was ample law to do it.

Senator Smith of South Carolina deplored what he termed "unreasonable calls" upon Congress to settle problems touching the high cost of living which communities themselves could undertake. The "high cost of high living," he said, figured in the situation, people insisting upon having luxuries rather than confining themselves to necessities until the United States had had an opportunity to readjust itself. He spoke of moving pictures as luxuries.

It was contended by Mr. Gronna that, while wheat was selling at $3 a bushel, as against the Government's fixed minimum price of $2.26, the difference was not due to inflation, but to a shortage in the market. The yield of the United States this year would be only 850,000,000 bushels, he said, while last year it was considerably over 1,000,000,000 bushels.

Senator Fletcher and others said that the middleman was getting the major profit out of the high prices for wheat and flour. In some markets, he said, there was a profit of $4 a barrel.

Inquiry on Railroad Employes.

Aside from the Senate debate, plans were laid by members of the Interstate Commerce Committee, of which Senator Cummins of Iowa is Chairman, to investigate the cost of living as affecting the railroad employes. The committee will begin tomorrow morning a series of hearings on the matter.

As outlined by Mr. Cummins, the committee will call witnesses to ascertain whether an increase in wages, demanded by the railroad employes as an alternative to a reduction of the cost of living, is the logical remedy. Economic experts, railroad employes, and others will be called before the committee and asked about the wage and living situation in various communities.

The Senate committee will hurry its hearings and expects to have a report ready within fifteen days. In the meantime, the Senate Agricultural Committee will begin hearings on prices of wheat, meat, and other foodstuffs.

From the developments today it is evident that the Senate is determined to make an exhaustive inquiry into the entire cost of living problem. Republican leaders were particular to assert that their party had plans under way for this investigation before President Wilson wrote his letter to Speaker Gillette, urging that Congress devote itself to an immediate inquiry. The Republicans were reluctant to give the President credit for having initiated the investigation.

Senator Gronna, in the debate, said that wheat prices were only a small part of the entire problem. The Government, he said, through the United States Grain Corporation, had undertaken to stabilize wheat prices and, through its selling of wheat for the farmers, had made a profit for itself.

Mr. Gronna read from an editorial in an agricultural paper stating that the United States Government had made a profit of nearly $24,000,000 out of its handling of the wheat crop in 1918 for the farmers.

"I do not think," he said, "that the high cost of living can be remedied by simply increasing wages, and increasing the prices of everything that is to be bought and sold, and by working shorter hours. Never in the history of this country has the consumer had to pay higher prices for certain articles than during the time Mr. Hoover was at the head of the so-called Food Department. Never have the corporations dealing in food products made as great profits as under the licensing system of Mr. Hoover."

Senator Gronna spoke of having called the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to meet tomorrow, when, perhaps, "some way might be suggested to help reduce the high cost of living and relieve the American people."

Asserts Wheat Is Cheapest Food.

Senator Pittman interrupted Mr. Gronna to refer to an editorial in The New York Sun in which the writer, he said, sought to lay the whole trouble of the high cost of living to the high price that was fixed upon wheat. He asked Mr. Gronna if he agreed that "the way to start in reducing the high cost is to start by reducing the price of wheat."

"If the Government is to fix prices it must, in order to relieve the public from unduly high prices, fix the prices of all commodities," replied Mr. Gronna. "I certainly have no objection to reducing the price of wheat if the price is reduced on other articles of food or on what we wear, but I think I can prove,

HASTENS INQUIRY ON COSTS

STUDIES PACKERS' FIGURES

DRAFTING DRASTIC REPORT

Committee Named at Palmer Conference to Submit Program Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. — Official Washington was working under high pressure tonight as a result of the rapid developments which have served to make the living cost situation and the movement which several branches of organized labor have started to bring about the nationalization of industry the predominant questions of the day.

While President Wilson was receiving a delegation of the railway shopmen and making a hurried trip to the headquarters of the Federal Trade Commission to obtain first hand information concerning cost figures and the scale on which it is asserted, speculation and hoarding is in progress, the special committee of three named at the recent conference at the offices of Attorney General Palmer was drawing up the final draft of a report.

This report, which, it is said, includes specific and drastic recommendations concerning methods of attacking the profiteers and a statement in regard to the proposal to sell wheat below the Government guarantee price of $2.26, will be submitted to the full conference tomorrow morning, at which the Attorney General will preside. It is hoped then to reach a full agreement and place the completed conference report before the President in time for him to discuss it with his Cabinet in the afternoon.

The demands which have been made by the organizations of railway workers and their determined attitude while in conference with President Wilson and Director General of Railroads Hines were among the outstanding features of the day.

Wilson Promises Vigorous Efforts.

B. M. Jewell, Acting President of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor and a representative of the shopmen, discussed the situation with the President. Mr. Wilson, he said, told the delegation frankly that a reduction in the cost of living to the pre-war basis could not be expected.

"He said that it was going to take some time to obtain any appreciable reduction in living costs," Mr. Jewell stated. "Every agency of the Government," the President said, "was working on the problem, and everything possible would be done to bring about a readjustment."

As to the extent to which he believed prices could be brought down, Mr. Jewell said, the President expressed no opinion. He had simply stated, in this connection, that the Administration would do everything in its power to make conditions tolerable.

There has been a report in official circles that very drastic recommendations are to be made in connection with a Government campaign against hoarding and speculation in foodstuffs and other necessities of life, and that when charges have been made by the Federal Trade Commission, as in the case of the packing industry, definite steps for a cure for evils alleged to exist will be forthcoming.

Strength was given to these reports when the President suddenly determined to make a personal visit to the headquarters of the Federal Trade Commission this afternoon and go over some of the records there.

None of the members of the Commission would discuss the President's visit, but such reports as were received at the conference were to the effect that the President showed intense interest in the cost figures which have been prepared by the Commission, both in regard to packing-house products and other commodities which play a prominent part in the high cost of living problem.

Shopmen Tell of Profiteering.

Just before the President went to the Trade Commission offices the delegation of railway shopmen had recited to him stories of the huge jump in prices which they had found in most commodities between the producer and the consumer, and of steps which they believed were being taken by certain classes of speculators to keep up prices to the consumer by illegal means.

There has been strong pressure brought to bear from some quarters for the publication, either through the White House or from the Federal Trade Commission, of definite charges against persons who would be named as among those who were responsible for keeping up prices at an unwarranted level and of planning to increase rather than decrease living costs through unfair practices.

It is stated that the Federal Trade Commission has prepared and is ready to issue reports of its investigations in some detail if such a procedure would fit into the general plan which the President is expected to announce within the next day or two. The decision will be reached after the committee of three makes its report tomorrow.

Expect Address to Congress.

The situation has created much feeling in the Senate and House, but Representatives and Senators say they find themselves in a position where they are able to do little that is effective until the President makes his recommendations, which it is believed he will do in an address to the joint houses.

The President is expected to act without a moment's unnecessary delay on account of the acute situation which has been created by the attitude which the railway workers have assumed and the threats of a strike within another thirty days, which might paralyze transportation unless the demands are granted.

Governor Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, has been asked to attend the conference tomorrow morning in the offices of Attorney General Palmer, when a portion of the report of the Committee of Three which is said to be aimed at the inflation of the currency is to be discussed. Julius H. Barnes, head of the United States Grain Commission, is also to be present.

It develops that Attorney General Palmer has summoned here Charles F. Cline, District Attorney of the Chicago district, and that reports are being received by the Attorney General from his officials in other sections. Mr. Cline's presence here is required, it is said, partly as a result of the part which the packing industry question will play in the movement for reduced living costs.

Madden Proposes $1.50 Wheat.

Representative Madden of Illinois announced today that he proposed to introduce bills dealing with the sale of wheat by the Government at $1.50 a bushel and providing for an embargo on foodstuffs which are selling at higher prices than were in force a few months ago, if suggestions covering these points are not quickly placed before Congress by the President.

"To begin with, the high cost of living is worldwide," said Mr. Madden, in a statement on the subject. "In a large measure it is due to the fact that all during the war there were 30,000,000 men taken out of production. Their business was to consume and destroy, and in many parts of the world food supplies were not raised at all. While the United States never was short, it was called upon to supply food to the armies of the world and to a large element of the civilians as well.

"The expansion of the currency not only of the United States but of the world has reduced the purchasing power of the dollar to an extent making a new cause for high prices.

"In the United States nearly 30,000,000 people purchased Liberty bonds. Ninety per cent. of these people had no money with which to purchase them. They were encouraged by the banks and the Government to co-operate, and they did it cheerfully, but the banks were obliged to advance the money with which to make the purchases. The banks did not have sufficient money to do this, and the result was that they were obliged to use the bonds as collateral to obtain rediscount through the Federal Reserve Banks.

"The Federal Reserve Banks did not have the money to make the number of loans that they were called upon to make and the result was that they were obliged to issue Federal Reserve notes as circulating medium. There is today about $13,000,000,000 of discounted and extended credits existing in the United States which you cannot legislate out of existence without creating a world panic which would be infinitely worse than the high living cost.

Charges Lack of Prosecutions.

"If profiteering has existed throughout the country it has always been within the power of the Administration through the Attorney General's office to prosecute under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the Clayton Act, but no move has ever been made by the Administration to prosecute the profiteers. On the contrary everything seems to indicate that the Administration has either winked at profiteering or encouraged it.

"I suggest that it might be possible under proper regulations for the Government to take over the wheat crop on which it has placed a guarantee and sell the wheat to the millers of the country at a price not to exceed $1.50 a bushel, and provide that the millers shall only make a certain profit on the wheat purchased. In this way flour could be sold to the consuming public at about $4 a barrel less than it now brings.

"Another remedy which may and would undoubtedly, if put in force, have a tendency to reduce the cost of living would be a Congressional enactment prohibiting interstate carriers from accepting shipments for export of food products, the price of which on the American market at the time of shipment is above the price of such commodities, say as of the first of January last or a period still further back.

"I have been reading history a little and find that just after the Napoleonic wars, England adopted an embargo on food products and thereby prevented a revolution in England. If she could afford to do that, why can't we?"

Igoe to Push Shoe Price Question.

Representative Igoe of Missouri announced today that he intended to call up his resolution directing the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the prices of shoes when the House resumes work tomorrow. This is the resolution upon which Mr. Igoe failed to secure consideration Saturday night. Whether the resolution will be successful is a question. It is doubtful if there will be a quorum in the House, and therefore adjournment may be taken almost at once.

Mr. Igoe, who is a Democrat, lately presented to the Rules Committee a resolution for investigating sugar prices. This was held up by the committee. Today the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce reported out a resolution by Mr. Tinkham of Massachusetts embodying the same plan as Mr. Igoe's resolution affecting sugar. The Tinkham resolution reads:

"That the Federal Trade Commission is hereby directed to make an immediate investigation and report to the House of Representatives its findings on the subject of sugar used for domestic and manufacturing purposes, both as to its market prices, wholesale and retail, and whether these prices are reasonable, and the amount of sugar now in the United States, both raw and refined, in the possession of sugar refiners, wholesale dealers, or in storage; said investigation to involve a report of supplies in the possession of the United States, raw and refined, and the causes of the present sugar scarcity."

SORROWING MOTHER HOAXED

Letter Writer Promises Return of Mrs. Wentz's Kidnapped Baby.

The condition of Mrs. Elsa Wentz of 725 Home Street, the Bronx, whose child, Arthur Philip, 7 weeks old, was kidnapped from a baby carriage in front of a Bronx department store, is causing relatives grave concern. It was said yesterday that they feared a mental and physical breakdown if the missing baby were not found.

A fruitless trip to the east side was made yesterday by August Wentz, the child's father, and Bronx detectives, in response to a letter to Mrs. Wentz, written in a feminine hand, which said the writer had taken the child with the intention of bringing him up as her own, but that he had proved too troublesome and she wanted to get rid of him.

The writer said she thought she should have $100 for the care of the child, and said she would return it if the father would leave that amount in an envelope at a street corner on the east side, mentioned in the letter.

Mr. Wentz and detectives put an empty envelope at the place named, but it remained untouched till a small boy picked it up and looked inside. He was able to convince the detectives that he knew nothing of the writer or of the missing child.

OPPOSE WILSON'S PLAN TO FIX RATES

House Committee Favors Cummins Bill Restoring Such Powers to Commerce Commission.

TO TAKE UP WAGE SITUATION

Executives of Brotherhoods Will Be Heard at a Joint Hearing of House and Senate Committees.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The House Interstate Commerce Committee expressed its opposition today to President Wilson's plan for a Federal wage commission with power to enforce rate increases to meet wage advances, when it reported out by a vote of six to five the Cummins bill restoring the rate-making power to the Interstate Commerce Commission. During the period of Federal control, the President had the power to increase rates, and thus meet new wage demands without consulting the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Chairman Esch of the Commission takes the position that the rate and wage commission which the President has asked Congress to create would negative the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He holds that this board now has the power to investigate and adjudicate, whereas it would have little authority left, under the President's plan, except to raise rates.

"Should the President's plan be enacted, it is admitted by Director General Hines, that any increased wage demands the proposed board might allow the workers would be mandatory on the Interstate Commerce Commission." He said: "This increase would have to be accepted by the Commission, and there would be but one course left to it, and that would be to increase rates. The result would be that the commission would be a mere nominal agency."

When it was suggested that the only power left to the commission would be to raise rates until the wage demands were equaled, Mr. Esch commented:

"But the President already has authority, at least until the Cummins bill is passed, to grant any increased wages he may deem necessary and raise rates to meet this increase. Congress created a Wage Adjustment Board to take care of the present situation."

The House committee made one change in the bill as it came from the Senate, deciding that the State Railway Commissions should have power over intrastate rates and their consent must be obtained by the Interstate Commerce Commission in changes of that character. The bill gives the Interstate Commerce Commission power to fix rates during the remainder of the period that the railroads remain in Federal control, and the Railroad Administration would be placed in the same position which the railway companies occupied before the Government took over the lines.

It was conceded that the vote on the bill in the committee would have been the same if the President had not made his recommendations to Congress. In that case, it was said, there would have been more votes in favor of the measure. As it was the vote today was practically on party lines. Five Democrats voted no, while one Democrat joined five Republicans and voted yes.

Glenn E. Plumb, author of the "Plumb plan"; A. B. Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Engineers' Brotherhood, are scheduled for a hearing before a joint committee of the House and Senate committees on Wednesday. Mr. Esch said today that the men would receive a full opportunity to present their views. However, the Chairman of the House committee does not believe that the people of the country would favor the Plumb plan because it involves Government ownership, against which, he said, the majority of the country is committed.

Mr. Esch said that if the unions try to force the plan on the country through the created strikes, when the majority of the people are opposed to it, such action will react against their cause. Director General Hines probably will not be called until about the middle of August to give his views.

SENATORS CALL FOR CURB ON PROFITS

without any question, that wheat is today the cheapest article of food that the American public buys."

Mr. Pittman said that the point had been raised by critics of the Administration's price-fixing policy that the price of wheat was "inflated."

"I wish to be fair to the Administration," returned Mr. Gronna. "It is hardly fair to criticise it by saying that there is inflation in the price of wheat. Wheat is selling for $3 a bushel in Minneapolis."

"There never has been a time from the moment Congress considered the price of wheat when it was not higher in the market than the Government price or any price discussed in Congress," interpolated Senator Kellogg of Minnesota. "So far as that is the food of the people, it has increased the cost of living, but everything else is the same. The price of labor and all that enters into the production of wheat is abnormally high, as is usually the case during and after a war."

Denies Government Manipulation.

Senator Kirby of Arkansas asked Mr. Kellogg if the high price of wheat was not due to the fact that "the Government has guaranteed the price of $2.26 per bushel, and is manipulating the market to keep it up to that figure."

"No, it is not the fact," replied Mr. Kellogg. "The Government is not manipulating the market."

Mr. Kirby asked what Julius Barnes, head of the United States Grain Corporation, had done toward regulating the price of wheat.

"I think Mr. Barnes will say that he has made every effort possible to reduce the price of wheat," Mr. Gronna said. "He made an effort to import wheat from Canada, but unfortunately Canada had very little wheat to sell. If the Senator from Arkansas will take the trouble he can easily discover that instead of having a 1,250,000,000 bushel crop this year, this country will not have over 850,000,000 bushels of wheat. There is a shortage of wheat throughout the world, and the United States will not be able to furnish all the wheat needed in the European countries."

Senator Fletcher of Florida wanted to know if fixing the price of wheat at $2.26 a bushel "really has produced the high price of flour."

"That is a very important question," said Mr. Gronna. "On May 16 I went to a city where rye was selling, in the terminal, in the very markets where flour was ground, for $1.44 a bushel. I had a wholesale grocer call up and ask the wholesale price of a carload of flour. I undertake to say that there was a gross profit upon rye flour in that case of more than $4 a barrel."

Says Some Farmers Get Only $1.13.

Senator Capper of Kansas remarked that farmers in his State were getting as low as $1.13 a bushel for wheat. There was no uniform price for wheat growers, the rate depending upon the quality of the grain.

"The point is," Mr. Gronna suggested, "that the consumer pays a price based upon the highest standard of wheat. That has been the complaint which I have tried to bring before the Senate."

Senator Smith of South Carolina insisted that, now that the war was over, Congress ought to give the people some opportunity to settle their affairs, without Congress being called upon to settle "all the ills that may arise in the commercial and trading world." He said that "people are crying hard times and the high cost of living when it is the high cost of living, rather, which is the trouble."

Senator Smith spoke of people indulging in "motor cars, moving pictures, and other luxuries," and yet complaining of the high cost of living.

Cites "Extravagance" in War.

Senator McCormick asked if Mr. Smith would not concede that there was "extravagance in Government as well as in the private walks of life."

"Has not the Government engaged in an orgy of expenditure no less than the people whose automobiles the Senator speaks of?" asked Mr. McCormick.

"I suspect that is true for the time to which the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," asserted Mr. Smith. "There was some little excuse for what seemed to be extravagance on the part of the Government during the menace of the war. Surely, the American people are intelligent enough and they have the power in their hands to regulate from the shop to the consumer some of these questions. We, however, are teaching the American people to run to Congress for everything.

"The interference here in Congress, or the threat, or the probability of our passing sumptuary laws is already demoralizing the industrial world to such an extent that people do not know what to engage in."

Senator McCumber said that the wholesale price of flour in Boston was from $11.25 to $12 a barrel, and that the average retail price was $14 a barrel. The average expenditures by the householder for flour, he said, was 3¼ cents a day, and flour, in proportion, was the cheapest commodity.

"Nothing is said," he continued, "about the cost of your clothing, which has gone up double the increase in the price of flour; the cost of medicine, which has gone up three times as much as your flour, and your other bills, which on the average would range three or four times as much as your flour."

Reed Presses Domestic Problems.

Senator Reed urged the Senate not to "add fuel to the fire of agitation and turn it into a great conflagration."

"One lesson we ought to be able to get out of the present situation," he said, "is that the American people and the American Government have nearly all they can attend to at home without spreading themselves out over the world and trying to take care of the good Lord's creation. We have problems here that will tax the best energies of our statesmen and the best thought of our economists for a number of years to come.

"We would be better off looking after great problems that concern the bread and butter, fuel and housing of our own country than undertaking to look after the spiritual, physical, and financial welfare of the gentlemen from Timbuctoo and other remote parts of the world.

"One thing is unquestionably true. If we cannot feed ourselves we ought not to be undertaking to feed the world."

Senator Brandegee inquired if Mr. Reed knew how much food America had sent to Europe since the armistice was signed.

"One thing I do know is that we appropriated $100,000,000 to send over to Europe, and did it without batting an eye," replied Mr. Reed. "We handled it as if it were 100,000,000 leaves from the trees. We appropriated it to take American foodstuffs out of American markets by the hand of the Government and transport them to foreign lands, to be fed into the mouths of other people. That one item by itself would not have affected in any great degree the question of prices, but it was one of the cumulative processes."

Tells of Record Exports.

Senator Smoot interrupted to say, in reply to Mr. Brandegee's question, that exports from the United States during June were $900,000,000, the greatest in the history of the country. The greater part, he said, consisted of food products.

"Now what are we doing?" resumed Mr. Reed. "What is proposed to be done? There is a plan on foot by which great corporations are to be organized, which we are to finance here, to rehabilitate and feed Europe. Those great corporations are to furnish money to Europe with which to buy American products, in order, as it is said, to make a market for American goods."

Senator King suggested that Senator Reed did not mean to assume that it was an evil for America to dispose of its surplus products to Europe. Mr. King spoke of representatives from the Dakotas being in Washington to obtain financial aid in disposing of some 500,000 horses that were required in Poland and Rumania.

"Because there was no international bank or no means of exchange, or because those Governments could not purchase American exchange, the transaction, as I am advised, fell through," he said.

"Of course," Mr. Reed replied, "everybody wants this country to be in a position to sell its real surplus abroad and get good prices for it; but to drain this country, not of the surplus of our products, but of the things our own people need, and employ the resources of America to make a competitive market in Europe constantly mounting higher, to compete with our own people, and at the same moment stand here and complain about high prices in the United States, is the sum total of idiocy."

Senator Reed spoke of 20,000,000 men having gone into the war from pursuits of economic productivity, creating a situation through which they became consumers rather than producers. The world has not had time to resume its normal trend, he said, and as a result prices had been mounting higher.

Alluding to the profiteer, Senator Reed declared that he had "always been a criminal under the common law, and he is a criminal now under the common law and also under the statutes of the United States. In so far as that can be found and proven the guilty party ought to be punished."

"But nothing that we can do," he added, "will be more disastrous than to take action here which will alarm the great productive world and convince men that it is unsafe to engage in enterprises lest they be interfered with.

"If I were going to suggest a broad and general remedy, it would be for people to quit eternally demanding and to have a little of that spirit of sacrifice at home which we are talking about exercising abroad."

Senator Sherman of Illinois, dwelling upon meat prices, said that the fault was not that of the packers but of middle men. The packers, he said, made a profit last year of 8.6 per cent., "the lowest percentage of profit of any food industry in the world."

OMAHA TO SPEND $10,000

Will Give Help to People First Then Start Investigation.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 4.—The city commission authorized today the expenditure of $10,000 in buying food supplies to be sold to the public at cost. When two commissioners suggested an investigation to learn if prices are too high the Mayor shouted:

"Not on your life. I demand action now. Help the people first, then investigate.

"We have got to do everything we can to give the people the necessities of life or be confronted by open insurrection."

Chicago Attorney to Aid Palmer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—District Attorney Clyne left for Washington today to confer with Attorney General Palmer on the Government's inquiry into the high cost of living. He carried with him a mass of informaton gathered in the local investigation of the subject, which has been in progress several months.

BAND TAKES EDITOR TO JAIL

Memphis Citizens Parade in Honor of Man Beginning Sentence.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Preceded by a band and accompanied by scores of prominent business men, who paraded the principal streets of the city, Edward T. Leech, editor of The Memphis Press, an afternoon newspaper, entered the Shelby County jail today to begin serving a sentence of ten days' imprisonment for contempt of Chancellor Israel Peres's Court.

The contempt charges grew out of an editorial written by Leech during a local political campaign last year.

Friends of Leech, who organized the parade today and accompanied him to jail, are planning a mass meeting next week when the editor is released. Ex-Mayor Litty, who was a leading figure in the parade, addressed a group of several hundred persons at the jail just before Leech was locked up.

LONDON SERVICE CUT BY RAILWAY STRIKE

Engineers and Firemen on London and Southwestern Quit in Sympathy with the Police.

NOT AUTHORIZED BY UNION

Liverpool Realizing the Cost of the Strike, Now Complicated from Stoppage of Trains.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Another strike took place in London today. Four hundred drivers and firemen on the London & Southwestern Railway ceased work in sympathy with the police strike. Great inconvenience was caused to holiday makers owning to the curtailment of train service. The strike was unauthorized by the Locomotive Engineers and Firemen's Union and the members have been notified they must not leave work without official instructions.

There are now 2,352 police on strike throughout the country, of whom 1,113 were in London, 952 in Liverpool, 106 in Birkenhead, and 118 in Birmingham.

Liverpool is awakening to the realization of the costliness of the riots. Estimated damage to the extent of £170,000 was caused in the city, which means a shilling in a pound on the rates.

Warships arrived in the Mersey today and the safety of the docks from sporadic outbreaks of Hooliganism was assured. The situation was complicated by a tram strike following a wages dispute, and all cars stopped. The tramway dispute has no connection with the police strike.

This morning the inhabitants were spending the bank holiday wandering aimlessly about in the rain, gazing at the ruined buildings in the riot area or watching the soldiers outside St. George's Hall. Most of the litter in the riot area has been cleared away, and shopkeepers are boarding up their windows. Hardly a shop in the district escaped without some damage. The riot charges at the Liverpool police courts today numbered 380.

The national strike of operatives of the bakers shows no signs of weakening. The holiday supply of bread is becoming exhausted, and unless a settlement speedily is effected a grave situation will arise.

There has been spasmodic looting on a minor scale today, and among the places raided is the establishment of Jack Sharpe, a famous Lancashire cricketer. Squads of soldiers with steel helmets and fixed bayonets are patrolling various parts of the city. An old schoolhouse used by the corporation as a dumping ground for waste paper and stationery was completely destroyed by fire this afternoon, and it is suggested that the fire was the work of incendiaries. Before the firemen arrived girls employed by the corporation, whose headquarters is in the same road, turned out and fought the flames.

Troops Charge With Bayonets.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 4.—Riotous crowds were driven from the streets of this city this morning by troops charging with fixed bayonets. The rioters filled the streets during the night and it was not until daybreak that the soldiers were ordered to charge.

The cruiser Valiant and two destroyers have moved into the Mersey River to protect the docks.

New Franco-American Treaty Version.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The Chicago Daily News printed today another translation of the Franco-American treaty whereby the United States agrees to go to the support of France in the case of German aggression. It differs but slightly from the version as cabled to The Associated Press from Paris on July 2.

FRENCH MILITARISTS FAVORED OCCUPATION

Derided Supreme Council's Policy of Giving a Chance to New Hungarian Cabinet.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Word was received at British peace headquarters in Paris today that Rumanian troops were already in possession of Budapest. If this is true Rumania has acted in direct violation of orders of the Paris Supreme Council Saturday night.

Messages to the Government of Hungary and the Rumanian Government then left Paris simultaneously. The first was almost in the nature of congratulations to the Hungarians on getting rid of Bela Kun and establishing a moderate Socialist Government. The message to Rumania was a vigorous warning for her to cease her advance on the Hungarian capital and to withdraw the troops.

Up to that point the latest effort of the Supreme Council had succeeded wonderfully well, contrary to the wishes and expectation of the French Military Party, who had sneered at the Council's message a week ago to the Hungarian people, telling them that if they would oust Bela Kun and establish orderly government, they could have food and the Entente would negotiate with them a permanent peace. It was also implied that the hostile movements of the Rumanian troops against Hungary would cease if the Kun régime was followed by something better.

This was the plan scoffed at by the French militarists interested in General Franchet d'Esperey's activities in Eastern Europe. They predicted failure and declared that the only thing to do was to send a large force of troops to Budapest to take forcible control of the country.

But, as I cabled on July 27, the Supreme Council did not venture to send the note saying Bela Kun must get out before being assured he was to be put out. For once at least the Supreme Council was well advised as to what was going to happen next in the Balkans. Bela Kun fell and was succeeded by a Government fairl satisfactory to the Entente within a week after the note to the Bulgarian people.

The military cynics seemed beaten in principle, but now they apparently have made their point on the facts of an actual invasion of the Hungarian capital, conniving with the Rumanian troops in defying the wishes and orders of the Supreme Council.

One explanation offered is that communication is so slow and difficult that perhaps the Rumanian Government could not get word to its army in time to check its advance. It is an explanation given with a wink and received with a shrug.

Furthermore, the Rumanians are represented as declaring that the new Hungarian Government is not to be trusted, and so it is necessary for Rumanian troops to remain in Hungary as representative of the Allies to act as gendarmes and keep order. That is by no means the desire of the Allies, Clemenceau himself, in accord with Polk and Lloyd George, believing that the present Hungarian Government should have full and free opportunity to show it is fit to be negotiated with for peace.

VIENNA, Aug. 4, (Associated Press.) —A dispatch from Bucharest, capital of Rumania, received in Vienna today indicates that it is not the purpose of the Rumanians to cease operations against the Hungarians. The dispatch says:

"We waited for no signal from the Entente to start the expedition and will not notice any signal to stop it."

Another Bucharest dispatch says that a Danube steamship service between Galatz, Rumania, and Vienna will be started immediately.

CAPT. ROOSEVELT AGAIN ILL.

Suffers from Trench Fever and War Gas in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Captain Archibald Roosevelt was removed from his room in a downtown hotel to the Presbyterian Hospital today, suffering from an attack of trench fever and the aftereffects of poison gas, due to hardships experienced in fighting with the American army in France.

He arrived in Chicago yesterday from Oyster Bay, N. Y., to enter the employ of the Sinclair Refining Company in Chicago. The attending physician said his condition was not serious, and that he would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her two children are expected in Chicago tomorrow.

REJECT WILSON'S PROPOSAL

of organized labor which called upon Mr. Hines today.

The shopmen are demanding increases which would approximate $165,000,000 annually, and these, added to the demands for wages made by the four brotherhoods and other branches of the railway employes, would bring the total asked to at least $800,000,000.

The leaders of the employes frankly state that they do not see how the Railroad Administration can meet the emergency unless there is an immediate appropriation made by Congress. Mr. Jewell said that in his opinion such an appropriation was the only way in which a strike could be averted, and that the employes were beyond the stage where promises would satisfy.

Shopmen Call on President.

The visit paid by Mr. Jewell and the representatives of five other branches of the shopmen to the President was the first big development of the day. The delegation took with it a copy of a statement addressed to the President, in which they review their case and rejected forthwith the President's program for Congressional action. They told Mr. Wilson that the shopmen had not been granted an increase since Jan. 1, 1918, and that the wages were not commensurate to those received by machinists and other shopmen employed by the navy and shipyards and in privately controlled industries.

They discussed the cost of living with the President, Mr. Jewell said, and told him that present conditions were intolerable. The Plumb plan for Government purchase of railroads was discussed briefly, but not in detail, Mr. Jewell said. He added that the President said he had all Government agencies at work in an effort to reduce living costs, but that any move in that direction would take some time. But Mr. Wilson he added, did not give any definite reply concerning the opposition of the shopmen to the recommendations which he had made to Congress concerning the proposed Federal Wage Board.

In their statement to the President the officials of the Railroad Shopmen Union quoted Director General Hines's recommendation that a body be constituted by Congress to pass upon all railroad wage problems. They add that they have been advised by the Director General that the President has indorsed the recommendation, and after reviewing the seven months' delay in acting on their demands the statement continues:

"We have not been consulted as to this entirely new departure, and it is only fair to say to you that the suggested plan does not at this time meet with our approval, nor are we willing to say that we are prepared to indorse any such procedure as the basis upon which wage rates shall be finally determined. From our point of view to do so would, in a great measure, deny to the men we represent the right of co[illegible] bargaining as we understand [illegible] Wage Commission, of which [illegible] Lane, Secretary of the [illegible] Chairman, after an exhaustive [illegible] recommended to the Director General the creation of a board which should be authorized to deal with the following questions:

"'(1) Inequalities as to wages and working conditions, whether as to individual employes, or classes of employes.

"'(2) Conditions arising from competition with employes in other industries.

"'(3) Rules and working conditions for the several classes of employes, either for the country as a whole, or for different parts of the country.

"'The board shall also hear and investigate other matters affecting wages and conditions of employment referred to it by the Director General.

"'This board shall be solely an advisory body and shall submit its recommendations to the Director General for his determination.'

"This board was appointed June 1, 1919, and from that date to the present time has been exclusively engaged in handling questions coming within its jurisdiction as above prescribed.

"The personnel of the board consists of three railroad officials and three representatives chosen from organizations representing railroad employes.

"It is fair to assume that, in the selection, only men with practical experience and knowledge of railroad schedules were chosen.

"The letters of transmittal accompanying the recommendations, submitted by the Board of Railroad Wages and Working Conditions to the Director General, copies of which have been furnished us by the Director General, do not materially differ as to the necessities of meeting to a reasonable degree the increase of wages to the men we represent. The difference being only to the extent that the three labor members of the board recommend a specific increase, specified in the amount to be paid per hour. The three members representing the railroads qualified their recommendations to the extent of saying that unless costs of living could be reduced, thereby increasing the purchasing value of a dollar earned, it would be necessary to meet the situation by granting increases in wages.

"We particularly call your attention to the position now occupied by the railroad employes whom we represent. The only increase they have received since the railroads were placed under Federal control is that provided for under Supplement No. 4, effective Jan. 1, 1919.

"Practically all other employes of the railroads have received substantial increases under General Order 27, effective as of Jan. 1, 1918, and other adjustments creating substantial increases were granted by the issuance of Supplements 7 and 8, effective Sept. 1, 1918, and subsequent supplemental orders issued up to as late as April 14, 1919, effective to Jan. 1, 1919.

Want Equal Compensation.

"Members of these same organizations engaged in other industries have received substantial increases, establishing a differential in rates of pay, ranging from 10 to 30 cents per hour in excess of that now paid to the men in the railroad service, reserving, in a large degree, the pre-war conditions, as the railroad employes at that time received, as a general proposition, equal compensation paid men in other industries.

"As a result of this changed condition and the disappointment resulting from the long delay in disposing of the question which was submitted last January, we are now confronted with a situation which is nearing a point that can be no longer controlled.

"Information received within the last forty-eight hours is to the effect that not less than 20,000 of our railroad members have suspended work, as a protest against this long deferred decision.

"In view of this condition, there is but one course open for us to pursue. That is to submit to the entire membership the proposition as it has been presented to us by the Director General, with a request that by their vote they shall decide what further action they may deem necessary to secure the much needed relief.

"We are in accord with the thought that an increase in wages of itself will not altogether solve the problem, but it is well to bear in mind that the classes of employes herein referred to, and for whom we speak, feel, and we believe justly so, that they are entitled to an increase in wages which will restore them to the same relative position as compared to their fellow-members employed in outside industries. We are not aware that this condition applies with equal force to other classes of railroad employes.

"May we urge upon you the necessity of meeting the present situation by putting into effect our original request submitted to the Director General on Jan. 7, 1919?"

The statement is signed by William H. Johnston, International Association of Machinists; F. C. Bollam, Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers; William Atkinson, Brotherhood of Boilermakers I. S. B. and H.; J. J. Hynes, Sheet Metal Workers I. A.; J. P. Noonan, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Martin F. Ryan, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, and B. M. Jewell, Acting President Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor.

The long conference which the shopmen's representatives, along with the representatives of the four brotherhoods and representatives of the Maintenance of Way and Telegrapher's Union held with Director General of Railroads Hines today brought no more definite results as to when the Government might be willing to meet their wage demands. There were, in all, fourteen of the prominent organizations of railway employes represented at this conference.

Hines Says He Lacks Funds.

Mr. Jewell said that Director General Hines admitted that the Railroad Administration did not have the necessary funds to meet their demands. Mr. Hines, he said, stated that Congress apparently was going to pass the Cummins bill returning to the Interstate Commerce Commission full power to fix rates as before the war and that Congress had restricted his appropriation to the $750,000,000 which would not permit him to meet the wage increases out of the Railroad Administration funds.

Under such conditions, Mr. Jewell said, the situation was an impossible one, unless Congress would grant the Railroad Administration the money to meet the demands of the men. There could be no holding off until Congress made lengthy surveys of the situation, before that time a strike would be on, he added, and the country's transportation systems effectively crippled.

The union officials doubted that large communities could not long stand the effects of a railroad strike. It is stated that retail dealers have not stocked up to any large extent because of the danger of a break in the market, and it was said that New York City could not very well stand a break in communication lines for more than six or seven days without finding itself short of foodstuffs.

The statement of the brotherhoods, which was put out by the Plumb Plan League, stirred up much comment because of the radical assertions made concerning the movement for the democratization of industries. It increased rather than softened the emotions which had been created on Saturday when the brotherhoods sprung the Sims bill for the purchase of the railroads by the Government. Here is the statement:

"The innuendoes in telegraphed dispatches from Washington, appearing also in the speech of Representative Blanton of Texas, that the railroad unions are 'holding up Congress and the Government,' may as well cease.

"This appeal is made to the American people direct. It invokes the judgment and common sense of public sentiment of all the public which earns a wage or a stipend. We recognize that the only way in which we can exist under the present system is to demand further increases in wages, but we agree with Representative Blanton that this affords but temporary relief. It does not offer a remedy.

"Labor's bill, on the other hand, provides a remedy and we ask merely that its terms be scrutinized. Our full argument in support of these terms will be presented on Wednesday before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief, Brotherhood Locomotive Engineers; Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and Glenn E. Plumb, general counsel for the Organized Railway Employes of America. In this statement we are sounding the notes of our basic principles.

"That this rôle originates with labor is merely because labor happens to have firm organizations through which it may become articulate. It is not to benefit labor as labor alone; it is to benefit the consuming public, of which labor at present is the audible part. In labor's bill providing that the public take over the railroads and establish a tripartite control between the public, the railway operating management, and the employes, the labor organizations of America have established this new policy which envisages their condition, not only as producers, but also as consumers.

"It marks the step by which organized labor passes from demands for wage increases to demands that the system of profits in industry be overhauled. Hitherto during successive wage negotiations and arbitration awards we have called for provisional attention only of questions arising out of differences as to wages, hours and conditions of labor. That principle of genuine co-operation and partnership based upon a real community of interest and participation in control, of which President Wilson has spoken to Congress, has been ignored both by labor and by the private owners of the railroads.

"What wage increases have been received during the past few years resulted only in immediately being followed by more than proportionate increases in the cost of living. Each rise in wages has turned out to mean only temporary relief for the affected workers. When the increases have gone around the circle, labor as producer loses the advantage of the new wages through the additional cost it pays as consumer. Moreover, through compounded profits taken on the wage increased each cycle becomes an upward spiral of costs, which the consuming public vainly reaches to control.

Labor Wants Representation.

"As the major part of the consuming public, labor is entitled to representation on the directorate of the public railroads; as a producer of capital it is entitled to representation on the directorate of the railroads. To capital, which is the fruit of yesterday's labor, we now propose to discharge every just obligation. We demand that the owners of capital, who represent only financial interest as distinguished from operating brains and energy, be relieved from management, receiving Government bonds with a fixed interest return for every honest dollar that they have invested in the railway industry. We ask that the railroads of the United States be vested in the public—that those actually engaged in conducting that industry, not from Wall Street but from the railroad offices and yards and out on the railroad lines, shall take charge of this service for the public.

"These represent all the brains, skill, and energy that is in the business. They are entitled to that measure of control which is equal to their ability and their responsibility for operating the transportation properties. Then and only then, will the service be primarily for the public, not primarily for profits to speculators and inflaters of capital. As a means for accomplishing this end, we ask that a lease be granted to a corporation, created not for profit but for public service. We ask that this corporation be controlled in its management by an equal representation of the three fundamental interests upon which industry is based. The public, operating managers, and wage earners will then guarantee both the integrity of the investment required for the conduct of the industry, and that return which induces it, by investing, to enter the public service.

"The public as consumers and the operating managers and wage earners as producers having joined in that guarantee, will then share equally all earnings in excess of the amounts required to meet the guarantee.

"This is provided by granting to the wage earners and management one-half of the savings, which they, through their perfected organizations can make, and by securing to the public the other half to be enjoyed by the consumers, either by increasing the means for service without increasing fixed charges, or by reducing the cost of the service, which the machinery then in existence can render, thus the cost of transportation is automatically reduced exactly in proportion as benefits accrue to the producers of transportation. Increase in earning power of producers under this system cannot be reflected in increased costs, it must be balanced by decreased costs.

"The railroads are the key industry of the nation. The affect at once the price of every necessity. As increased transportation costs are reflected in the increased price of all commodities, so a reduction in those costs must be reflected by the reduced prices.

"We say this because of labor's interest as consumer, as part of an overburdened public. This fundamental statement of principle we respectfully submit to the American people.

"Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

"Timothy Shea, acting chief, Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers.

"L. E. Sheppard, President, Association of Railway Conductors.

"B. M. Jewell, Acting President, Railway Employes Department, American Federation of Labor."

W. G. Lee, President, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who was a signer of the first statement issued by the railway brotherhood officials, was absent from Washington at the time of issuance of this statement, but is understood to concur in it.

Clerks Also Make Demands.

The possibility of action by the railroad clerks, freight handlers, and express and station employes similar to that taken by the shopmen is intimated in a statement issued today by J. J. Forrester, Grand President of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes. A referendum, in effect a strike ballot, will be taken upon whatever reply the Railroad Administration makes to pending demands for a wage increase and improved working rules. The organization has a membership of 450,000.

Demands for a forty-four-hour week and a 20 cents an hour increase in wages have been made, and the brotherhood expects a definite reply immediately. A letter has gone to the administration, Mr. Forrester said today, asking a hearing.

"When that reply is received," he said, "if it is not of the nature that goes along with the proposition we have made, it will be put to the employes immediately for their action.

"The pressure from the employes for a vote on the answer of the Railroad Administration is strong, and if the demands are not granted, and quickly granted, judging from the temper of the employes, they are likely to follow the lead of the shopmen.

"It costs the railroad clerk, with a family of five, as much to live as it does a locomotive engineer with his family. Our members are in the same trap economically as the other railroad workers, and we join with them in demanding that unless something be done materially to reduce the cost of living our wages must be raised to give us immediate relief."

Mr. Forrester added that he expected a conference this week.

The specified demands beyond the wage increase and forty-four-hour week are for punitive overtime of time and a half, Sundays and holidays to be classed as overtime work. A 306-day year and the re-establishment of certain deferentials previously existing affecting truckers and freight house employes of superior rank are also demanded. They require that the relief shall be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1919.

Walkout Continues to Spread.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4, (Associated Press.) —A tieup soon of freight traffic in the Central West as a result of the strike of railway shopmen was the prediction tonight of L. W. Hawyer, President of the Chicago Council of the Federated Railway Shopmen's Union, after he had received reports from many additional points telling of the walkout today of shop employes. He said that a total of 250,000 shopmen were now on strike.

Reports received at union offices announced the walkout of 5,000 men employed in the New York Central shops at Beach Grove, a suburb of Indianapolis. Additional shops on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Lines were reported closed because shop men had left their work.

Approximately 4,000 railroad car shop employes went on strike at Cleveland today and about 2,500 employes of the New York Central Railroad at the Collinwood yards are out, according to William Heiniger, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh district of the American Federation of Railroad Workers. Company officials deny that any men are out.

Workers in the Danville & Western shops at Danville, Va., went on strike today, joining the machinists who already were out.

Four hundred shopmen of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Mobile & Ohio went on strike today at Montgomery, Ala., and 200 shop employes of the Southern Railway, including machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, carmen, laborers, and apprentices, struck today at Sheffield, Ala.

Seventy thousand workers in railroad shops in the southeastern States were said today by union leaders to have gone on strike. Railroad administration officials indicated the situation was becoming more serious, although all lines were said to be operating as usual.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—Following the action of the railroad workers in the shop trades of the railroads of the United States, the Executive Committee of the Federated Shop Trades of Canada will send out a call for a strike vote of the 35,000 railway shop employes of Canada, it was announced today. The vote will be returnable at midnight Aug. 24.

FRENCH AND BRITISH AT OUTS OVER SYRIA

FRENCH STAND ON TREATY

Demand That Britain Turn Over Territory Allotted to France but Conquered and Held by British.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—If there had not just been a war, if all the world were not helpless to start another war now, there would be in the present British-French situation in Asia Minor all the ingredients of at least what used to be called "war scare." The Fashoda incident offered nothing by comparison with present heartburnings in the French Foreign Office over the British policy in Syria since the war ended. But there is no war scare; not only no war scare, but Frenchmen most deeply resentful of the British attitude in Asia Minor scout the idea of their ever being another war between England and France. Perhaps even "strained relations" is too strong an expression to use in connection with this situation, for what strain exists is much more than offset by French gratitude to England at this moment for the prompt action of the British Parliament in ratifying the separate treaty to come immediately to French assistance in case of German aggression.

Nevertheless, in its gratitude for this British assurance of protection on the Rhine, France by no means is disregarding the fact that, in the opinion of the Quai d'Orsay, England is deliberately violating French rights in a big section of Asia Minor, where British troops of occupation and British civil administrators are kept in control, despite various urgent appeals from the French Foreign Office to have them withdrawn and the territory placed in French charge.

A Franco-British Treaty.

France bases her claims on the terms of the Sykes-Picot Treaty of 1916, which was entered into between only France and England. The year previous there had been an agreement concerning the future disposition of Turkey in Asia made by England, France, and Russia. The present British view, as it is interpreted in France, is that with the collapse of Russia the agreement, including her and the Sykes-Picot Treaty both, became invalid. France disputes that on the ground that Russia was not a party to the Sykes-Picot Treaty, so her collapse was not in anyway a factor.

By the agreement to which Russia was a party that country was to have Constantinople and be allowed to push her own Armenian border further west into Turkish Armenia.

By the Sykes-Picot treaty France was to have the immense territory bounded by a line starting at Lammas, on the coast, and running northeasterly to Sivas thence through Kharput and Diarbekir and on east to the Persian border, thence back southwesterly to a point on the Mediterranean coast to Syria, just north of Akka. The Syrian coast, with the Mediterranean coast of Syria, just and as far north as Aintab, was to be under a direct French administration. The rest of allotment was under French supervision.

England, by the terms of this Sykes-Picot treaty, was to have the whole of Mesopotamia with Bagdad, plus the seaports of Akka and Haifa, just south of the French line where it reached the Syrian coast.

There was still a third agreement made about the same time by England, France, and Italy by which the latter country was to have a big southern section of Anatolia. That agreement is not a factor in the present controversy between France and England.

When the question of mandates first attracted attention France expressed willingness to surrender the northern triangular section of her Sykes-Picot allotment ending in an apex at Sivas, because that portion formed a big wedge in the territory which France hoped—still hopes—the United States will take as an Armenian mandate. The British recognition of the independence of the King of the Hedjaz wiped out practically the whole French claim under the treaty to the hinterland east of the Syrian coast.

The French Complaint.

"England is basing her policy on two grounds," said a French Foreign Office member to me today. "One is that Russia has collapsed, which we do not admit to be relevant at all to the Sykes-Picot treaty. The other ground is that it was British troops which conquered Mesopotamia and won all the other victories in Asia Minor with practically no assistance. That is true; France had at most, only 5,000 troops there. But this does not invalidate the treaty agreement of 1916.

"We can get no satisfaction from the British Foreign Office in the matter, nothing but delays, postponements and evasions. England's official Government policy is vague and apparently colorless, but that is not what we fear most. It is the unofficial but very aggressive and positive policy of the Anglo-Indians and Anglo-Egyptians that France has to fear, for they are the real leaders who always determine the final British policy in all matters Asiatic. The whole past record entitles us to assume that they will prevail now.

"The cardinal point of this unofficial policy, which eventually will be official, is the protection of India. England in the present Asia Minor situation sees an opportunity to put a finishing touch on her work of the last thirty years to keep Russia from penetrating to India. England says now that these agreements of 1915 and 1916 concerning the future disposition of the Turkish Empire are invalidated, because one of them included Russia, which is now out of existence. England knows Russia is not out of existence permanently, and fears her coming back to normal power and a resumption of her old Asiatic aims. France also knowing Russia will come back sooner or later, our Foreign Office is not in favor of a Turkish policy which would leave nothing for Russia in the future.

French Objects to Independent States.

The first violation of the Sykes-Picot treaty by the British was in their recognition of the independency of the Kingdom of the Hedjaz, which included much of the French zone. They even recognized as one of the Arabian capitals the city of Damascus, which is in our territory. We submitted because war and European conditions in general made us helpless to do otherwise.

"During the war when her troops were making conquests in Asia England had some excuse, but the excuse does not hold now. Why do they continue to occupy and control territory which should pass under French administration? They are spending money lavishly for propaganda on the native populations whom we should administer. There is one most significant point of the propaganda. It is in encouraging the Syrians to think they are now competent for complete self-government and start a movement for that liberty. What would be the result of such an attempt? England knows very well it would be a failure. The Turks, Jews and Christians, left to themselves, would soon have a turmoil of disorder demanding intervention of troops to save life and property. British troops in Mesopotamia, being the nearest neighbors, would be the ones to do the intervening, and that would be an excuse for permanent British occupation and administration. The fact that there had been a hiatus during which self-government was tried and failed would serve as another argument for the invalidity of the treaty agreement with France.

"But we do not have to look to the future for a cause for anxiety. Present conditions are bad enough. The British refuse to leave our zone. They even send such French troops as there are away from the regions we should control to such places as Adana and elsewhere in Cilicia, which region may come under the American mandate for Armenia.

"The case of the town of Beirut, which is almost at the centre of the coastline allotted to France, furnishes a good example. The British control it. A Frenchman may have had business in Beirut before the war. Now he is not allowed to go there, but an Englishman who had no business there before the war now has no difficulty in going there to establish an entirely new enterprise.

"There was a time in European history when such conditions would surely have meant war, but, happily, there is no danger of that now, as bad as things are. We admit the Sykes-Picot treaty is badly riddled now. We are only trying to use that document as a basis of negotiation over what is left. We have lost much of what we want and are entitled to. Despite the British attitude, we still expect to get a Syrian coast strip from just north of Akka to Latakia."

GREGORIEFF IS DENOUNCED.

A. J. Sack Says Anti-Jewish General Is Bolshevist Adventurer.

A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, issued a statement yesterday in reference to a recent dispatch reporting the wholesale killing of Jews in Odessa, and mentioning General Gregorieff as the head of the "Anti-Bolshevist" force which surrounded the Jewish quarter of the city and perpetrated the massacre.

Mr. Sack described Gregorieff as a Bolshevist adventurer and until recently the commander of a Bolshevist division in Ukraine.

"Suddenly," says Mr. Sack, "he proclaimed a revolt against the Bolshevist commissaries, and, together with his Bolshevist soldiers, organized a series of anti-Jewish massacres throughout the Ukraine." He adds that Gregorieff's band is one of the irresponsible bands which operate in Southern Russia and against which General Denikin with his volunteer army is struggling as firmly as against the Bolshevist detachments subordinated to the Moscow commissaries.

It was reported in a wireless dispatch from Bolshevist headquarters received in London on Sunday that Gregorieff had been shot by a rival "General."

SUDDEN COLLAPSE MAY END BOLSHEVIKI

Baron Nolde Considers Downfall Similar to That of German Militarism a Possibility.

TO PLEAD WITH ENGLAND

Ex-Minister Says Withdrawal of British Troops from North Russia Would Be Calamity.

PARIS, Aug. 4, (Associated Press.)—Baron Boris Nolde, a former Minister in the Kerensky Cabinet, and who also held an important position in the Russian Department of Foreign Affairs under the régime of former Emperor Nicholas, said this afternoon that in his opinion the overthrow of Bela Kun and events in Hungary would have little effect on the chaotic internal conditions in Russia.

"Succor must come from the Entente," Baron Nolde said. "It would be a calamity should the Entente withdraw their troops from the Archangel sector. Russia must feel that she is not being abandoned by her former allies."

"The overthrow of Bela Kun," he continued, "is the commencement of the overthrow of all Bolshevism, although the régime has lasted so long in Russia that progress may prove difficult and painful. However, the great majority of the population is untainted. The peasants in the environs of Petrograd are anxiously awaiting deliverance from a régime which has brought distrust among former friends outside of Russia and calamity and poverty within the country."

Baron Nolde is one of the latest arrivals in Paris from besieged Petrograd, having left there June 25. He has been in conference with Basile Maklakoff, Russian Ambassador to France, who was appointed by Kerensky to devise means for obtaining help from the Entente. There seemed to be a feeling at the Russian Embassy, said Baron Nolde, that Russia was being completely abandoned by the Allies.

"Had the Allies given us the moral and financial support which accomplished the overthrow of Bela Kun," the Baron declared, "I feel certain that the Lenin and Trotzky régime would long since have come to and end."

Baron Nolde intends leaving for England in a few days to join Nicholas Tchaikovsky, President of the North Russian Provisional Government, who arrived in London Sunday, in an endeavor to convince Great Britain that the removal of British troops from Archangel is fraught with danger for the future of Russia. He seemed quite satisfied with the progress of General Denikin, but was noncommital on the withdrawal of Admiral Kolchak's forces.

Perhaps the bottom would drop from the resistance of the Bolsheviki declared Baron Nolde, and they would suffer sudden collapse as did the armies of the Kaiser, which were completely overthrown when there was no visible sign of their collapse.

"Russia will emergo from the present chaos," concluded Baron Nolde, "and it is up to our friends of the Entente to hasten the arrival of that day as much as possible. Millions are awaiting deliverance and want the Entente to say the word."

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A Bolshevist wireless report from Petrograd received here today denies rumors that negotiations are in progress at Moscow looking to the establishment of a coalition government. The Soviet Government says that the Government is now more firmly established than ever.

THAMES PAGEANT FOR U-BOAT HEROES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—To honor the gallant men who fought submarine piracy, the newest form of brutality in war, England today revived one of her oldest forms of pageantry in a boat procession on the Thames. The King in an eight-oared barge, which nine sovereigns before him had used, led the parade of boats representing every form of Britain's sea power from the beginning.

From the bridge above the Tower to the reviewing point at Chelsea, he passed along the great waterway which has seen so much of England's history in the making, but never did monarch or Minister, great churchman or popular leader, receive so enthusiastic a welcome as did he from such millions as crowded the banks today. Every bridge, every inch of the long embankments, every wharf, and numberless craft of every description all were packed to overflowing.

Begin to Realize Meaning.

After the King's barge had swept by it was clear from remarks that passed that the spectators had begun to realise what the show was designed to convey. The King's barge, all scarlet and gold, with its steersman and eight oarsmen in red coats and black velvet jockey caps, was quaint and dignified enough. The King and the Queen could be seen sitting under a canopy in the stern, and cheers followed their stately progress upstream. A barge carrying Lords of the Admiralty spoke also of the Old World days, as fourteen jack tars drove its great golden figurehead through the water with the slow ceremonial stroke of the navy.

But they were both mere preludes to the display of the most modern marine developments. The navy proper was represented by twelve 12-oared cutters manned with bluejackets, and the scope of its achievements in war was exemplified by two "scooters," the fastest submarine chasers ever built, which policed the river before the parade, by an armed motor launch of the same type as those carried 2,000 miles overland to Lake Tanganyika in East Africa, and by a model of an 18-inch gun with a 25-mile range, beneath which were displayed tiny pieces that were the last word in naval ordnance in 1600 and in 1856.

But then came representatives of Britain's mercantile marine—men who boast that not one of their crews ever refused to sail even in the height of the submarine peril. It was to honor them that the pageant was devised, and they supplied its most impressive section. It began with launches crowded with members of trade organizations, with officers and various classes of men. It went on with boats from famous training ships like H. M. S. Worcester and Arethusa. It included fishermen and sea scouts and came to a climax with an extraordinary demonstration of the magnitude of the British mercantile marine.

Each Line Has Lifeboat.

Only recognized lines were represented and each line sent only a single lifeboat full of sailors; but it seemed as though there was no end to them, towed as they were by tugs in strings of five, each flying the red ensign at the stern and its own "house flag" from its mast as the boats proceeded up the river. There were seventy of them, and they stretched in a long line as far as the eye could carry.

"They will never stop," spectators said to each other at nightfall.

There can be no doubt that the display brought home to Londoners as nothing else could the extent, variety, and importance of Britain's threatened mercantile marine.

Incidentally, the parade also demonstrated the complete failure of the police strike. Policemen had nothing to do, but there was no lack of them. They were thick along the embankments and on the best of terms with the people. The crowds and the police seemed to be congratulating each other that the great bulk of the department had not gone out.

Was Purely British Event.

Plans for the Thames pageant, while giving recognition to the allied and associated powers, laid stress on the fact that this was purely a British occasion, and the Union Jack and the banners of St. George, St. Patrick, St. Andrew, and St. David predominated in the decorations along the riverside.

Owing to the fact that the space between the Thames bridges is somewhat limited, it was impossible to include large vessels in the pageant, but the procession lost nothing of interest because of this.

Last minute changes added to the procession two decoy "mystery ships," used during the war for chasing U-boats, and an old sea-lighter, filled with members of the Women's Royal Naval Service, in blue suits and white caps.

Airplanes hovered overhead throughout the celebration.

Both Houses of Parliament suspended their session for the day, the members going to the famous terrace, which was thronged with fashionable sightseers.

The procession, which was marshaled at the Tower Bridge at 4 P. M., spread out five miles, and when the head of the line reached Chelsea and turned with the tide the tail of the procession was just leaving the starting point.

After King George landed he took the salutes of the passing boats while standing under a gorgeous royal banner prepared by the League of Arts. The bridges, the embankments, and the houses along the stream were ablaze with festal colors. Even the wharves were gayly decorated, the piles being painted variously orange, green, red, white, and blue, making a vivid contrast with the muddy waters of the river.

Gigantic flags and pennons forty feet long floated from the bridges and flagpoles. Numerous bands along the shore made music as the procession passed, interspersing the national airs with such wartime favorites as "Tipperary" and "The Long, Long Trail," while choirs stationed here and there sang rollicking sea chanties.

URGES THE HAY DOCTRINE.

T. F. Millard Suggests a Reservation on It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A suggestion that the Hay doctrine for the preservation of the territorial integrity of China and the maintenance of the open door should be included on the same basis as the Monroe Doctrine in any reservation the Senate might make to the covenant of the League of Nations, was urged in a statement made here today by Thomas F. Millard.

"The Hay Doctrine means," said Mr. Willard, "that other nations shall not impose their institutions, or their Government, on the Chinese without their consent; and that all foreign nations will have in China equal commercial, financial and industrial rights, privileges and opportunities. Allowing for the different conditions and circumstances to which the Hay Doctrine applies, its ruling motive and principle are identical with the Monroe Doctrine.

"Japan's Monroe Doctrine for China, which is designed to replace the Hay Doctrine, to which Japan has several times subscribed in written agreements and treaties, is in effect almost an antithesis of the Monroe Doctrine."

HUGHES CRITICISES ARTICLE TEN ALONE

Says It Should Be Eliminated or Modified to Permit Freedom of Action in Making War.

SENDS REPLY TO BORAH

Sees No Obligation on Country in Article X. to Act Against Its Desire.

Charles Evans Hughes yesterday made public his letter of reply to Senator Borah, who recently commended the objections of Mr. Hughes to Article X. of the League of Nations Covenant, and asked why he did not extend the objections equally to Article XI. The letter of Mr. Hughes follows:

Bolting Landing, Aug. 2, 1919.

Hon. William E. Borah, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator Borah: I am glad to receive your letter of July 29, which has been forwarded to me here. In my letter to Senator Hale, I did not think it necessary to suggest an additional reservation with respect to Article XI. of the Covenant of the League of Nations for the following reasons:

First: The proposed reservations with regard to domestic questions and the matters of national policy embraced in the Monroe Doctrine apply to all the operations of the League, and thus qualify Article XI., as well as the other articles of the covenant, by withdrawing these matters from the consideration of the League or of any of its agencies.

Second: Article XI. declares that "any war or threat of war" is "a matter of concern to the whole League." But if it be a matter of "concern," still the League is to act only as provided in the covenant. It is further provided in Article XI. that "the league shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the place of nations." What may be deemed to be "wise and effectual" must, of course, be determined at the time and in the light of the situation as disclosed. In short, there is no present undertaking beyond an agreement to confer in order to determine what is "wise and effectual," the course of action being deepndent upon the result of the conference.

All Members Must Agree.

The article contemplates a meeting of the council or of the Assembly of the League, and, in either case, as the matter is not one permitting a decision by a less number, there can be no decision without the unanimous agreement on the part of the members of the League represented at the meeting. As the United States is a member of the council, nothing can be determined to be "wise and effectual" without the concurrence of the representative of the United States, unless the United States sees fit not to be represented at the meeting.

The case of a dispute within the province of the League falls under Articles XII. to XVII. of the covenant, which I need not review.

I find in Article XI. no guaranty of territorial integrity, or of the political independence of any State, or any presumption of any obligation to make war, or to declare or maintain an economic boycott or blockade, or to take any other action whatever, unless the United States, availing itself of its privilege as a member of the council, concurs in a decision that such a course is both wise and effectual. The United States, as it seems to me, will be entirely free to reach its conclusions according to the merits of the case, and I see no injury to our interests in this provision.

Article X., as I view it, presents a different question. The vice of Article X. is that, unless a different view is clearly set forth as a part of the instrument of ratification, it would seem to import the assumption of a present guaranty with respect to the territorial integrity of all members of the League. The provision in Article X. that the council shall advise "upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled," might be taken to mean that the conference of the council was to be only as to the method of performing a definite existing obligation.

Says Article X. Is Binding.

Of course, if the United States were bound by an existing guaranty, it could not in good faith make the guaranty worthless by refusing to consent to any means of enforcement. Freedom to repudiate an obligation is not the freedom we desire. Nor does it answer to call the obligation merely a moral one, because of a lack of enforceability. We should hope that we should regard a moral obligation as binding as any other.

My objection to Article X. is that, unlike Article XI., it is not properly limited to an agreement to confer and to decide in the future upon the course of action which would then seem to be in accordance with the dictates of justice and our views as to what, as a nation, we should undertake, but (unless we now otherwise declare) might be taken to bind us to an immediate and continuing guaranty as to the territorial integrity of all members of the League, and thus expose us to the charge of bad faith, or of having defaulted in our promise, if Congress refused to recognize the obligation and to provide the means of fulfillment.

Hence, I think that Article X. should be eliminated, or, if retained because its advocates insist that it imports no such obligation, the ratification should be accompanied by a clear reservation and interpretative statement that the United States makes no promise and assumes no obligation whatever to engage in any military undertaking unless it is authorized by Congress, and that Congress is entirely free to exercise its exclusive authority in determining for the United States whether in any future exigency there is any obligation on the part of the United States under this article, and the means by which any such obligation shall be fulfilled.

I remain, with assurance of my high regard,

Very sincerely yours,

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

TRIED TO BRIBE AMERICANS.

Sacke, German Horse Dealer, Sentenced by Coblenz Army Court.

COBLENZ, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Ludwig Sacke, a German horse dealer, convicted of attempting to bribe American army officers in connection with the sale of 24,000 horses, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment today and fined 5,000 marks by the Superior Provost Court.

Army officers connected with the case said that Sacke was merely a go-between and that wealthy Germans in the interior were back of the conspiracy.

Major Joseph Kittell of Pikesville, Tenn., and Captain Harry Gardner of Washington, D. C., both of the Quartermaster's Department, testified that Sacke attempted to bribe them. They said that he offered them 100 marks for each horse if a bid made by Sacke's firm, and rejected by the army, should be accepted. The officers testified that Sacke suggested that the proposed bribes be paid in cash. Sacke was quoted as saying that his firm would take all of the 24,000 horses, which were sought eagerly by other bidders.

The suggested bribe of 100 marks each for the 24,000 horses, according to the offical army exchange rates, would have amounted to about $150,000.

ernment, Herr Agoston, said to the foreign newspaper men today:

"The Entente is not making and never has made common cause with the Szegedin Government. Romanelli has promised me foodstuffs and an armistice."

The correspondent has just returned to Vienna from a flying visit to Budapest. The atmosphere in the Hungarian capital was filled with suppressed excitement. Nothing was to be purchased. Offers of money and pleading by the townspeople went for naught. The sole food in the capital consisted of soup and vegetables, and for these the people scrambled wildly in the restaurants.

WIFE TO JOIN BELA KUN.

Ex-Dictator, with Soviet Colleagues, in Austrian Internment Camp.

GENEVA, Aug. 4.—Mme. Bela Kun has left Innsbruck, Austria, to join her husband at the Drossendorf internment camp, according to an Innsbruck dispatch received here today.

VIENNA, Aug. 4.—Asylum in Austria has been granted to Bela Kun, former virtual dictator of Hungary, and his associates to avoid disturbances and unnecessary bloodshed in Budapest, an official statement explaining the presence of Bela Kun in this country says. It is added that they will be allowed to remain in Austria, under detention, until Hungary is able to receive them again, but will not be permitted to carry on political propaganda.

Bela Kun, Dr. Eugene Landler, M. Phor, M. Pogani, former Minister of War; M. Rakoczky, and other members of the fallen Soviet Government, according to the newspapers, arrived here Saturday and Sunday for internment at the Drossendorf camp. Bela Kun, Landler, and Phor declared they surrendered willingly and would submit to all conditions imposed by the Austrian Government.

One report was that the internment would be only temporary and that the Allies will be asked to permit the fugitives to be sent elsewhere, possibly overseas.

Bela Kun, Dr. Eugene Landler, and M. Phor, on their arrival in Vienna at 1 o'clock Saturday, were escorted by members of the Austrian Legation at Budapest from the railroad station. They were rushed by the police in automobiles to the police station, where they were kept for several hours. Bela Kun was exhausted. He ordered a luncheon, and when paying for it revealed a number of bank bills of large denomination withheld from the examining officials. This was taken here as indicating his design to escape to a neutral country.

At 6 o'clock in the evening he was taken to the internment camp at Drossendorf. His principal luggage consisted of a large case of tobacco and cigars. Other officials fleeing from Budapest, including M. Pogani, former Minister of War, and M. Rakoczky, arrived late Saturday evening with their families and were likewise sent to the camp.

Bela Kun's frame of mind during these days of defeat has not been made known. His fight to maintain power during the last four months has been a continuation of his extraordinary career during the war. He is a Jew with a strain of Turkish blood, according to his friends. He is a small man, unimposing physically, but said to have a peculiar power over men and an ability to stir the imagination of all.

The soldiers, it was said, obeyed him with a blind faith, although many never saw him. Several times the Associated Press correspondent was able to pass military lines with Kun's signature, scribbled in lead pencil on a piece of unstamped paper, when other passports were not recognized.

SZAMUELY SHOT BY GUARD.

Frontier Patrol Avenges Brother Red Leader Had Had Executed.

VIENNA, Aug. 2, (Associated Press.)—Tibor Szamuely, one of the most prominent of the Hungarian Communist leaders, was shot and killed last night while he was crossing the frontier near Fuerstenfeld by a guard whose brother, a farmer, Szamuely had had executed. As he was dying Szamuely exclaimed:

"I was the only enemy of the enemies of the proletariat."

One hundred and forty thousand crowns and a large amount of valuables were said to have been found on Szamuely.

A special dispatch from Copenhagen on Sunday reported that Szamuely had committed suicide when stopped by Austrian gendarmes at the frontier while trying to escape from Hungary.

tic amendment of the League covenant or its rejection.

Sterling and Sherman Speak.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator Sterling of South Dakota and Senator Sherman of Illinois, both Republicans, spoke on the Peace Treaty today.

Senator Sterling stated that he could not vote for ratification without reservations. The withdrawal provision and the obligations assumed under Article X. he regarded as dangerous.

Referring to Article X., he said that "this utterly alien and un-American scheme" was never heard of until now.

"The nation, the one nation of the world, which may profit and will surely never suffer or be embarrassed by Article X. is Great Britain," said the Senator.

"If there ever was a proposition," he went on, "which involves a surrender of complete national sovereignty, it is the one in the covenant relating to withdrawal."

Senator Sherman charged President Wilson with inconsistency in opposing Italy's claims to Fiume while supporting Japan's claims to Shantung.

"A League of Nations born of repudiation of Italy's claim and the spoliation of China is cursed from birth with an irredeemable outrage on the right of two ancient and friendly powers," said Mr. Sherman.

"The new Jugoslav Republic is an experiment," the Senator continued. "The attempt to fuse such a polyglot people is characteristic of the indifference exhibited in the League of Nations for actual as against ideal conditions. It is a magazine, charged with all the elements of potential explosion. By this treaty we leave Jugoslovakia, another Mexico, on Italy's east-northeastern front. Not by my vote will I so requite our loyal associate * * * for her faith and sacrifice. Her unrequited service cries from the Paris conference to American justice."

SUMMON LANSING TO TELL OF TREATY

Foreign Relations Committee Will Begin Questioning the Secretary Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today asked Secretary Lansing to appear Wednesday to answer inquiries concerning the Peace Treaty.

Mr. Lansing's examination may cover several days, members indicated today, and part of it may be in executive session.

Committee members wish to ask him particularly concerning the Shantung settlement, especially as he signed a memorandum on the subject with General Bliss and Henry White.

The committee today heard Norman H. Davis, a member of the Interallied Commission which helped to draw up the financial and reparation clauses of the Peace Treaty.

He differed somewhat in view from Bernard Baruch, his fellow-member of the commission, on the subject of reparations for the United States.

"The representatives of the United States never said we would not share nor that we would," said Mr. Davis. "Of course, we were not over there trading for money. We were looking at the interests of the whole world, and indirectly the interest of the United States.

"There was general discussion to the effect that it might be good policy for the United States to decline a share in reparations. But my understanding is that we have a perfect right to file claims under the various categories, and it's for our Government to decide whether we shall or not. In any event, the American share in reparations will be infinitesimal. The American delegates had no right to say we would decline. That is up to Congress."

Mr. Davis was questioned concerning the certificates of ownership which the treaty provides shall be issued to the nations sharing in German reparation bonds and goods turned over by Germany toward reparation. He said it was the understanding that such German bonds were to be kept from the public until the Reparations Commission felt sure that Germany would make good on the interest and sinking fund charges. The provision for certificates was inserted on demand of England and France, which insisted on having evidence of their interest in the German bonds.

He predicted that within six months the Reparations Commission would fix the amount that Germany could pay and let the world know just what it was.

"European nations need money badly," he said. "They can't get it on German securities until there is some definite knowledge of how much Germany can and must pay. Fixing of that sum will stabilize the bonds."

Senator Moses asked whether the Reparations Commission, which Mr. Baruch last week described as a 'super-government' over Germany's resources, could supersede the German Reichstag in taxation matters.

"No," said Mr. Davis. "In an exchange of notes with Germany after the treaty was signed it was stated that the commission would not interfere with internal affairs. But if Germany on a certain date is behind on her payments, and the commission thinks an increase in taxes will increase her capacity to pay, it can so notify the German Government."

Mr. Davis disagreed with Mr. Baruch on the question of trading with Germany without permission of the Reparations Commission. Mr. Davis asserted that a German could buy all he wanted in this country so long as his purchases did not involve the export of gold or securities.

$11,500 REWARD IN LAWLER ATTACK

HE AND WIFE BADLY HURT

Attorney Will Be Scarred for Life—Mrs. Lawler Injured by Fall and Shock.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 4.—Rewards for the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of placing a bomb which yesterday destroyed the home of Oscar Lawler, formerly Assistant United States Attorney General, tonight totaled $11,500. Mr. and Mrs. Lawler, who sustained serious burns in the fire that followed the explosion, are in a critical condition, their physician announced.

The City Council has under advisement a request from Mayor M. P. Snyder that the city add $10,000 to the reward already offered.

Dr. T. C. Myers, attending physician, said neither patient is out of danger. Mrs. Lawler's burns were less serious than those suffered by her husband. The shock of the explosion and a fainting attack when she realized that flames had cut her off from her little son, added to the seriousness of her condition.

She also suffered injuries when her husband dropped her from a second-story window to save her life. The son was rescued by neighbors.

Mr. Lawler was said to be resting easy tonight. Physicians said that if he recovered he would be scarred, but his eyesight would be unimpaired.

TO END ONE-HANDED DRIVING

New Jersey Man Loses License for Hugging While Guiding His Auto.

"We will have none of this one-handed driving in New Jersey," said Motor Commissioner Dill yesterday at a hearing before him in the City Hall in Newark of Ralph Holleman, 25 years old, of 25 Marcella Avenue, West Orange. It was charged that on July 20 Holleman was driving an automobile from Dover to Rockaway, N. J., when he struck another automobile.

At the hearing today Charles H. Gregory, an engineer employed by the North Jersey Water Commission, testified that Holleman had passed him a moment before the accident with his arm around a girl on the front seat with him. Holleman admitted that he had his arm around the girl from Lake Hopatcong to Dover.

The Commissioner revoked Holleman's license, and said: "You can do only one thing at a time. The man who has so little regard for the responsibility of driving an automobile along the highways will not be permitted to drive this death-dealing machine, for an automobile that is recklessly driven is nothing more than a death-dealer."

RAND SCHOOL CELEBRATES.

Members Meet to Rejoice Over Victory Against Lusk Committee.

At the Rand School of Social Science, 7 East Fifteenth Street, last night some 200 members had a celebration over their victory against the Lusk investigation committee.

The celebration consisted of addresses by S. There, what Chairman Alexander Heller called "real red revolutionary ice cream and real red revolutionary lemonade," made of the reddest strawberry juice that could be found in the market, were served to the members.

Bertha H. Mailly, Executive Secretary of the Socialist Party, gave a brief history of the Rand School and stated that a new class of thirty members had been enrolled since the victory over the Lusk committee. She said the school would continue its work.

Look in 10 Days

Note how the teeth glisten. You can see that the film is gone.

Learn the Cause of Decay

Dental science has now traced most tooth troubles to a film. To that slimy film which you can feel.

That is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

So, despite your brushing, much film stays. Night and day it does its damage. It is the great tooth wrecker.

Science now has found a way to combat that film. The fact has been proved by many clinical tests. The method is now advocated by leading dentists everywhere.

For daily use it is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes so that every home may try it.

Do This and See

We urge you for your own sake to write for this 10-Day Tube. See the results for yourself.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and science has discovered a harmless activating method. The usual method is an acid, harmful to the teeth, so pepsin long seemed impossible. Now everyone may apply it, morning, noon and night. And the evidence is that this invention brings a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare results with the methods you use now. Then judge for yourself what is best. Cut out the coupon now.

FORESEES NO RELIEF IN HOUSING PROBLEM

Mrs. Moskowitz Says That Plans for but 7 Apartment Buildings Were Filed in July.

ALL WERE OF HIGH CLASS

Hirsch Asks for Contributions to the Fund to Aid Those in Immediate Need.

The acute stage which the housing situation is likely to reach at an early date and the failure of any measure taken thus far to bring relief, were indicated yesterday by the statement of Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Secretary of the New York State Reconstruction Commission, with regard to the number of houses being built. In the month of July, she said, only seven plans for apartment houses had been filed, and all of these were for high-class apartments which would in no measure serve to bring relief to the middle and poorer classes who are being pressed hard by the rent profiteers.

From 1914 to 1916 a total of 1,271 buildings were put up each year, averaging 21,517 apartments. Since that time, owing to war conditions, very few buildings have been erected, thus necessitating the building of even more houses each year than the pre-war average. Yet the number during July was only seven, and the total number of apartments was under 200.

It was also said that at the special session of the Legislature nearly two months ago a law was passed allowing owners of three and four-story one-family houses to alter them for the accommodation of three or four families without complying with the strict provisions of the tenement house law. It was expected that the lowered cost of making these alterations would cause a great number of applications to be made, and thus give relief. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Moskowitz said that not one plan had been submitted for such alteration, since the passing of the law, and, therefore, no relief was in sight as a result.

Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, announced yesterday that $1,000 had been contributed to date to the fund established for the relief of acute cases of distress reported to the committee in the conduct of its campaign against rent profiteering. The first week's subscriptions included contributions from Jacob H. Schiff, Nathan Hirsch, Abram I. Elkus, Felix M. Warburg, and Justice Robert L. Luce.

In his appeal for contributions, Mr. Hirsch said:

"With the consent of the Mayor, we are asking you to contribute to a fund to be used for the relief of certain cases of real hardship that are brought to our attention in the course of the work of our committee. The people of this country have, and rightfully so, been sending money to Belgium, France, Poland and other countries, but we should not overlook the deserving poor of our own city, who, through no fault of their own and through circumstances beyond their control, need immediate assistance."

REARREST POLITE BURGLAR.

George Williams, who is under indictment here for assault and robbery and the carrying of concealed weapons, was in the lineup at Police Headquarters yesterday morning. He was arrested by Detective Dave Foley of the West 100th Street Station Sunday as he stepped from the New Jersey State Prison in Trenton after serving a term there for burglary. He will be arraigned in General Sessions today.

After entering the Taylor home, Detective Foley says, Williams awakened the lawyer and his wife and explained the purpose of his visit as he sat on the edge of their bed.

"I woke you in order to protect you against fright," he explained, according to Detective Foley. "I am perfectly harmless and will not injure you if you will just keep quiet. I am here to get all of your jewelry and wealth."

After he had collected everything of value that he could find, including the wedding ring worn by Mrs. Taylor, the detective says, Williams prepared to leave the home, when Mrs. Taylor pleaded with him to return her wedding ring. After granting her request he bade his victims a cordial good night and assured them that sometime he would be wealthy and make restitution. After he had reached the street Mr. and Mrs. Taylor went to the window of their bedchamber and screamed for help. Detective Foley heard them and arrested Williams after a long chase. He later escaped from the Tombs.

LOOT FIFTH AV. OFFICES.

Burglars Get $2,900 from Two Firms in One Building.

Burglars invaded Fifth Avenue between Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning, ripping open the safe and stealing Liberty bonds and cash to the amount of $900 from Woods, Lowrie & Co., woolen importers, at 258 Fifth Avenue, and obtaining bonds and cash in the same manner to the amount of $2,000 from Rice & Duval, tailors, in the same building. The burglars evidently hid in the building before closing time, and then made their way into the two places with the aid of jimmies.

They drilled open the doors of the safe without resorting to explosives, using many yards of woolens to muffle the sound of the drilling. From the manner in which the job was done it is believed that the burglars are the same men who two weeks before committed burglaries at 244 Fifth Avenue.

SEEKS TO ANNUL JERSEY LICENSES

SWAYZE RESERVES DECISION

More Than 2,000 Liquor Dealers Interested in the Outcome of the Suit.

The granting of 700 licenses by the Jersey City Commissioners to sell "spirituous, malt, and vinous liquors in the year beginning July 1, 1919," was reviewed yesterday before Justice Francis J. Swayze of the Supreme Court at the Hudson County Court House in Jersey City in a certiorari proceeding brought by Samuel Wilson, agent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League.

The licenses were granted with the condition that, should they be made inoperative by the enforcement of prohibition legislation, rebates would be given for the part of the year the licenses were inoperative. Nearly all of the saloons have continued business, but profess to sell only liquors having not more than 2.75 per cent. alcohol content.

The license granted to Hugh Meehan, proprietor of three saloons, was selected by Mr. Wilson for his test case. Decision was reserved and no stay was allowed.

Corporation Counsel John Milton, who argued for the city, said if the decision were adverse to the city an appeal would probably be taken. A remark by Justice Swayze indicated to lawyers at the hearing the decision would be for the drys. Justice Swayze said: "It appears the Commissioners may have acted illegally and in violation of the Wartime Prohibition act and the constitutional amendment."

O. Rowland Munro, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, argued that issuing the licenses was illegal, a violation of the Wartime Prohibition act and of the Eighteenth Constitutional Amendment, which will take effect next Jan. 16. Under the Federal Constitution the States are bound to respect Federal statutes enacted under the Federal Constitution.

Mr. Milton moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that if the licenses were illegally issued the proper procedure would be to submit the facts to the Grand Jury and ask for indictment of the Commissioners. The motion was denied. Mr. Milton's request that the question as to spirituous and vinous liquors should be considered separately from malt liquors was also denied.

Justice Swayze expressed doubt that a shrewd man would pay high price for a license to sell 2.75 beer exclusively.

More than 2,000 saloon keepers in Jersey City, Newark, Hoboken, Bayonne, and other New Jersey municipalities are interested in the decision.

SEEKS MISSING WIFE.

Husband Says Woman Who Disappeared Is Nervous Patient.

George Aeschbach of 345 West Twenty-third Street is anxious to learn the whereabouts of his wife, Emma, who, he said last night, disappeared on July 19 from their home and was last seen boarding a Ninth Avenue elevated train at the Twenty-third Street station. He said that he wished to warn any one sheltering his wife, who, he said, has been suffering from a nervous breakdown. He added that his daughter, Mrs. Frances B. Woodruff of 7 Maple Street, Bloomfield, N. J., received a letter yesterday from her mother, in which the missing woman wrote about a "murdering stiff man," and asked that funds be sent her "at City Lawn Hall," the location of the latter place was not mentioned. The letter was postmarked this city.

Mr. Aeschbach said his wife has been in sanitariums during the last six years, but has been at home most of the time during the past two years. At the time of her disappearance, he said, she carried a leather dress suit case, a leather handbag, a fur coat and muff and two straw hats, one with a green veil and the other with a brown veil. She is described as 50 years old, weighing 145 pounds and about 5 feet 5 inches in height. She has light brown hair and dark blue eyes.

To Our Wholesale Trade

The Problem of the Strong and the Weak Glove Stock

DURING the early months of 1919, when all Glove Buyers should have been planning for their Holiday supplies, there were many weighty conferences between directors of some of the numerous "Merchants' Associations" and various merchandise men. They decided that prices would be lower; that glove merchandise would be plentiful; and that the seller's market of January, February and March would change to a buyer's market by August or September, 1919.

Falsely estimating the influence they might exercise by concerted action, some glove buyers unfortunately agreed to stand by a waiting policy. They hoped to force price reductions and secure an advantage to themselves that would enable them to throw panic into their competitors. In face of the conditions then existing, this attitude could only reflect their desire—not the facts.

On December 21st, 1918, we published in the trade journals a complete analysis of the situation and a forecast as to the future, the correctness of which has been demonstrated.

We now make the statement that the combination of—

(1) Scarcity and very high price of all leather;
(2) Rise in cost of all supplies used;
(3) Tremendous increase in actual wages paid;
(4) The reduction of the 57-hour week to the 44-hour week, and the very limited as well as constantly decreasing available supply of skilled workers will make it a physical and economical impossibility to manufacture enough good gloves to supply the demand.

The Glove Buyer, whether he buys for the Women's or Men's Department (or for both), has a tremendous advantage over every other buyer in his store: the kid gloves he buys now, he buys at bedrock prices that cannot go lower for a long time to come. And even if he does buy on the "double-double plan" for Christmas, and should not sell quite all, the Glove Department is the one department that steps right into the Easter* Rush immediately after the Inventory Sales.

Don't make the mistake of hesitating. Go after the glove business of your city and push for all you are worth. If the results are not the "best ever," it will be time to make some very radical changes.

Every incoming French steamer from Havre (Compagnie Generale Transatlantique) brings us new goods direct from our factory in Grenoble. Some shipments are very liberal, and sometimes we are disappointed because we do not receive enough to satisfy all customers. For this reason we are compelled to make it a rule to fill all orders in rotation as received. Therefore, it is clearly your cue to anticipate now, and—

*Easter Sunday, April 4th, 1920.

3 HURT WHEN TNT IN CARS EXPLODES

TWO MAY DIE FROM INJURIES

Force of First Blast Explodes Shells in Ammunition Magazine and Starts Fire.

BONHAMTOWN, N. J., Aug. 4.—Three men were injured, two of them seriously, when two freight cars, loaded with high explosives, were blown to pieces in the Camp Raritan Arsenal reservation, near here, this afternoon. The explosion, which was of TNT, occasioned great excitement for miles around, and for a time it was thought that several men had been killed and more than a score injured. The injured were removed to the Army Hospital at Raritan Camp, where it was said that two of the three injured men are probably fatally hurt. Andrew Stepnick and Jorn O'Hara are the seriously injured. James O'Neill, the third man injured, suffered not as a result of the explosion, but from the kick of a frightened horse. All of the injured are civilian employes of the arsenal.

The force of the explosion exploded shells in a nearby ammunition magazine, and late this afternoon the military fire department was still hard at work trying to subdue that blaze before it could reach other buildings or magazines in the vicinity. The magazine that was ignited contained several 3-inch shrapnel shells, and all afternoon these shells have been exploding with loud detonations. About 300 yards from the burning magazine is a magazine which contains a large quantity of TNT, and should the flames reach it a terrific explosion would result. The army officers in charge, however, say that they will be able to save that magazine and its contents.

Persons resident in the neighborhood of the arsenal rushed into the streets immediately following the explosion, the force of which broke windows, rattled chinaware and bric-a-brac, and caused houses to shake as in an earthquake. The material damage to homes and other structures was not great. For an hour or more there was great excitement in the neighborhood of the arsenal, rumors that the casualty list was large causing men, women, and children to congregate in the vicinity of the arsenal offices in an effort to find out whether this or that relative or friend was among the injured. Late this afternoon the roll of employes had been checked up, and it was officially announced that no one had been killed, and that only three persons had been injured.

Directly opposite the arsenal is the Nixon Nitrate Works. This concern employs 180 men. The men were ordered from the building following the explosion, and the plant was ordered to close down and remain so until the army officials announce that the fire is under control and all danger of further explosions passed.

SHOT TO STOP MAN, HITS BOY

Garage Owner Trying to Hold Stranger for Police Fires Wildly.

In an effort to halt a fleeing stranger, who, he believed, knew something about a stolen automobile sought by the police, Morris Terdiman, proprietor of a garage at 318 East Thirty-eighth Street, fired his pistol from the door of the garage into a group of playing children yesterday morning. One of the five shots fired by Terdiman struck John Pallica, 2½, of 332 East Thirty-eighth Street, inflicting a slight wound in the right leg. An angry crowd collected near the garage, seized the proprietor and gave him a severe beating before he could make an explanation.

The arrival of police of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station saved Terdiman from serious injury. He was badly bruised about the face and body, and was attended by Dr. Patterson of Bellevue Hospital. He was then placed under arrest on a charge of felonious assault and a violation of the Sullivan law.

The stolen car, which is the cause of the trouble, was reported missing by Samuel Tollock of Sixty-fourth Street and Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. Terdiman recognized the car left with him by two strange men as the one reported missing, but the two men got away before he could turn them over to the police. Later a third man came into the garage and brought up the matter of paying for the storing of the car. Suspecting that the third man knew something of the stolen car, the garage owner tried to hold him till the arrival of the police, but he broke away, and it was in trying to halt him that Terdiman shot into the crowd of playing children. When Terdiman was arraigned in Yorkville Court Magistrate Raphael Tobias, after hearing that the garage owner fired his revolver with the intent of aiding the police to catch an alleged automobile thief, he ordered that the charge of felonious assault be dropped. Terdiman was held in $1000 bail for trial in Special Sessions. In fixing bail Magistrate Tobias recommended the discharge of Terdiman.

CHARGES POLICE BEAT HIM.

Harry Rubenstein, a blacksmith of 310 East 101st Street, was arraigned in Harlem Police Court yesterday with Harry Meyers, of 245 West 113th Street, both charged with being fugitives from justice. They were held without bail until tomorrow, pending the arrival of extradition papers from Newark, N. J., where they are charged with stealing $137.77 on July 18 from a laundry.

The men were arraigned before Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso by Detective Thomas Enright of the East 104th Street Station. Rubenstein's attorney requested an adjournment until tomorrow for Meyers and his client, and asked the Court that a physician be appointed to examine the body of Rubenstein, who, the attorney alleges, was beaten by the police of the East 104th Street Station last Saturday following his arrest.

Rubenstein exhibited to the Court marks on his back, which, he alleged, were caused by a beating received in the station house. A request made by Rubenstein's attorney that photographs be taken of the marks on his client's body was granted by Magistrate Mancuso.

Detective Enright made no statement in court relative to the charges of police brutality. Magistrate Mancuso directed him to notify his superior officer to have all policemen who were in the station room when Rubenstein was brought in present in court tomorrow, so that Rubenstein could identify his alleged assailants.

ASK FUNDS FOR CHAPEL.

Sisters of Mercy to Build Memorial to War's Dead.

A three weeks' diocese wide campaign to raise $300,000 to carry on the work of the Sisters of Mercy was announced yesterday by the Right Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, Bishop of the Trenton Diocese. The chief object in raising such a sum during the campaign, which marks the first general public appeal made by the Sisters of Mercy for funds, is to build a chapel to be dedicated to those who fell in France. An assembly hall is also to be built.

"Like all other organizations," said Bishop Walsh in making the announcement, "the Sisters of Mercy have suffered financially as a consequence of the war, the influenza epidemic and the higher cost of living, and they are now called upon to meet an increased demand for their services during the reconstruction period. They cannot do this without financial aid, for not only is their work growing so that these additional buildings must be erected, but the incumbrance of indebtedness which has steadily grown must be relieved."

The date when the drive opens will soon be announced. It will continue for three weeks, and will embrace 138 parishes.

Destroyer Maddox, in Port, Wants Men to Sail Tomorrow.

Any man desiring to become a sailor and go to sea at once may do so if he enlists today, for the new destroyer, Maddox, which arrived in port yesterday and will sail tomorrow, wants men.

This announcement was made yesterday at the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, 34 West Twenty-third Street, when a telegram was received saying that there were many vacancies on the Maddox.

What! No Fiction?

WHAT! An interesting magazine with no fiction?

Positively, yes. And here's the reason for it.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS is a magazine about business and there is romance, and thrill and mystery in business that far transcend the imagination of the fiction writer, if only one knows how to uncover them.

Take the number now on the news-stands for example. It is called the "Stranger-Than-Fiction Number." There's an article about a great executive who uses Sherlock Holmes' methods to forecast the business future; a story of the bad men of the mails; and more than 200 different slants on business romance, every one of them with its special thrill.

Get this view of Business, as the greatest and most fascinating game in the world. It's THE NATION'S BUSINESS view of business—and 25 cents at the news-stands will bring it to you every month.

Motorize Your Delivery Thoughts

QUITE a number of otherwise astute business men haven't as yet convinced themselves as to the value of motor truck delivery.

We'd like to help these men "motorize their delivery thoughts."

But we don't particularly want to talk gear ratios, stress, torque, or engineering principles.

We want to help these men with facts and figures secured through the sale of over 3,000 Republic Trucks right here in the Metropolitan District.

There isn't a business, from retailing to manufacturing, and there isn't a delivery problem—from frequent, short, fast hauls to long distance transportation—on which we haven't worked out a solution. More Republic Trucks are in operation than any other truck made. It is natural that we should have a broad knowledge of the delivery subject.

"Speed with Economy"

Is Cost of Living "Talked Up?"

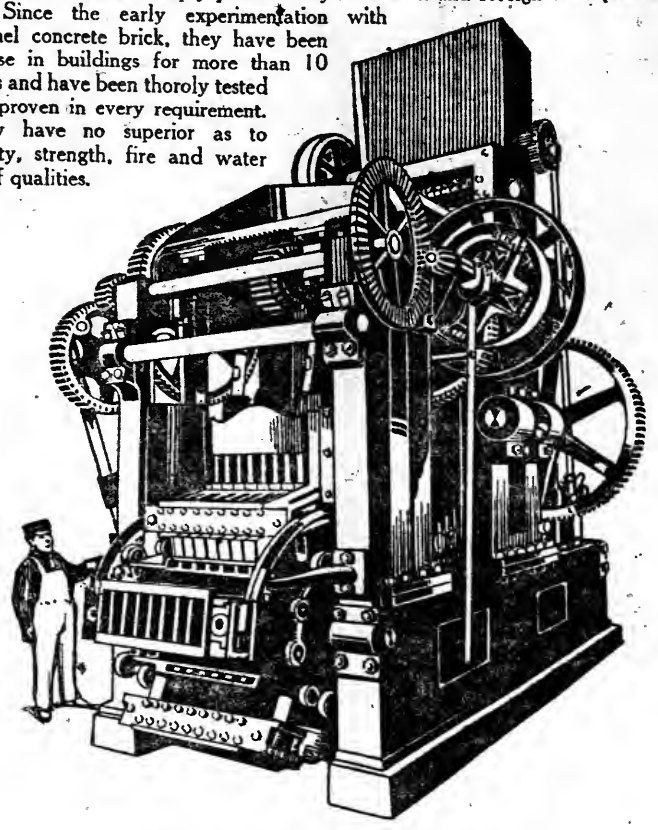
Suspicion is abroad that the great cost of living is in a measure due to the talk about tremendous demand. The Annalist, this week, has an article on this topic of universal interest. Published by The New York Times Company; 10c on news stands, $4 a year by mail.—Adv.

HISTORY AND USE OF ENAMEL CONCRETE BRICK

White enamel concrete brick are pronounced the finest and handsomest brick known to the building industry for exterior use.

The successful manufacture of enamel concrete brick is a natural international monopoly for the reason that they cannot be manufactured efficiently and economically by any other means or machinery than the automatic concrete brick machines which have been developed and perfected by our company and which are amply protected by American and foreign basic patents.

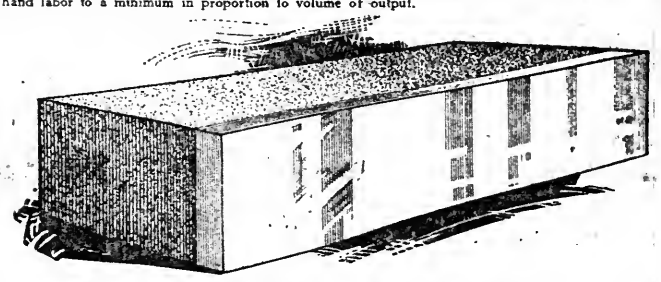
Since the early experimentation with enamel concrete brick, they have been in use in buildings for more than 10 years and have been thoroly tested and proven in every requirement. They have no superior as to beauty, strength, fire and water proof qualities.



REMARKABLE MACHINERY

The Stehm Automatic Brick Machine, of gigantic proportions, operating automatically performs every operation thru which the brick passes, without the aid of human hands, turning out 2,000 perfect bricks in each period of eight hours. Each brick is an exact duplicate of every other in form and color. The impervious enamel face, of any shade or color, is made part of the brick itself under a pressure estimated at 3,200,000 pounds.

Various other highly efficient machinery has been developed or adapted for all operations in these plants. The handling, mixing and conveying of all materials is performed by machinery, reducing hand labor to a minimum in proportion to volume of output.



RAW MATERIALS REQUIRED

The coarse materials used in the manufacture of enamel concrete brick are sand, or sand and gravel, or furnace slag, or crushed granite or similar materials. The manufactured or finer materials are cement and coloring materials. One or the other of the coarse materials are available in almost any section of the United States at low expense and cement is now quite economically distributed over the whole country.

No furnaces nor fuel for furnaces is required for the drying and curing of enamel concrete brick. An enormous saving over the clay product is made in this respect. The time required for curing enamel concrete brick is three days, effecting another economy over clay brick. Elimination of these items of burning or baking and drying greatly reduces the labor in the manufacture of enamel concrete brick in comparison to the manufacture of clay brick.

ENDORSEMENT OF BUILDING CONTRACTORS

Contractors who have used enamel concrete brick heartily recommend it for all building purposes. The following letters are indicative of the satisfaction this product gives:

TIMOTHY KELLY,
Kansas City, Mo.

"Having been in the general contracting business the past 18 years and have used all kinds of building material and have always been looking for something better, when I saw the enamel concrete brick I thought that it was what I had been looking for, and when I saw the machine make the brick I was convinced it was, and that it would be one of the best building materials for the future. I have made a thoro investigation of the quality of the brick, the output of the machine, the cost of production, etc., and I am sure the possibilities of the concrete machine are almost unlimited. I have made a large investment in the stock of this company and feel that the company has a wonderful future.

TIMOTHY KELLY."

J. C. MARDIS COMPANY,
Des Moines, Iowa.

"My many years in the contracting business puts me in a position to know the practical merits of this brick, which has already been used in the construction of buildings and has proved superior to all others. From my own knowledge of this brick I am pleased to recommend it to contractors thruout the United States.

J. C. MARDIS."

JAS. ANDERSON, Contractor and Builder,
Morrison, Illinois.

"I have been in the building game for twenty-five years or more, and my aim has always been to avail myself of the best materials possible for the job. The brick made by the concrete machine has everything beaten in that line. I have watched the machine from its start and have investigated the production and cost of making brick.

"JAMES ANDERSON."

ENDORSEMENT OF OWNERS OF BUILDINGS.

All individuals and corporations owning buildings constructed of enamel concrete brick are highly pleased with the appearance and lasting qualities exhibited by these brick. The following letters are illustrative:

Office of PRESIDENCY OF CARBON STAKE,
Price, Utah.

"Now that the walls are up, the roof on, and, in fact, the whole exterior of the Carbon Stake Tabernacle finished, permit me to tell you how pleased we are with the beautiful enamel brick put into the construction of the building and furnished by your company. The brick are uniform in size, remarkably even as to color, each one being well-defined, and as they glisten in the sunlight they are delightful to the eye; surely, 'a thing of beauty and a joy forever.' The building is the admiration of all who behold it.

"In our opinion there is nothing else can take the place of your white enamel brick for a structure such as our Tabernacle.

"G. A. IVERSON,
"Chairman Building Committee."

THE DOWNEY IMPROVEMENT COMPANY,
Downey, Idaho.

"I have your valued favor of the 4th and in reply would say that we have not as yet had any photographs taken of our hotel building, but as soon as the painters get thru and yard is cleaned up we plan to have some taken, and will be very glad to send you one.

"We believe we have one of the handsomest buildings in this part of the country, and the concrete brick which we purchased from you, we believe, helps to make it so.

"E. C. CROCKER, Gen. Mgr."

ALL DETAILS CHEERFULLY GIVEN.

Full details of manufacture, opinions of building experts, and any other information in connection with the development and use of enamel concrete brick will be cheerfully given. Plants making enamel concrete brick are open to inspection of parties interested.

(Enamel Concrete Brick Used)

A national campaign of advertising will popularize this brick in every community in the United States and will develop a nation-wide market the supplying of which will net millions of dollars annually to those who manufacture this product. With the annually increasing importance of building materials of permanent nature and the resumption of building activities in all directions, the development of the enamel concrete brick industry is something for conservative men to enthuse over. Add to these facts the natural national monopoly which the necessary machinery covered by basic patents assures, and this industry presents an extremely inviting opportunity for large capital and farseeing management.

The holding company, owners of the patents and manufacturers of this highly perfected machinery, desire only to operate on a royalty basis. Address or send competent representatives to investigate to Where Is the Corporation or Individual Who Will Develop and Control This Industry?

This announcement offers to the right corporation or men or man a proposal to acquire legitimate national control of a new industry of tremendous possibilities.

The company which has developed and now manufactures the Stehm Automatic Concrete Brick Machine desires to give entire control of the manufacture of concrete and enamel concrete brick in the United States to one properly financed corporation. The renewal of building activities over the nation is bringing all permanent building materials into large demand. There should be room at present in the United States for from 80 to 100 different plant units manufacturing these brick.

The manufacture of concrete brick, both plain and enamel, by automatic machinery has only recently been made practical thru the invention and perfection of automatic machinery for this purpose. This machinery is the product of fifteen years of persistent experiment and development and has involved an expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The patent rights are NOT for sale.

A UNIVERSAL PRODUCT

Brick is a product of universal demand. Enamel concrete brick of various colors and types are superior in beauty and quality to the clay products. They have been tested and endorsed by the highest building authorities, including the United States Government Superintendent of Construction of Public Buildings. They are the finest building brick in the world. With the perfection of automatic machinery of manufacture the peculiar advantages in the concrete brick product lie in the availability of material and in the low cost of manufacture as compared to the clay product. The average cost of manufacture of enamel concrete and concrete brick is far below the cost of manufacture of corresponding clay products and the quality is of superior merit. Selling at the same price, the margin of profit on the concrete product is extremely liberal. The average selling price of common brick today is $18.00 per thousand, f. o. b. plant. The gross production cost of grey enamel concrete brick (one side beautifully polished) with the Stehm Automatic Brick Machine is $9.00 per thousand, ready for delivery. The product is incomparably better and handsomer than common clay brick and ranks with highest grades of clay brick selling at $60 to $75 per thousand. Billions of brick are now needed for the nation's building operations.

The possibilities in the development of this industry are unquestionable. Three of the chief factors in successful industry, namely, invention, production and the market, are definitely and permanently established. The corporation or men who interest themselves in this proposition are asked to supply finance and management.

A FRANK PROPOSITION

The Concrete Machine Corporation now wishes to deal with a corporation or with men who after thorough investigation will contract for the exclusive use of these machines in the United States, giving them a monopoly on the product for at least the life of the present patents, which is 17 years. We ask that 10 or 12 manufacturing plants be established at once in key cities over the United States; that national advertising be done to popularize the product; that profits on the operation of these plants, over and above a reasonable interest on the investment, be devoted to establishing additional plants until every important section of the country is covered.

The carrying out of this agreement will involve an initial investment of from two to two and a half million dollars. The earnings on the original 10 or 12 plants will provide the investment capital for all additional plants. When 80 of the automatic concrete brick machines are in operation, a capitalization of $25,000,000 will be fully justified.

FOREIGN DEVELOPMENT

Propositions will be entertained for the installation of these automatic concrete brick machines in foreign countries, particularly in France and Belgium, where the rebuilding of districts devastated by the war will require vast quantities of permanent building materials. All necessary materials for enamel and plain concrete brick are available in these countries.

This announcement has been made perfectly frank. The company wishes to negotiate only with parties or corporations who can supply the necessary capital, management and initiative. No other proposals will be considered. Those of proper qualifications who are interested are invited to send competent representatives to Des Moines to inspect the automatic machinery we offer for this industry and to inspect the machine now in operation in a Des Moines plant manufacturing enamel concrete brick. RATIFY THE TREATY.

The country's impatience with the Senate for its dawdling over the Peace Treaty will ripen into indignation if the futile hearings and speechmaking are much longer continued. The Foreign Relations Committee has laboriously read the document, line by line, paragraph by paragraph, to the end of the eighty-seven thousand words it contains. It conducted the reading not in the spirit of men intent upon a sympathetic examination of the great charter of peace and liberty for all nations, but rather like a body of the Inquisition hunting through an Erasmian pamphlet for heterodox utterances, or a gimlet-eyed church committee bent upon convicting the parson of heresy. The members of the committee are no wiser than they were before. The hearings go on, the speechmaking continues. Republican Senators, prompted by no other motive than their bitter dislike of President WILSON, consume days in denouncing a document which they are not competent to expound or elucidate. And the country, every day in greater need of relief from conditions that are growing more difficult and dangerous, must bear its burden while the Senators vent their wrath upon the Treaty.

It is time to make an end of it. In the end the Senate must and will ratify the Treaty, it has no way of escape from that duty, for the country commands it. It now lays itself open to increasing severity of censure for every day it puts off ratification.

It would be indulging in illusory hopes to expect Congress to restore normal conditions and normal prices by one enactment or a dozen enactments. It cannot by law and in a day increase the supply of foodstuffs and other commodities; it cannot check or altogether regulate the demand resulting from the world's needs; it cannot resolve that the inflation of currency and credit shall cease at a given date. But there are inquiries to be made for the ascertainment of facts and the disclosure of wrongs or evils or maladjustments that may be cured. There would be measurable relief even in the knowledge that Congress with a serious mind was attempting to give relief. The events of the last few days have demonstrated that matters of the first order of importance await the attention of the nation's legislators. They should be free to turn their minds to the examination of the complex and difficult questions which occupy the public mind and have produced the prevailing uneasiness. Congress cannot concern itself with these questions of moment while the Senate is engaged in making war upon President WILSON, in devising ways to deprive him of his share of the credit for the great work done at Paris. After all their challenges, all their faultfinding and criticisms and assaults, the Treaty and the League covenant stand unconquerable. There is no need of reservations or amendments. The country wants none. It wants the Treaty ratified now.

THE INCOME TAX, 1917.

According to the preliminary statement of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, covering the year 1917, the persons who reported an income of $1,000 or over numbered 3,472,890. This is about 3 per cent. of the total population, estimated at upward of 100,000,000. The number of people supported by these incomes, however, is considerably greater. In many cases a single report covers the joint earnings of husband and wife; and wherever there are children they also must be included. The number of people living on the reported incomes is thus, in all likelihood, three or four times 3 per cent. of the total population.

The total of receipts from the tax was $675,249,450. This, the Commissioner states, makes an average of $368.56 per person. If all reporting an income of $1,000 or over had paid a tax, the average would obviously be much lower, about $190. The explanation doubtless lies in the fact that there were 1,640,758 persons reporting incomes between $1,000 and $2,000, many or most of whom were entitled to deductions which exempted them from paying any tax.

Comparison with previous years shows that during the war there was a marked general increase in the number of persons reporting the larger classes of income. Those receiving from $3,000 to $4,000 rose from 82,745 in 1914 to 374,958 in 1917. Those receiving from $5,000 to $10,000 rose from 137,448 in 1914 to 270,666 in 1917. Those receiving from $50,000 to $100,000 rose from 5,161 in 1914 to 12,439 in 1917. In the case of those, however, who receive the largest classes of income, from $200,000 to $1,000,000 and over, there is a marked variation from this type. In 1914, 1915, and 1916 the increase is regular and in general proportionate. But in all cases the returns for 1917, the year we entered the war, show a decided falling off. Thus persons reporting incomes between $500,000 and $1,000,000 numbered 114 in 1914, 209 in 1915, 376 in 1916, and only 315 in 1917. Likewise, persons reporting incomes of $1,000,000 and over numbered 60 in 1914, 120 in 1915, 206 in 1916, and only 111 in 1917. This may show that, contrary to the general belief, we had few or no profiteers during the war. Or it may show that our profiteers were all-round men in their specialty. The officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau promise a thorough investigation.

The total net income reported was upward of thirteen billions—$13,652,383,207. At 5 per cent., this would represent a capital of over two hundred and sixty billions, or ten billions more than the total wealth of the country as it has hitherto been estimated. Obviously, the estimate has been far too low. If the incomes of the vast numbers who pay no income tax were added, the calculated principal of the country would swell to figures far beyond the most liberal calculation.

The manifesto jointly signed by the officers of five leading railway unions rests the plan for operation of the railways "democratically" on the difference between credit of the Government, taken at 4 per cent., and the cost of capital raised in Wall Street, taken at 6 to 7 per cent. Both calculations are wrong. Only the Brotherhood Chiefs can think that the Government could raise an amount approximating the total of the Liberty Loans at 4 per cent. for any cause except the nation's life. The Government had so nearly exhausted the capacity of lenders by demands for patriotic reasons that the rate on the Victory Loan was 4¾ per cent., and would certainly have to be higher for any other purpose. The Government rate and the Wall Street rate would approximate on a loan for any mercantile purpose if it were approved.

For an object so doubtful as Government ownership of the railways it may be doubted if money enough could be found at any rate. Rather in proportion that the plan to run the railways for wages instead of profits threatened to become practical the capital of the railways would shrink, and their credit with it. For that reason it is not likely that the Wall Street rate would remain at 6 or 7 per cent. for the purpose proposed. Properties which are running at a deficit of hundreds of millions can hardly be said to have credit so long as they are the football of those whose object is to destroy profit and divert earnings to the increase of wages by threats of force against the service of the community.

The manifesto itself discloses signs of financial inexperience. It would be idle to hope to influence the signers by the opinions of those who consider the ideas which they express as deadly to the credit of any enterprise to be managed by them. They seem to think that Wall Street has money of its own which can be got by passing some sort of a statute. There is no money in Wall Street except that sent there from outside, and those who own that money will never think of entrusting it to the purposes of such a venture. Prospectuses are made while you wait, to suit the fashion of the moment. But prospectus writers seldom select for exploitation an obnoxious proposal for an unprofitable purpose, in the face of current demonstration of its delusive nature.

Rather than quote Wall Street opinion to these signers of a prospectus which might be actionable under a "blue sky" law, we offer for their consideration an opinion from the Indianapolis Union, which describes itself as the oldest labor paper in the United States:

> More than a year ago the President of the United States called attention to the necessity for taking steps to save the public utilities from destruction. The then Secretary of the Treasury pointed to the great distress that would follow a policy of checking the progress of the utilities companies. The Controller of the Currency pointed to the fact that nearly eight hundred millions of the securities of the utilities, owned by the people, were held by banks as collateral, and, if necessary, Congress should make provision for the protection of those properties with their millions of security holders.

The Union proceeds to remark that utility shareholders have been attacked rather than protected by the friends of the people who delude them with the idea that high wages and low rates and fares are compatible with good service. The demagogic politicians, says this labor paper, make a political issue of what is simply a matter of business economy, while secretly hoping that the corporations they attack will somehow escape ruin which would react against themselves. Who can doubt the demonstrations that rate-making bodies have preferred to pander to the voters rather than take sides with the corporations, so far as they are in the right on economic considerations? And is not the acquiescence of the people in the matter of the traction transfers, like this utterance of a union newspaper, of a nature to prove that the demagogues misjudge the people?

JUSTICE NEWBURGER.

Justice NEWBURGER performs a capital public service in accepting a renomination from the Republican Party, and in consenting to run on an Independent ticket and to accept the support of other organizations determined to resent the impudent attempt of the Tammany boss to make the great post of Justice of the Supreme Court of New York a piece of political spoils.

As Justice NEWBURGER says, the question involved is not personal. A great and salutary principle is at stake. Both parties have admitted and acted on the sound theory and practice that experienced, able, and upright Judges should be renominated by both parties. In selecting men to administer law and justice, no consideration should count except the merit, the value to the public, of the candidate. If a Judge whose distinguished and fruitful service on the bench is recognized by the bar and the public, who has shown himself admirably equal to the duties of his post, is to be rejected for an untried man at the dictation of the boss, if a Judgeship is only so much patronage, what reason have men fit to be Judges to wish or accept the office? What guarantee has the public that the courts, filled by Judges chosen for reasons exterior to their fitness, will continue to be efficient, independent of partisan motive, devoted only to law and justice?

The Tammany boss has given the whole community a lesson in his notion of the courts. It would be a grave misfortune if this opportunity to teach the necessity of separating the courts from politics were neglected.

Justice NEWBURGER does not wish to be a candidate in the Democratic primaries, but, since the question of principle transcends personal desires, a committee of the bar very properly believes in filing a petition for the purpose of demonstrating that there are Democrats enough to insure that his name appear in the Democratic primaries. He can decline that designation if he chooses. We believe that there are Democrats, Republicans, Independents, men of various parties, and men of no party, in numbers enough to re-elect Justice NEWBURGER, smash the plan of the boss, vindicate the dignity and the independence of the courts.

NEUROTIC REPUBLICANS.

The House of Representatives meets again today. It is to be hoped that the Republican leaders will be in a calmer and more rational frame of mind than they were on Saturday. Then Mr. IGOE, Democrat, of St. Louis, asked that a resolution for an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of the high price of shoes be brought up. Twice Mr. MONDELL, the Republican Floor Leader, refused his consent. Mr. CHAMP CLARK, the Democratic Floor Leader, made the same request. Speaker GILLETT refused to recognize him for that purpose. Apparently a three-day recess was the sole and supreme matter which the Republican masters of the House were willing to have considered. Certainly, their conduct, or want of conduct of late, indicates that they need a period for repose, for reflection, for abating the heat and fury of their partisanship, for restraining, if it can be restrained, a genius for blundering that seems to be growing incorrigible.

Everybody with feet knows that there has been an enormous rise in the price of boots and shoes, that the manufacturers have given the public warning to be prepared for even higher prices. In a statement that Mr. IGOE was not allowed to make, he presented plenty of facts and figures to show that an inquiry was needed. Apart from any facts or figures that he or anybody else could adduce, it is known and felt by every man, woman, and pocketbook that the price of boots and shoes has risen with amazing swiftness, keeps on rising, threatens to reach even loftier heights.

Why should Mr. IGOE's misfortune or fault in being a Democrat prevent the Republicans from authorizing an inquiry that is of keen interest to about everybody in the United States? If it can be proved that undue profits have been and are being collected on hides and leather and their product, that the price of boots and shoes is unnecessarily high, the Republicans, as the majority, will get all the credit of the inquiry, of the facts established, of the remedy, if the remedy can be found. On the other hand, if such an inquiry should determine that those prices are necessarily and inevitably high and bound to be higher, a considerable amount of public dissatisfaction and discontent will have been removed. The hide and leather and shoe men will be exonerated from what may be an unjust suspicion. One cause of the swollen cost of living will have been explained.

There seems to be a singular misapprehension in the minds of the Republican leaders in regard to the public feeling about the risen and rising cost of living. The public doesn't care a rap about the collection of "campaign material" by Republicans or Democrats. There is nothing Democratic or Republican in the bigger bills that have to be paid. The public is seriously concerned by the high prices of the necessaries of life. If Congress can throw any light on the causes, or provide any practical means of reduction, the people will be so far pleased. They will not be pleased, they will be made angry by Republican efforts to play with a vital economic and social question as if it were a mere game of politicians, to blame Mr. WILSON, to blame the Democrats. Find out the reasons, find out the remedies or improvements; that is what the people want.

It is painful to see the neurotic partisanship, the seeming incapability not only of large views but of ordinary political foresight, which the Republican leaders of the House continue to exhibit to a country every day growing sicker of their narrowness and their ineptitude.

HUNGARY'S FUTURE.

BELA KUN is a refugee over the Austrian border, and his Government in Budapest is being replaced by an administration of moderate Socialists. This is the first step, and possibly the least difficult, in the restoration of order in Hungary. Its importance is perhaps exaggerated in the news because most of the news comes by way of Vienna; and in Austria, where KUN twice attempted to overthrow the Government and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat, there is naturally a great deal of enthusiasm over the removal of this dangerous neighbor. Nevertheless, it remains to be seen how things will turn out. The future depends largely on the Magyars themselves, and fortunately they seem for the moment to be in a frame of mind which makes them fairly easy to deal with.

It would seem that we owe the overthrow of this last fortress of Bolshevism in Central Europe chiefly to the Rumanian Army, which reacted promptly against the attack of the Magyar Reds, and was on its triumphant way to Budapest when the Kun Government surrendered. However, the Magyars seem to have made it somewhat easier for them; the Red army was by no means a formidable affair either in numbers or in spirit. Here the fundamental difficulty of the Hungarian Communists was plainly visible. They were allowed to take charge in the hope that the name of Bolshevism might terrorize the Peace Conference and save the old frontiers. The bulk of the Magyar people regarded Bolshevism as the price they had to pay for a last chance to preserve their territorial integrity; they were willing to pay the price, provided it was not set too high. And eventually it rose beyond their endurance. KUN's Red army was numerous and powerful at the outset, for the troops of the old army joined it in great numbers to uphold the nationalist demand for a retention of the old boundaries. When the Peace Conference temporized KUN began to preach Bolshevism and his army began to desert. It was strengthened again when the Conference once more turned its attention to Hungarian frontier questions, but the Communists seized the occasion to preach and practice their new doctrine, and again troops left the colors. The residue of enthusiastic Communists was not strong enough to hold back the Rumanians.

Now the Bolsheviki are out, and the President of Austria observes that "Hungary was stripped and ruined "for generations in the course of a "few months." The Conference will very probably have to make a considerable reduction in the Hungarian indemnity, for the money which might have paid it has been stolen by the Communists; whether the Magyars are any better satisfied with this disposition of their property remains to be seen. In any event, much of the indemnity and much of the property of the Magyar people could have been saved if the Conference had done something in April instead of in August. The Magyars have paid a high price for the four months' postponement of their final settlement with the Allies. We shall presently see if they will now accept the judgment that is to be passed on them.

Some of their leaders had asked that French, British, or Italian troops occupy Budapest, presumably to prevent further attempts at proletarian dictatorship; but the Rumanians, despite the wish of the Allied Council, have gone on and are now in the Hungarian capital. It was perhaps unwise, since a garrison of troops which have cherished a long enmity to the Magyars might be less successful in allaying feeling than one of more remote origin; but it is not unnatural. In the first place, the Rumanians have a long account to settle with the Magyars for the invasion of Rumania, the occupation of Bucharest, and, finally, the treaty of May, 1918, which gave to Hungary some of Rumania's most valuable natural resources. It would have required almost superhuman self-control to bring them to give up such an opportunity for spectacular revenge. But there were more practical considerations.

A Hungary determined to keep her old frontiers was a continuing danger to Rumania—more dangerous while governed by the allies of LENIN, but dangerous under any government. The Rumanians seem not unreasonably to have lost confidence in the Allied Council, which hesitated over Hungary for four months; and now that they have put an end to the danger they want to see that it does not revive. Naturally, their troops are under a grave obligation to treat the inhabitants of Budapest with rather more than justice, for the chief consideration at present is the alleviation of racial bitterness and the preparation of the way toward peace. The Rumanians and Czechoslovaks, however, are wholly justified in their demand that Hungary be thoroughly disarmed first of all. When that is done the frontiers should be drawn, and as nearly as possible—which is not very near—they should coincide with the ethnographic boundaries. We must free the subject races whom we promised to liberate; the Magyars deserve even less consideration than before, since they waved the Bolshevist torch at the houses of their neighbors. But when that is done—when a disarmed Hungary is reduced to her proper frontiers—the Conference ought to arrange with Jugoslavia or Italy for free access of Hungarian commerce to the Adriatic, and should do what it can to promote economic arrangements between agricultural Hungary and her industrial neighbors that will make permanent peace attractive and profitable to them all.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Familiar Beginning Is Reported. Among the minor effects of the particularly abominable crime just committed by dynamiters out in California will be that of reminding people in this part of the country that similar crimes were committed here, some months ago. In Los Angeles, the police have shown most commendable energy in beginning a hunt for the cowardly assassins who, to punish Mr. LAWLER for daring to bring to justice certain members of their precious fraternity, attempted not only to kill him, but to burn to death his wife and children. Rewards, too, have been offered for the apprehension of the criminals, and the clues found by the police—bits of the bomb used, and the stories of various people who saw men who may or may not have prepared and exploded it—are made the basis of confident predictions that the perpetrators of the outrage soon will be caught.

Judging from our own experience with other dynamiters, who also attacked representatives of the law in naïve expectation that thus all representatives and executors of the law could be scared into inactivity, it is easier to hope than to believe that the efforts of the Western detectives will be successful. For here, too, there was an immediate and vigorous beginning of a man hunt. Clues, many and valuable, were found and followed, and day after day we were told that the criminals were as good as captured. Forty-eight hours were to see them in captivity, the several varieties of detectives said, and they said it so often that after a while the newspapers tired of printing the repetitions. From the silence that followed, such part of the public as did not forget the subject altogether seemingly assumed that what was to be done had been done, and no longer worried the police with either inquiries or criticisms.

Failure Nearly Complete. It may be true—it presumably is true—that the men in the Federal Secret Service have not given up the search for the dynamiters who startled the inhabitants of so many Eastern cities. In time some of the criminals may be arrested. The probabilities of success diminish daily, however, while the difficulties of conviction in case arrests are made increase at equal rate as the weeks go on.

In fairness it must be admitted that such cases as these are not easy to solve. They result, not as most murders do, from personal animosities, with a consequently narrow field of search, but from the antagonism of class for class—a fact that exposes all members of one of the classes to suspicion, without supplying any proof against any of them.

Yet the difficulty of a task is no excuse for not performing it—that is, unless the difficulty amounts to impossibility, and never once have the detectives, Federal or municipal, confessed their inability to deal with criminals of this type. Unfortunately, that inability, though unconfessed, has been illustrated with lamentable frequency of late, and it will be almost as surprising as satisfactory if the Californian police, even with help from the Department of Justice in Washington, accomplish any more than was done in the East. Here the total achievement, so far as known, was the identification of certain scattered fragments of a human body as having been that of an honest watchman, who chanced upon the lighted bomb and was blown to pieces, probably while trying to extinguish it!

Roosevelt's Grave a Shrine. Probably in no country in the world are people less given than in this one to visiting the graves of the distinguished dead. No more or sooner, here than elsewhere, probably, are the great and good forgotten after their lives are ended, but Americans tend to look forward rather than backward, and history is not their favorite study.

It is true that to the tomb of WASHINGTON there is a fairly continuous stream of reverent and interested sightseers, but the stream is a thin one, and in no small part it consists of foreign tourists. The resting places of LINCOLN and GRANT are objects of like, though much less, visitation, and there the list of American graves that are objects of more than family devotion almost ends.

Almost, but not quite. There is one most notable exception to the national rule—a most notable break in the national custom. To the grave of THEODORE ROOSEVELT mourners go daily by the hundreds, and on every pleasant Sunday literally by the thousands. The place where he lies is not easily or cheaply accessible to these pilgrims, and as yet nothing there except the heaped-up earth and the simplest of monuments attracts the sorrowing throng.

Their presence is exceptional, just as was the man himself. They go to his grave because they knew him personally, as it were, even those who never saw him. To know him was not always to love him, for he made enemies as well as friends, but it is a peculiar and significant circumstance that of all who were or thought and declared themselves his enemies while he was alive not one now would venture to express his old animosity, and probably not one has any to express.

ROOSEVELT was a man of parts and qualities unique. To call him a typical American, therefore, would be obviously and absurdly untrue. But today his fellow-countrymen remember him as what the typical American ought to have been and ought to be—and on a single Sunday 5,000 people make the long, hard journey to his grave! They are drawn there by an irresistible attraction, a fervent admiration, and a grief that deepens as deepens anxiety for the national welfare. Never was man more sincerely missed than he, or for what was felt to be better reason.

MIDDLE-CLASS PROTESTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the strike now inaugurated in the railroad shops, whereby the whole country will suffer grievously, would it not be well to let the people know exactly what these shop workmen are striking for?

Their statement is "we demand a wage increase from 68 cents an hour to 85 cents, and that the increase be effective from Jan. 1, 1919."

Now, will you print this in plain terms so as to meet the mind of every citizen of the country who sees it, as follows: "We demand a wage increase from $140.56 per month to $175.20 per month and a cash present to each man of $245." This is exactly what they demand. Shop workmen, some unmarried, state they cannot live on $140 per month. Think how many millions of clergymen, doctors, lawyers, teachers, college professors, traveling salesmen, clerks, bookkeepers, surveyors, store clerks, office men of all sorts, farmers, and farmers' help all manage to live and support families on less than this. The writer does it and it is a hard job; but why, if I can do it, or my minister and doctor do it, cannot a railroad shop worker do it? Must we take still more from our meagerness to add to his increase?

How long is the country going to stand this thing? A REAL AMERICAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a stenographer, a good one, too, at $39 a week. My boss apparently appreciates me; he tells me often that I am invaluable. When it comes to wages, however, he seems to forget that my salary, while fair in pre-war days, is mighty poor just now, and when his laborers and other workers get increases, stenographers' wages remain stationary.

I often wonder if my boss realizes the time and money my stenographic training cost. I wonder if he really appreciates my skill. He probably doesn't know that I am looking after his interests every minute, fighting his fights, and equipping myself with a knowledge of things which will help him. I think perhaps he doesn't realize that my cost of living has increased, too, and when I see men and women around me paid more than I am for what we used to consider "cheap labor" I realize there are many others who are in the same boat with me and I am forced to ask you to help us tell our employers. STENOGRAPHER.

Here I am, a young man 28 years of age, reasonably healthy, willing, eager, and ambitious, possessed of all my faculties and considered intelligent, and drawing the munificent wage of $15 per week as a law clerk. By the way, I have two degrees, an A. B. and LL.B. From this $15 I must contribute substantially to the support of my family, support myself, and live. Can you figure how I do it? If I were not a model young man, possessed of all the virtues I have enumerated before and a whole lot more, you can take it from me I'd never be able to accomplish this surpassing feat.

I'm not complaining about my job; very few law clerk beginners get very much more, but what I am yelling about is the awful little that $15 a week gets me. Every minute some new labor organization gets it into its head to ask for a raise in wages. What happens? The raise comes all right, but with it comes an increase in the price of the commodity, and while the laborer's advanced salary makes him break even, we who never get more money have to make the $15 do the work of $50, and it can't be done. Give the War a Name.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES would do a great work in starting a discussion concerning a proper title of the late war, if necessary asking the principal historical and literary men of the country to contribute. The need is very pressing.

For example, both the army and the navy are compiling histories of the war, and neither has definitely decided upon a title. The army rather favors "The War of 1917," while the historical section of the navy has, for the moment, adopted Admiral W. W. Kimball's "The War of the German Aggression." The latter has the merit of pretty exactly describing the conflict, while the former describes it in a too narrowly American sense.

Should the matter, after all, not be taken up by the powers diplomatically? Which of the following titles is best: The World War, the War Against the Central Powers, the Great War? Evidently the ideal title must be as short and terse as possible, one that all nations will recognize so that confusion shall not reign, one that is not easily confounded with the names of other wars. E. BRECK.

TO A GERMAN WAR HELMET.

Ironic censor of the ways of men,
Beneath thy frigid steel once frowned and smiled
A living, feeling man—a man no more!
Silent he sleeps upon the Flanders fields,
While thou alone art left, so eloquent
In gaping emptiness! Why was this man?
One of the millions Herded on to slay
And then be slain, did he go down to death
Like stolid oxen prodded on to slaughter?
Or was he swept by waves of huge regret—
The picture of a waiting mother's face,
The memory of the rose he once received
From her he loved? Or did some great ambition
Go crashing to its ruin when he fell—
The prayers and toil of years, the fierce desire
To recreate the world in beauty's image,
To take dominion of the strength of nature,
Or fashion matchless words of lyric truth
To sing their way through time? Who was this man?
Answer, immobile mask of stoic steel!
Relate the story hinted by thy silence!
Proclaim, in language all the world may read,
Thy dumb indictment of the ways of men!

DEFENDS AIR SERVICE FUND.

La Guardia Doubts $25,000,000 Can Be Judiciously Spent in a Year.

Congressman F. H. La Guardia gave out a statement last night at the Hotel Brevoort regarding criticisms that have been made of appropriations by Congress for the country's airplane service. In his statement he said:

"It seems that certain people in charge of the Air Service still believe that the Air Service can be developed through the press. The old game of the Liberty motor being conceived in twenty-nine hours, and being a standard motor for all planes, and constructed by the thousands, and planes darkening the skies over Berlin—this sort of twaddle that deceived the American people while nearly a billion dollars was squandered and thieving scoundrels, like vultures, were doing their 'bit' is again attempted on the American people.

"I can only repeat what I said on the floor of the House the other day that Congress appropriated for the air service $25,000,000, and if this money is spent judiciously for the development of the air service and the encouragement of American aeronautical industries it cannot possibly be expended during the present fiscal year. We appropriated $25,000,000 for the navy, and likewise the navy will not be able to expend all this money during the present fiscal year. The navy came in with a business-like, logical, reasonable budget, stating specifically how the money was to be spent, and we cheerfully gave it to the navy. Talk about the Realm of Dreams! Why General Menher was unable to state any definite policy when he appeared before the Committee, on Military Affairs at the hearing on appropriations.

"Ever since I got out of the army and back to Congress I have been endeavoring to obtain intelligent information as to what the Air Service has on hand. I have pleaded, I have begged, I have threatened, and up to date there isn't a man, from the Secretary of War down, who is able to tell what the Air Service has, where it is, in what state of consumption it is, how many motors are used, how many are available, or how many are fit for actual service, and these same men have the audacity to resort to the old dreams of Liberty motor days by charging Congress with cutting down appropriations in order to hide their own miserable incompetence.

"In order to obtain a commercial inventory I was compelled to introduce a resolution, which passed the House last Friday on a strict party vote—my Democratic friends assuring me that it was necessary and timely, but voting against it on party principles—to obtain the information above indicated. This has been signed by the Speaker and goes to the Secretary of War, so that now, for the first time since appropriating the $640,000,000, we will know just what we have on hand. This will be of great assistance to the sub-committee of the Select Committee on Expenditures under the War Department. It will be of great assistance to the sales department of surplus supplies, and when we have intelligent men at the head of the air service it will be of great assistance to them. Any intelligent man will see that the appropriation has nothing to do with the storing of property. We appropriated millions in the last appropriation bill for the storing of all War Department property, and it is stupid to say that what they have on hand will go to rust on account of appropriations. The trouble is that they do not know what they have on hand and the people in charge do not know how to store it after they find out what they have on hand.

"The question of personnel is due entirely to the arbitrary ratio of men allowed to the air service by the General Staff. Even the other day when the General Staff asked for a temporary increase of officers for the coming year they were unable to tell us how many men would be assigned to the air service. I succeeded in the committee, however, in inserting a proviso in that bill assigning 1,200 men to the air service, and a further proviso that 85 per cent. of these men should be duly qualified fliers. This will give an opportunity to our fliers, who did the real work in this war and who desire a commission, to be selected.

"Is it forgotten that only a few weeks ago the chief of the air service made nine promotions to the grades of Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel, and that not one of these men is a flier and not one had seen service overseas? Is it forgotten that one of the men appointed with the rank of Colonel, with a responsible position in the air service, is the brother-in-law of the chief of the air service, who has no flying training or qualification for the position he fills?

Urges Training for Fliers.

"I repeat again that the air service cannot be built up in this country by misstatements in the press. I know who is doing the hollering. It is the real estate mongers who thought they would make another haul out of the 1919-1920 appropriations. It is the favorite wail of the purveyors of junk. It is not the true friends of aviation or honest industry that is complaining.

"Talk about saving the Air Service, how about the selling of $22,000,000 of good planes for $2,000,000? A plane for $400, a motor for $200, a total of $600? And when our flying boys, many of whom desired for patriotic reasons to continue in training, asked for a plane they were referred to the people who made this contract, who in turn offered them a plane F. O. B. the flying field for $3,500. Has the appropriation of Congress anything to do with that?

"I have been working hard to have that contract rescinded, and I am sure that enough pressure has been brought to bear to make the department stand up and take notice and see that the boys who want to get in training are given a chance.

"Talk about the air service, do the American people know that no policy has been adopted for service flyers to go to flying fields for a flight in order to keep fit? I took this up with the chief of the air service, and was informed that a policy was under course of study, and it was hoped to have a system by Fall. This loses four splendid flying months to the trained fliers of the country. Has the appropriation anything to do with that?

"I could go on indefinitely, but I serve notice now that incompetency, favoritism, graft, will have no chance as long as the present Congress is in existence."

TO TRAIN BOLIVIAN AIRMEN.

Capt. Hudson, Formerly of A. E. F., Will Organize Flying Corps.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Captain Donald Hudson, formerly a member of the famous first pursuit group of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, has been employed by Bolivia to organize and instruct a flying corps in its army. It was said here today that Bolivia had decided to obtain instruction for its army by discharged American officers after it had failed to obtain admission of picked cadets to the West Point Military Academy. The American Government explained that at this time it was impracticable to accept more foreign students at the American school.

Before the European war the Bolivian and most other South American armies were trained largely after German methods.

CROWELL GOING TO FRANCE.

Will Complete Sale of the Army's Surplus Supplies Abroad.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Assistant Secretary of War Crowell will sail for France tomorrow to complete the work of the Liquidation Commission there, which has been arranging for the sale abroad of the surplus supplies and equipment of the American Expeditionary Forces.

In making this announcement today Secretary Baker said the work in France of Assistant Director Hare of the Surplus Property Sales Division had to do with the sale in Europe of military supplies now in the United States and in excess of the War Department's needs, and not with the sale of surplus property now in France.

Colonel Tells Congress That France, with Only 250,000 More Men, Had 3,321.

UPHOLDS CRAFT BURNING

Were Damaged, He Says—Cabled in Vain for Machines—Praises Liberty Motors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Figures produced today before the Congressional sub-committee investigating aviation by Colonel M. M. Patrick, former head of American Air Service in France, showed that at the time of the armistice there were only 740 American air planes on the western front.

Colonel Patrick submitted the figures showing that France, with 1,500,000 men actually on the front, had 3,321 planes of all descriptions in operation; that England, with 900,000 men at the front, had 1,758 planes, and that the United States, with 1,250,000 men at the front, had just 740 planes in operation. To have been adequately protected, Colonel Patrick testified, the American forces should have had 3,400 planes.

At the time of the armistice the Allies were easily superior in the air with 6,784 planes, as against 3,352 enemy machines. Heretofore the statement has often been made that the Germans were superior in the air. Colonel Patrick said today that the figures which he produced were obtained by allied Secret Service agents and were published in Paris in the Aerial Bulletin. The officer declared he considered the figures absolutely accurate.

Justifies Burning of Aircraft.

The burning of airplanes in France, which has been under investigation by another Congressional sub-committee was entirely justified, Colonel Patrick testified. Colonel Patrick, who was a Brigadier General in France, said the planes were stripped of their motors and metal parts, and were destroyed only because they were useless, and it would have been a poor investment to ship them back to the United States.

The testimony of Colonel Patrick was supplemented by that of Colonel E. S. Correll of the Air Service, who went abroad in May, 1917, as a member of the Bolling Commission. He testified that the Bolling Commission had recommended the manufacture in this country of six types of foreign aircraft, this recommendation being pursuant to an agreement "harmoniously and unanimously reached" at an interallied aircraft conference in Paris.

The types recommended were the Bristol pursuit plane, a Spad with a fixed engine, a Spad with a rotary engine, the Spad-Monocoque, the Caproni triplane, this recommendation being almost immediately changed to the Caproni byplane, and the DP-4 as a stop gap, pending the perfection of the DF-9.

Colonel Patrick testified that when the armistice was signed he had 744 pilots, 457 observers, and 23 aerial gunners, all completely trained, making 1,234 fliers; that the total number of officers in the air service was 7,726, with 70,769 men, of whom about 20,000 were being trained in England.

Colonel Patrick gave it as his opinion that there should be provided 2,720 planes of all kinds for each 1,000,000 men at the front, and that there should be about eighty men for each plane, including, of course, the ground men.

Leave Sunday for West Coast.

The sub-committee leaves Sunday for a trip to the Pacific Coast to investigate the spruce situation. This trip will consume many weeks. Chairman Frear said today he did not see how he and Mr. Lea of California and Mr. Magee of New York, the other two members, could get back to Washington before Oct 1. The first hearing will be held in Chicago on Monday, and the party will then go to Seattle. The sub-committee will hold meetings also in St. Paul, and may go to Texas to investigate the production of castor beans, from which oil was derived for use in airplane motors.

This trip of the sub-committee to the Pacific Coast was characterized by the Democratic National Committee publicity organization as a "junket" by a "smelling committee."

The table submitted by Colonel Patrick showed the strength of the various armies on July 30, 1918, and again at the time of the armistice. This table follows:

July 30—	Bomb'g Total.	July 30—	Bomb'g Total.
France	2,820	Italy	664
England	1,638	Germany	2,592
America	270	Austria	717
Belgium	160

Total allied airplanes, 3,458; total enemy airplanes, 3,309.

France	3,821	Italy	812
England	1,758	Germany	2,730
Belgium	153

The planes, said Colonel Patrick, were distributed along the western front, but did not include other planes used by the Allies and Germany along other fronts and for the protection of cities. The officer gave the total American aviation personnel abroad as 7,726 officers, flying and nonflying, and 70,769 men. Of these, 686 officers and 51,229 men were in France, the others for the most part being in training in England. This was on Nov. 11. Prior to that date the number was smaller, but the exact figures were not given.

Questioned, Colonel Patrick said that about 2,723 planes would have been an adequate number for the American Army, numbering 1,159,000 men, and that the French had about 5,300 planes for the same number of men.

"You felt, did you not" asked Mr. Frear, "that you had an insufficient number of planes?"

Unable to Obtain Machines.

"Of course I did," answered Colonel Patrick. "But we were unable to get the planes, although we cabled frequently for them. Had the war gone on longer, we would have made a much better showing. We expected to have an army of 3,000,000 at the front. That was the program of the Chief of Staff, and with an army of that size we expected to have 318 flying squadrons, twenty planes to a squadron. As it was, we were wofully weak in men and machines."

In the opinion of Colonel Patrick, the much criticised De Haviland 4 was a "serviceable" machine. Captain De Haviland, the inventor, according to the Colonel, said the American-made De Haviland 4's were superior to those produced abroad. When Chairman Frear read at great length passages from Captain "Eddie" Rickenbacker's book, accounts of airplanes dropping to the ground in flames, the aviator terming them "flaming coffins," Colonel Patrick said that no more De Havilands crashed in this way than other machines.

Captain Rickenbacker had criticised the Liberty motor, but Colonel Patrick said, the Liberty, at the time of the armistice, was "the equal, if not the superior, of anything in its class." France and England, said he, were eager to obtain them.

Questions put to the Colonel about shortage of equipment met the answer, "I don't impute a fault to any one."

Later he said: "I doubt exceedingly if we could have produced in quantities engines of known worth before we got a quantity production of Libertys."

When it came to a discussion of the burned planes, Colonel Patrick, who has been back from France only two weeks, said he directed this done in the case of planes damaged in crashes, planes that had deteriorated, and planes that were obsolete. There was no secrecy about the matter, he declared, and he asserted that no Liberty motor fit to fly, and no propeller fit to use, was destroyed.

To bring each damaged plane back to the United States, he said, $100 would have been required for boxing and other expense, in addition to transportation cost and the expense in tonnage.

FURS HOLD SWAY AT FASHION SHOW

BROWN THE RULING COLOR

Heavy Embroideries Also Popular in Styles Contrived by American Designers.

Exclusive shops and department stores vied with each other at the first Fashion Show of the season, which was given by the National Garment Retailers' Association on the Century Roof last night. The prices of clothes may soar in fulfillment of the prophecy which has been persistent for months, and the designers seem to show no tendency to encourage their clientele to economize, for never in the palmy days before the war were gowns more dashing.

Gowns of cloth of gold and silver; heavy brocades and sequins, the latter with clouds of tulle, were shown in such profusion that when a model from one of the department stores on Broadway stepped forth in a simple frock of black satin embroidered with jet beads there was a storm of applause. There was little of the Oriental influence which is said to hold sway in Paris, but the American designers seem to have given their stamp of approval to heavy embroideries when used in moderation.

In point of numbers New York led in the displays last night but she found very dangerous rivals in some of the out-of-town shops which had really stunning models. One Pittsburgh house caused a stir with its evening gowns particularly, although its other models were also individual and interesting. A rather unusual departure was made in a display of garments for stout women. One was especially attractive, consisting of black satin draped in long lines with a bodice of georgette and jet with mallum length bell sleeves.

Tailored suits promise to be very running. Brown seems to be the most popular color and while fur is used a great deal for trimming, the smartest suits shown last night—one in particular of green duvetyn—had nothing at all and a small black neckpiece was worn with it. Another smart one was of seal brown of embroidered material with a tight coat, reminiscent of several years ago, and a circular top coat barely showing a tighter one. Coming as an echo from Paris one Chinese red suit attracted considerable attention with its trimmings of monkey fur. There seems to be no uniformity in the length of the suit coats. There are saucy short ones and more sedate long ones, all of them attractive in a different way. Some velvet suits were shown but the tendency seemed to be toward the cloth material.

The designers seem to have come to some agreement as to the length of the gowns, and the fours of those who have heard that we are going to be made to wear gowns just below the knee may now be allayed. With a very few exceptions, all the models last night showed the length at about eight inches from the floor. This length is popular with the Americans, and during the last few years it has been rather difficult to vary far from this length for long. There was not much enthusiasm shown for the very narrow skirts, and, in fact, few of them were displayed.

Fitted bodices were something of a surprise in the evening gowns, but the afternoon frocks were of loose lines with a strong tendency toward the long waist line. One luncheon frock was of brown cloth with dull gold bands loosely girdling the long waist line and bits of the same trimming set in perpendicularly.

Much interest was shown in the furs. Every kind seems to be popular, and wraps of the rare pelts were shown in great abundance. They are mostly in cape and are held by the wearer to suit her fancy. This is also true of the evening wraps of velvet and other material. An odd fur set of skunk was shown with the white fur of the animal combined at the back of the stole. The linings were of bright shades, and these were shown either at the collar or in the way the wrap was carried.

WOMEN CHOSEN GOVERNORS

Four to Serve on Casino Board After Aug. 21—Lieut. Col. Roosevelt Guest of Republican Club.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4.—Again the Newport Casino came back to its own today, when the invitation tennis tournament, after two years' absence, was resumed, bringing back to the Casino the old guard in full strength. The costumes were attractive, but not strikingly elaborate. The large gathering of Summer residents looked like a reunion after absence because of the war. war.

The annual meeting of the Newport Casino Corporation was held today, with the result that there will be four changes in the Board of Governors. With four vacancies occurring, four women will take their places. As the constitution must be changed to allow of such an innovation, a meeting of the corporation has been set for Aug. 23 for this purpose.

Through the resignation of Henry A. C. Taylor, who declined to serve for another term on the Executive Committee, of which he was Chairman many years; the declination of former Commodore Edwin D. Morgan and Milton S. Barger of the board to be candidates for re-election, and the death of George L. Rives came the four vacancies to be filled.

Former Commodore Lewis Cass Ledyard and Edward J. Berwind were re-elected Governors to fill the vacancies caused by the leaving of Messrs. Morgan and Barger. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Boston and Newport and Miss Ruth V. Twombly of New York were nominated in their stead.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, taking the place of Mr. Taylor, and Mrs. Barger Wallach, taking the place of the late Mr. Rives, will be elected to the offices of Governors when the change in the constitution is made on Aug. 23.

Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who, with Mrs. Roosevelt, is guest of Governor and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, was guest of honor tonight at the dinner given by the Young Men's Republican Club at the Newport Beach, with 300 members in attendance, including Governor Beeckman, army and navy and marine officers, veterans of the world war and State and city officials. Colonel Roosevelt was greeted with cheers, and again cheered when he concluded his remarks.

PROTEST PELHAM PLAN.

City Island Residents Oppose Project for Drug Hospital.

About 500 residents of the Bronx in the vicinity of Pelham Bay Park held a mass-meeting in Thwaite's Casino, at City Island, last night and protested against the proposal to have the city use the buildings of the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station as a hospital for drug addicts. The Chairman of the meeting was William Warrenberger. Resolutions were also adopted condemning the proposal.

A petition containing about 1,000 signatures will be presented at today's meeting of the Board of Estimate asking the city officials not to vote for the project. Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen, a resident of the Bronx, made an inspection of the buildings with several other city officials, and said he had not changed his mind that it would be a bad thing to use the buildings as a hospital. He said he would vote against the measure when it came up in the Estimate Board.

LEVIEN CAUGHT IN DISGUISE.

Bavarian Red Chief Was on His Way to Stir Bolshevism in Italy.

GENEVA, Aug. 4. (Associated Press.)—When arrested last week in an attempt to escape into Italy by the Brenner Pass, Dr. Max Levien, the Bavarian Communist leader, was disguised. He was taken to Innsbruck for trial.

It is said that Levien's desire to reach Italy had as its basis the fomenting of Bolshevism in that country.

"Happy Days" for Hippodrome.

"Happy Days," it was announced yesterday by Charles B. Dillingham, will be the title of the coming season's extravaganza at the Hippodrome. The new show will open late this month, and will mark the beginning of Mr. Dillingham's fifth year as the manager of the Hippodrome. F. H. Burnside will again be largely responsible for the production, and the music will be the work of Raymond Hubbell.

Rehearsals of principals and chorus are now under way at the 71st Regiment Armory, and rehearsals of the numbers and ballets are going on at the Hippodrome. The auditorium of the huge theatre is being entirely redecorated and re-upholstered over the Summer.

Tallulah Bankhead in Leading Role.

Richard Epstein's Funeral.

Funeral services for Richard Epstein, the pianist, were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Campbell's Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. Robert Maitland, the English baritone, sang an aria by Bach. Reuben Goldmark, Vice President of the Bohemians, delivered an address of eulogy, in the course of which he referred to the distinguished career of Mr. Epstein in both Europe and this country as a player and teacher of the piano. Trained in music by his father, Julius Epstein of Vienna, he had made himself one of the foremost authorities on the art of the piano.

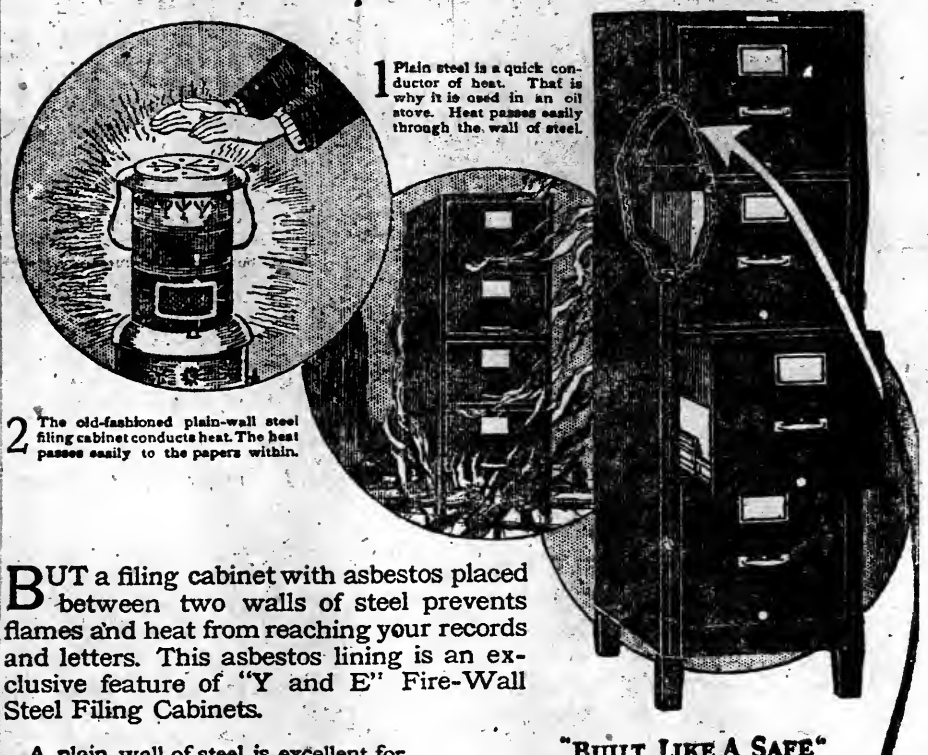
Why you need Asbestos Protection for your records



1 Plain steel is a quick conductor of heat. That is why it is used in an oil stove. Heat passes easily through the wall of steel.

BUT a filing cabinet with asbestos placed between two walls of steel prevents flames and heat from reaching your records and letters. This asbestos lining is an exclusive feature of "Y and E" Fire-Wall Steel Filing Cabinets.

A plain wall of steel is excellent for oil stoves but is poor for filing cabinets, where fire protection is necessary. It conducts the heat to the very papers you expect it to protect.

That is why we build our "Y and E" FIRE-WALL Cabinets with double walls and an interlining of asbestos—so that users of steel equipment may also have fire and heat protection. For use where protection is unnecessary, we ourselves make a great variety of plain-wall steel cabinets; so we know exactly what they will and will not do.

"BUILT LIKE A SAFE"

Fire-Wall Cabinets are made in all sizes—correspondents, bills, capsize papers, card records, documents, checks, storage, etc.

"Y and E"

FIRE-WALL STEEL FILING CABINETS

It goes all around—at top, bottom, front, sides and back. It renders these cabinets three to thirty times as fire and heat resistant as any ordinary steel cabinet made, our own plain wall cabinet included.

Cost no more

Though "Y and E" Fire-Wall Cabinets protect your records better, they cost no more. In spite of the asbestos construction—in spite of four additional features, these better cabinets are sold at the price of ordinary filing equipment.

One fire would convince you. Why wait for a fire?

It will pay you to ask for our new booklets "Steel Cabinets that Protect" and "Vertical Filing Down-to-Date."

Five Exclusive Features —at no extra cost

1. The layer of asbestos between double walls of steel which is built in at top, bottom, front, sides and back of "Y and E" Fire-Wall Cabinets.
2. The Automatic Safety Latches, which prevent the drawers from opening in a fire emergency or in office re-arrangement.
3. The "Y and E" Frictionless Slides which give the drawers an easy gliding movement.
4. Drawers strike all around—like a safe door. Protects the contents of the cabinet drawers against dust, water, flame and heat.

An editorial secret for inspiring action in men

EVERY man who uses printer's ink to sell the public an article or an idea, knows that the hardest job his message has is to overcome that human inertia which keeps men from acting even after they are convinced.

"On any given day," said William James, "there are energies slumbering in us which the incitements of that day do not call forth. Compared with what we ought to be, we are only half awake."

How to make a message quicken these hidden energies of men, so that they not only will know what we want them to know, but do what we want them to do, is the problem every editor faces.

Is there an editorial form that rouses men to action?

Here on FARM & FIRESIDE we have learned that there is one form to give a message which always increases the responsiveness of our readers to it.

Examine a current copy of FARM & FIRESIDE and you will see that it might be called "The Magazine About People Who Have Made a Success of Farm Life."

Whether the subject be crops or cattle, babies or buildings, FARM & FIRESIDE tells not what ought to be done but what has been done.

Out into the farm homes and fields go the FARM & FIRESIDE reporters, gathering the stories of men and women everywhere who have solved or are solving this or that problem of farm life.

Stories not only of technical facts but of human facts; of discouragements overcome by persistent effort, of obstacles surmounted by ingenuity, of handicaps offset by resourcefulness.

Stories full of "I's" and "You's," as chatty as crossroads gossip, as warm and friendly as a neighbor's greeting, as inspiring as the fact that a man you know has done something you would like to do.

"Precept is slow," said the prophet. "There must be line upon line, precept upon precept."

But example is quick. "I was inspired by his example to go and do likewise," is said somewhere in every great autobiography.

And there is the secret—like all very old and simple ones, too often overlooked.

But from FARM & FIRESIDE'S more than 600,000 homes comes increasing evidence of its power—of that desire to do more and be more which is so valuable to editor and advertiser alike.

BARS CITY FROM GAS CASE.

U. S. Court Denies Right to Intervene in 80-Cent Litigation.

Judge Manton of the United States Circuit Court yesterday denied the plea of Corporation Counsel Burr that the city be permitted to appear as a defendant in the suit of the Consolidated Gas Company to have the eighty-cent gas law declared unconstitutional. The action names as defendants the Public Service Commission of this district, Attorney General Newton, and District Attorney Swann.

In his opinion Judge Manton said that the law seemed to be well settled against the city's claim, that if a stay in taking of testimony in the suit was granted the city would have to give a bond protecting the complainant from loss by the delay, and that the city should not take such a risk. Mr. Burr has a right to appear in the action as the counsel for District Attorney Swann.

DEFENDS FERRY RULE.

Whalen Says Passengers Must Leave Boats to Avoid Delay.

Deputy Commissioner of Plant and Structures John O'Mara, acting chief of the department in the absence of Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, said yesterday that the order for all ferryboat passengers to go ashore at the end of each trip was still effective, despite the promised legal battle against the order by Frederick D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad. Mr. Underwood had himself arrested in Staten Island Saturday to test the regulation.

Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney, who established the rule when he was Commissioner, defended the order, saying:

"To permit passengers to remain in their seats and return to their destination without change I found interfered with operating management. First, an employe had to go around to collect fares and tickets. This led to temptation in two ways. Some passengers tried to beat their way and had to be chased around and cornered. This sometimes led to a fight. The collection of cash fares also was a temptation to the employes, who were continually up on charges.

"Until fares were collected and disputes settled the boats were held in the slips and the oncoming passengers were held at the gates. That is why the rule was promulgated.

"As to Mr. Underwood's charge that women with little children had to leave the boat and lose their seats because, when getting on again, they were elbowed out of the way by stronger persons, I might ask Mr. Underwood about the women and little children who have to wait in the ferry house while those who are comfortably seated on the boats are delaying them."

THE KEYNOTE OF FASHION
STOUT DRESSES

Do the stout women of your town say, "I can't go into a store and buy a good-looking dress that will fit me"? If they do, it isn't because you can't buy them in New York. It's merely because you haven't bought them.

Buy a few PRIMA DONNA Stout Dresses—pay the slight advance over ordinary "extra sizes" that means fit plus flattery—and see how quickly stout trade will commence coming your way.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....5¼ p. c. for the best names
Saturday ....5¼ p. c. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Were Very Quiet.

Trading in gray goods in the local market was at a very low ebb yesterday. First hands were said to have kept out almost entirely, and the business done by second hands did not amount to much. Practically all of it was for August delivery, and it included in the print-cloths 39-inch 68-72s at 22 cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 15 cents. Second-hand sheetings sales included 5-yard goods at 15½ cents and 5.50s at 14¼ cents. Sales of fine yarn goods and specialties were limited also and bare of feature.

Advances for Fall Clothing.

Over $2,000 has been paid by one clothing retailer to clothing manufacturers who asked advances on orders taken early in the season for Fall delivery. He stated that these advances were paid out generally to local manufacturers, who asked 10 per cent. additional. Regarding his future policy with these wholesalers, he stated that if a slump came in the future the manufacturers would be expected to give rebates in view of the fact that they have been paid advances.

Increases for Woolen Fabrics.

Several lines of Spring woolens were opened yesterday, and showed advances over Fall prices ranging well over 40 per cent., with some other cases where the advances were higher than 60 per cent. Parker, Wilder & Co., are selling their well-known ten and a half ounce flannel, No. 7791, for $2.75. The price for Fall was $2.07½. A fancy cassimere opened by another house shows an increase from $2.47½ for Fall to $3.55 for next Spring. Another flannel selling for Fall at $1.87 has been opened at $3.10. A twelve-ounce serge is being sold by one of the leading mills at $6.50.

Ten Per Cent. Spring Woolens.

Through unofficial but authoritative sources it was learned yesterday that the American Woolen Company, the leading factor in the woolen market, will offer only 10 per cent. of its usual Spring production to customers. It was stated that the corporation will be engaged on Fall goods until January, will produce only 10 per cent. of the ordinary quantity of goods manufactured for the Spring, and will then start the following, or 1920 heavyweight, season on time. One of the foremost serge factories is accepting business on Spring lines on a basis of "at value at shipment."

Clothing Shipped on Coal Boat.

The means used to supply the export demand for clothing and other articles of ready-to-wear is cited as good evidence of the extent of this call. An instance was related yesterday where 400 cases of clothing were shipped on a steamer loaded up with coal, because of the shortage of space in regular cargo-carrying vessels. In addition to the demand from regular sources, manufacturers have been called upon to supply goods for four ships which will sail for Rumania and Serbia.

An Angle of the Dye Question.

Textile manufacturers who have been aroused to action on the question of licensing foreign dye imports have raised a new angle on the question. One textile man who favors the tariff rate in distinction to the licensing plan stated that one of his chief reasons was that under a protective rate he would know just what competition he might be expected to meet from foreign dyed fabrics. Under the licensing plan, he explained, it would be possible for the domestic manufacturers of dyes to exact any price that they might desire, as all foreign competition would be removed in snutting out the dyes made abroad.

Burlaps Prices Higher.

With a fairly active demand, limited stocks in hand, and small shipments in prospect as a result of the scarcity of freight space in steamers sailing from Calcutta, the local burlap market opened yesterday in a very firm condition. Sales were hampered by the paucity of cloth, and the business that was done was put through at full prices. For forty-inch lightweight goods the quotations ranged from 15½ to 16 cents, while for heavy burlaps of the same width sellers wanted 17¾ to 18 cents. The Dundee market opened very strong yesterday, after being closed for several days, and reports from Calcutta indicated no cooling down of the feverish conditions that have prevailed there recently.

Popular Price Goods Show Opens.

Between 250 and 396 buyers, from various sections of the United States, Canada, South America, and Mexico attended the Fall exhibition of popular-price merchandise that opened in the Hotel Commodore yesterday and will continue until Friday night. Two hundred lines of goods, the offerings of over ninety exhibitors, were on display, and the buyers who attended the show were said to have placed more orders than had ever been the case before on the opening day. The merchandise on exhibition ranged from hooks and eyes to clothes hampers, and included such things as waists, house dresses, millinery, toys, hardware, baskets, &c. Officials in charge of the show said that it promised to be the most successful one yet held here.

Linen Handkerchiefs "Sky High."

Retail buyers who, among other things, are looking for real linen handkerchiefs here say not only that these goods are scarcer than they have ever seen them before, but that the prices asked for them are "sky high." The lowest price one of the big local jobbers could quote yesterday for men's all linen handkerchiefs was $7 a dozen, while for women's goods of the same character the bottom prices were $3.17½ a dozen for cambric and $3.25 a dozen for sheer stuff. Apropos of the assertion that goods are scarce because some of the handkerchief manufacturers are afraid to cut up many linens at their present prices, it was suggested yesterday that the real reason was that, by holding the goods uncut for a while longer, even higher prices could be got.

Millinery Show Plans Completed.

Twenty of the leading millinery concerns of the country will exhibit their newest models at the "Autumn Promenade" of the fifth semi-annual fashion show, supper and dance that will be given at the Hotel Astor tomorrow night by the Retail Millinery Association of America. Some exhibits of ancient hats also will be made, and among them will be certain ones from local museums that are 3,000 years old. Special models of modern chapeaux from Paris will be shown, too, and these, together with the "up-to-the-minute" American hats, will be worn by models garbed in the newest things in outer clothing and furs. Close to 1,400 retailers, from every State in the Union, will be present. Many well-known men, among them several city officials and their wives, will be among the guests of honor.

FLETCHER TO STAY HERE, MEXICO SAYS

Carranza Organs Warning the People That the International Situation Is Serious.

ANGELES HEADS THE REVOLT

Anti-Carranza Men in Washington Say His Campaign Will Soon Be Heard From.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Mexico, who has been on duty at the State Department for several months, will not return to Mexico City for some time, if at all, according to an apparently inspired statement made recently in the Mexican capital, word of which reached Washington through official channels today.

No confirmation of this statement could be obtained at the State Department. Mr. Fletcher, when asked about the report, said he was acting under orders of the State Department and knew nothing about the time of his return to his post in Mexico. Other State Department officials said Mr. Fletcher would remain here "for the present."

The statement made in Mexico City is to the effect that the American Government requires Mr. Fletcher's presence in Washington in order to keep informed as to Mexican affairs, and particularly points out that no one in Washington is as familiar with conditions in Mexico as Mr. Fletcher.

That the present investigation of the relations between Mexico and the United States will develop important results is generally believed in Mexico. The Carranza organs are printing daily warnings to the Mexican people that the situation is more serious than it has been since the revolutionary period began, and the recent telegram from Mr. Fletcher to the two houses of the Mexican Congress, in which he called upon them to enact laws that would protect the lives and properties of American citizens in Mexico, is being cited "as a warning that cannot be ignored."

Official advices from Mexico reaching Washington today stated that General Felipe Angeles had succeeded in uniting most of the rebel leaders in Mexico under one command and that hereafter the struggle in Mexico against President Carranza would be practically under a single direction. At least twenty of the twenty-five rebel chiefs have agreed, it is reported, to act under the orders of Angeles, who is to be the supreme commander.

Anti-Carrancistas in Washington said today on learning of these reports that this was the real object of Angeles in returning to Mexico last January, and that he was acting in accord with Villa, who would have command of all the rebels in the north during the campaign that has been determined upon.

Angeles went south immediately after the battle of Juarez, when the United States troops intervened and drove out the rebels after they had succeeded in dislodging the Carrancistas. He has devoted all his energies since that time to winning the various rebel leaders to his cause.

It is asserted that Angeles has made no effort to obtain the support of Felix Diaz, but, if the campaign now being inaugurated under a single leadership succeeds in deposing Carranza, the victors are expected to have little difficulty in securing the support of Felix Diaz and his faction. No details of Angeles's plans have been made public, but it was hinted here today that definite news of the rebels' activities was expected before the end of this month.

REPORT SHIPLEY'S RELEASE.

Mexico Papers Say Kidnappers Have Freed American Held for Ransom.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Advices to the State Department today from Mexico City based on publications in Mexican newspapers said Lawrence L. Shipley of Yerrington, Nev., who was kidnapped by bandits near Fresnillo Station, Mexico, on July 19, had been released. There was no indication whether a ransom had been paid. Urgent representations in this case were made to the Mexican Government by the State Department immediately after Shipley was captured.

Other dispatches from the American Embassy at Mexico City today said El Heraldo had published an editorial article on Saturday urging that Mexico develop "a wise policy of friendship for the United States."

Inquiry at the State Department today developed that representations were made to the Mexico Government after Dr. Charles T. Sturgiss of Washington, his wife and the latter's mother, Mrs. W. H. Keenright, had been taken prisoners nearly a year ago by General Rafael Cedillo, Mayor, a friend of the rebel leader Zapata. The Mexican authorities promised to investigate, but so far as is known here none of the bandits has been punished.

ABYSSINIAN HEIR ENDS VISIT HERE

DENIES DINNER SLIGHT

But Democratic Club Official Says House Committee Will Investigate the Incident.

Prince Dedjajmatch, heir to the throne of Abyssinia and head of the Abyssinian mission to this country, sailed yesterday on the Martha Washington. He refused to make a statement regarding the incident on Sunday night, when it was alleged that a dinner in his honor at the National Democratic Club was canceled because some one objected on the ground of the color of the members of the mission. According to persons on the ship, the Prince was disturbed and chagrined over the incident.

H. H. Topakyan, the Persian Counsul General, who sought to give the dinner in honor of the Prince at the Democratic Club, said that he would go to Washington today or tomorrow to take up the question with Administration officials for the purpose of asking for a suitable apology. Mr. Topakyan is a member of the National Democratic Club and also of the Republican Club, which agreed to have the dinner held there after the incident at the Democratic Club, though the affair finally took place at the Ritz-Carlton. Mr. Topakyan said that he had the honor of belonging to both clubs because many years ago, he was, by virtue of his official position, asked to join each of the clubs. He expressed the opinion, however, that perhaps 400 or more who were injured in the riots never reported at hospitals and consequently the total number of injured will never be known officially.

Several thousand negroes, who expected to return to work in the Stock Yards today after nearly a week's absence on account of the riots, must wait until the unrest caused by the disturbances in the district has subsided.

INDICT 17 NEGRO RIOTERS.

Grand Jury Begins Work in Chicago —10,000 on Guard.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Seventeen negroes were charged with rioting and murder in indictments voted today by the special Grand Jury investigating race riots which for five days last week held the south side of Chicago in a reign of terror. The indictments will be returned before Judge Robert E. Crowe in the Criminal Court tomorrow.

While city, county and State authorities combined in seeking causes that led to the rioting in an endeavor to fix responsibility, 6,000 State troops, 3,000 policemen, and 1,000 deputies continued to patrol the negro quarter.

Tonight officials reported the riot zone quiet. Every effort was being made to relieve the suffering of negroes who have been marooned in the area, unable to go to their work. Soup kitchens were opened and guards furnished for negroes who wished to return to work.

Judge Crowe, in charging the jury today, characterized race riot conditions in Chicago as anarchy and exhorted the jury to deal with it as anarchy. He promised speedy trials for all persons indicted.

The police today obtained reports of threatening anonymous letters received by negro families living on the edge of the negro district. The negroes were warned by the letters to move within two days or their homes would be burned and bombed.

The Coroner has fixed the number of dead at thirty-three and the City Health Commissioner has found that 306 people injured in the riots were treated in hospitals. He expressed the opinion, however, that perhaps 400 or more who were injured in the riots never reported at hospitals and consequently the total number of injured will never be known officially.

MORE OF 2D DIVISION HOME.

Four Transports Bring Regular Units Back from France.

With the docking yesterday of the transports Santa Paula, Rijndam, Virginian, and Julia Luckenback, more than eleven thousand soldiers of the 2d Division arrived to join their comrades already in camp waiting for the day when they will parade in this city, as announced on Sunday by the War Department. More than 23,000 of the famous unit are back in the United States and the rest of those scheduled to return at this time are on the high seas.

Included in yesterday's arrivals was the 23d Infantry, which fought side by side with the 5th and 6th Marines during the Château-Thierry and Belleau Woods engagements. The regiment, which numbered 118 officers and 3,049 enlisted men, returned on the Virginian. Several hundred friends and relatives of the regiment, which was recruited in Syracuse, went down the bay as guests of the Mayor's Committee to greet the men. The regiment boasts of commendations from both Marshal Foch and Marshal Petain, the latter of whom wrote to the commander of the 23d as follows:

"The Twenty-third American Infantry, then commanded by Colonel Malone, engaged unexpectedly in the offensive of July 18, 1918, in the middle of the night on a terrain which was unknown and very difficult, during two days, without allowing themselves to stop owing to fatigue and the difficulty of obtaining water, and showed remarkable ardor and tenacity, driving back the enemy eleven kilometers and capturing 2,700 prisoners, twelve cannon, and several hundred machine guns."

Part of the 6th Marines returned on the Rijndam, under command of Major W. E. Shearer of Indianapolis. Almost all of his men had been decorated or cited, he said. The 15th Field Artillery was among those on the Julia Luckenback.

Colombia Treaty Goes Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The $25,000,000 Colombian treaty, which was to have been considered by the Senate today in open session, went over until tomorrow at the request of Senators who were unable to attend today's session.

LOCK OUT 13,000 WORKERS.

Silk Mill Employes Fail to Force 8-Hour Day by Arriving Late.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 4.—Approximately 13,000 silk workers marched to the doors of the silk factories where they are employed at 8 o'clock this morning, and found themselves locked out.

The usual time for their arrival has been 7:20 o'clock, but they sought by arriving late in a body today to force the silk manufacturers to yield to their demand for a forty-four hour week, instead of waiting until Oct. 1, or the formal declaration of peace by the President, on either of which dates the manufacturers had agreed to put in effect the short week.

About 14,000 other silk workers went to work at the usual time, and were employed through the day. Of the 13,000 who failed to go to work at the usual time, about 2,000 are members of the United Textile Workers, the remainder being unorganized or belonging to radical organizations. Their action was not supported by the officials of the United Textile Workers.

Albert Weyman, Secretary of the Paterson Manufacturers' Association, issued a statement, saying that work would begin at the usual hour today, and that many of those locked out this morning would be back at work.

WANT NEWBURGER IN TIGER PRIMARY

Supporters Will Urge Him to Fight Untermyer for Democratic Nomination.

CONFIDENT HE CAN WIN

FRIENDS OF OPPONENT BUSY

Assert Career of Young Lawyer Justifies His Selection for the Bench.

With the intention of urging him to make a contest for the Supreme Court Justiceship nomination in the Democratic primaries, ex-Justice Francis M. Scott, chairman of the committee representing the Bar Associations of the city, will go to Point Bluff, N. Y., in a day or two and urge Justice Joseph E. Newburger to make a contest for the Supreme Court Justiceship nomination in the Democratic primaries. Justice Newburger announced Sunday that he would run as an independent and on the Republican ticket, following the refusal of the Tammany Hall Executive Committee to redesignate him, but that he would stay out of the Democratic primaries.

The Bar Association's committee has already filed petitions with the Board of Elections containing more than 2,000 signatures, putting Justice Newburger in the race for the Democratic nomination, and will file a supplementary petition today with at least 2,000 additional signatures. These petitions are in addition to others which have been filed by the committee and the Republican county organization, designating him as the candidate for the Republican nomination.

Members of the Bar Association's committee are convinced that Justice Newburger will win the Democratic nomination if he permits his name to go before the voters. They have received assurances from many members of Tammany Hall that they will support him in preference to Irwin Untermyer, the candidate selected by Leader Charles F. Murphy.

Disputes Age of Justice.

Although Justice Newburger said in his statement Sunday that he was born in 1853, and could serve four years of another term before reaching the age limit, his opponents yesterday insisted that he was older. Charles S. Guggenheimer of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, of which Irwin Untermyer is a member, said:

"The statement that Justice Newburger, if elected, would be permitted to serve four years of the fourteen-year term for which the election is to be held, is surprising to those who know the facts, unless one's age becomes a stationary factor as he approaches the age limit of 70 years, wisely fixed by our Constitution. When the time comes, if that fact becomes material, the records will be produced."

Mr. Guggenheimer said Justice Newburger cited only two cases in the history of the State of Judges 68 years old being re-elected. Both of these, he said, occurred before the present law was passed, which permits them to be "practically pensioned for life as official referee at $10,000 a year and $1,500 additional," besides being given the privilege of resuming the practice of law.

Mr. Untermyer's friends have taken exception to statements that he has not had a sufficiently prominent record at the bar to entitle him to the nomination. At the candidate's law office, the following statement was issued:

Mr. Irwin Untermyer appeared in 1909 as associate counsel and, with his father, took an active part in the defense of Augusta Crisanti, an Italian woman, charged with murder in the first degree. The trial resulted in the acquittal of the defendant on the ground of self-defense. His conduct of the case was commended at that time in a leading editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES. He actively assisted in the conduct of the litigation in the Court of Common Pleas of Pennsylvania between Lydia Eleanor Fitzgerald, now the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, and her former husband, involving important financial interests and many questions of matrimonial law, and involving, among other things, the effect in this country of a Parliamentary divorce. The trial court decided all the issues in favor of Mrs. Fitzgerald. Its decision was affirmed in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and subsequently by the Supreme Court of the United States.

In the suit brought by the Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburgh, in the Circuit Court of the United States, involving the reorganization of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal system, he supplied the material out of which the suit was ultimately decided in favor of the plaintiff.

In the leading case of Poel & Arnold against the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company he reversed, in the Court of Appeals of the State, the adverse decision of the Appellate Division.

He was actively connected as one of the counsel for the plaintiff in the litigation between the Kansas City Southern Railway and the Interstate Commerce Commission, decided several years ago by the Supreme Court of the United States—a case which aroused great professional interest at the time.

In the case of the Canadian Agency Association, with several other banking institutions, against the Assets Realization Company he established the principle announced by the Appellate Division, for the first time maintained and now followed by all our courts, that even an innocent misrepresentation of fact justified revision of a contract of sale. He was actively concerned as counsel in the litigation which attended the reorganization of the Rock Island Railway system.

The several briefs on behalf of Mr. Hearst in the litigation between Mr. Hearst and The Associated Press in the State courts were written by him, and he was largely concerned in preparing the arguments in the important controversy as to the right of property in news in the Federal court in all of its various stages, ending in the Supreme Court of the United States.

He also successfully argued the International Cotton Mills case before the Appellate Division of this department and secured its affirmance in the Court of Appeals.

He represented Mrs. Scofield in litigation which attracted considerable attention, in which her grandson sought an annulment of her marriage to Charles W. Scofield. He successfully resisted the attack on the validity of the marriage, and the decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division, and the appeal taken from that decision was, on his motion, dismissed by the Court of Appeals.

In 1918 he sustained, after oral argument in the Appellate Division, a judgment against George J. Gould for over $130,000 by the unanimous decision of that court. More recently he has represented the Jewel Tea Company in the appraisal of its property at Hoboken, taken in proceedings by the Government during the war and involving important rights of property.

He has at various times either conducted or been actively connected with a vast amount of other litigation, among others the following: Tack vs. Fitzsimmons, in the Supreme Court, where the principles laid down by the court were affirmed by the Appellate Division of this department and by the Court of Appeals; Jackson vs. Hooper, the Encyclopaedia Brittanica litigation, decided in the Supreme Court of this State; Frank vs. The Union Pacific and St. Joe in the District Court of the United States; Parsan & Gaynor vs. The New York Breweries Company, both of which were argued by him in the Appellate Division of this department; Herrman vs. The Empire Realty Company; Matter of Lasendy; and Matter of Turner, decided by the Court of Appeals.

Although the refusal of Tammany to renominate Justice Newburger has started a lively fight between the Democratic and Republican organizations, the parties have agreed to work harmoniously in selecting candidates for Municipal Court Judge, Aldermen, and Assembly in strong Socialist districts.

Two University Professors Shot by California Student

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 4.—J. H. Hildebrand and Edmund O'Neill, both members of the University of California Faculty, were shot and seriously wounded today by Roger Sprague, a graduate of the university, who alleged they had prevented him from obtaining a position. Professors Hildebrand and O'Neill are of the chemistry department and Sprague accused them of opposing his application for appointment as instructor in chemistry.

Professor Hildebrand was hit over the right eye and his injury is serious. Professor O'Neill received a less serious scalp wound. Sprague also fired at Miss May Cheney, appointment secretary of the university, the bullet passing through her hair.

Then he was overpowered and taken to the Berkeley Police Station, where it was announced that an insanity charge would be placed against him.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN IN STATE BEGIN WORK

CONFERENCES ARE HELD

Men Who Are Leaders in the Party Councils Meet with Them for Exchange of Opinions.

This State has won second honors in the organization of the Republican women for the 1920 campaign. Indiana, the home of Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, has received the blue ribbon for the thoroughness of its organization of the Republican women. But then Indiana was earlier in the field than was this State.

The organization work is being done by a special committee appointed by Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn, which is working in close co-operation with similar committees in other States under the supervision of the Republican Women's National Executive Committee, of which Mrs. Medill McCormick is Chairman. Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore of Yonkers is Chairman of the special committee doing the work in this State.

The women meet in groups, representing a number of counties in some city central to these. The men in positions of leadership in the Republican organization in the counties, the State Senators and Assemblymen, as well as the county chairmen and the members representing the counties on the Republican State Committee, attend these conferences so that there can be an exchange of opinion and a full and free discussion at which both the men's and women's viewpoints can be considered. Talks of candidates or discussion of factional fights are absolutely taboo. In each county the women, who are being organized on the election district basis, are instructed to work with the men's organizations in their respective localities and be as nearly "regular" as it is possible for a woman to be in politics.

About half a dozen conferences representing counties in the western and central part of the State and the Hudson River counties have already been held. The Central New York group conference was held in Syracuse last week, and developed somewhat of a fight on the wet and dry question.

The next conference will be held at Binghampton tomorrow. This will be attended by representatives of some 12 counties in the Southern Tier. A week from today a meeting to launch the women's Republican organizations in Jefferson, St. Lawrence, and Lewis Counties will be held at Watertown. The following day Saratoga will be the scene of a similar conference of women from Albany, Rensselaer, Schenectady, Herkimer, Schoharie, Saratoga, and Washington Counties, while on Thursday, Aug. 14, Republican women from Essex, Warren, Clinton, and Franklin Counties will meet the leaders of the men's organizations in those counties at Plattsburg to discuss ways and means for organizing the Republican women of those localities.

HENDERSON PREDICTS DESPAIR IN EUROPE

British Labor Leader Tells Socialists That a "Terrible Spasm" Is Coming Before Winter.

LUCERNE, Aug. 3.—Before Winter sets in there will be "a terrible spasm of rage and despair among the peoples of Europe, in which the final remains of civilization may be annihilated," it was predicted by Arthur Henderson, the British labor leader, at the opening session of the International Socialist Conference here yesterday.

The remarks of Mr. Henderson, who was the principal British labor leader present, followed those of Otto Wells of the majority element of the German Socialists, who declared that the German workingmen expected from the Socialists the creation of a real League of Nations. He characterized the League organized in Paris, without Germany and Russia as members, as a "mere pleasantry."

In alluding to the Peace Treaty in his address, Mr. Henderson said that the principal points of it ought to be subjected to immediate and thorough revision.

Condemnation of support of Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government at Omsk, by the Entente nations, was expressed by James Ramsay Macdonald of the British delegation and Marcel Cachin, the French Socialist leader. Both the speakers demanded that an energetic attitude be adopted by the Socialists toward these nations, particularly on this ground.

Emil Vandervelde, the Belgian Socialist, gave his opinion that it would be impossible to reconstitute the International Socialist organization until the queston of war responsibilities was settled. He further said that in his view it would be impossible to merge the Second and Third Internationalist organisations, for the reason that while the Second aimed at a revolution by the majority element among the peoples in conformity with democratic principles, the Third was for immediate revolution by the minority.

FRENCH HOLD WAR FEAST.

Nation Expresses Gratitude—Recovered Provinces Take Part.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—A "Feast of National Gratitude" was held yesterday throughout France and in the recovered provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. In the presence of great crowds messages from President Poincaré, Premier Clemenceau, and Marshal Foch were read. The exercises were of a religious character.

In numerous cities school children placed wreaths on the graves of the soldiers of France and her allies who had lost their lives in the war, and every homage was paid to the men who had fought to save the nation.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN IN CONEY MURDER

Max Baron, Who Was with Furrier at Time of Shooting, Not Yet Found.

The police and the prosecuting officers of Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Hoboken were working yesterday in the closest co-operation in the endeavor to clear up the shooting of Joseph Cohen, the furrier, at Coney Island; Robert Shore in Hoboken, and "Tanner" Smith and John Spanish in this borough. By their investigations they hope to work out any possible connection between some of the shootings and to determine the reason for the sudden outbreak of gang hostilities after almost ten years of "peace" among gang leaders.

District Attorney Lewis and his assistant, Reuben Wilson, spent most of the day at Coney Island questioning possible witnesses. Mr. Lewis said last night that while he did not believe that Cohen had been invited to Coney by a woman, he did think that there was a woman involved in the shooting. He had not, however, given up entirely the theory that the killing came because of troubles in the furrier's business.

Among those who were questioned was Harry Korman, who was with Cohen and who was wounded. He admitted that there was a woman in the case, but was emphatic in saying that Cohen had not been invited to Coney by her as far as he knew, but indicated that the whole affair was the outcome of a row in a restaurant earlier in the day.

After hearing this statement Mr. Lewis interviewed the proprietor of the restaurant. He also questioned Joseph Axel and Isador Bloom, proprietors of another restaurant near the scene of the shooting. They said the shooting was done by a man who appeared with another man who is known by the name of "Sugar."

Seek Cause of Visit.

In the meantime the police say that they will have to clear up the circumstances surrounding the coming to Coney Island of Cohen and Korman and Max Baron, who was with them, and get at the cause of the row that is reported to have taken place just before the furrier was killed, before they can fix definitely upon the motive that led to the shooting on the crowded Coney Island street.

Baron was not located by the police yesterday. They learned that he went to his home, 153 Stanton Street, after the shooting and told his wife that there had been trouble at Coney Island, and that while he had had nothing to do with it it was just as well that he drop out of sight for a while.

Early in the day the authorities inclined to the belief that the killing grew out of business troubles, and they did not change their view until there came the story of a woman in the case. Assistant District Attorney Wilson said that the police knew the identity of the woman and expected to arrest her soon.

Cohen, according to his brother Emanuel, was worth $125,000. For a long time, he said, his brother had been the victim of men who threatened to make trouble with his workers unless he gave them money. Often, he said, his brother paid. Emanuel told of the woman for whom the police are looking.

Records filed in the clerk's office in the Court of General Sessions upon which the police place great stress show that a Max Baron, 27 years old, of 495 East 173d Street, the Bronx, was indicted on May 1, charged with attempted extortion. He was arraigned and pleaded guilty before Judge Otto A. Rosalsky May 27 and was remanded for sentence the following week. On June 6 Baron withdrew his plea of guilty and entered one of not guilty. As a result he was released on $2,500 bail, which he furnished through the National Surety Company. The complainant was Joseph Cohen, a furrier of 693 Broadway.

According to the complaint Cohen charged that on April 18, 1919, while a furriers' strike was in progress, Baron obtained $200 from him by posing as a representative of the Furriers' Union. The complaint states Baron promised that no harm would come to any of Cohen's employes during the strike. The $200 was paid in marked bills in the presence of Detective Botte of the Mercer Street Station, in Cohen's office, the record shows.

"Link" Mitchell Arrested.

At the request of the Hudson County authorities Patrick, known as "Link," Mitchell, was arrested in the Homicide Bureau of District Attorney Swann's office and taken to Police Headquarters to await the arrival of a New Jersey warrant charging him with the killing of Shore in Hoboken on Thursday night and the wounding of George Lewis at the same time. Chief of Police Patrick Hayes of Hoboken told Assistant District Attorney John F. Joyce that the warrant would be brought to this city immediately, and that extradition proceedings would then be started to bring Mitchell to Hoboken.

Mitchell was arrested after he appeared before Judge William H. Wadhams in General Sessions for trial on an indictment charging him with grand larceny in connection with the $38,000 worth of Liberty bonds which were found secreted in a chimney on the lower east side. Mitchell went to the Criminal Court Building in company with his lawyer, Charles H. McCarty. When he answered for trial Mr. Joyce asked that the trial be adjourned until Thursday, which Judge Wadhams granted.

The police of Hoboken are said to have positive evidence that "Link" Mitchell was in Hoboken on the night that Shore was killed. Mitchell told the Assistant District Attorney that on the night that Shore was killed he was at the home of "Tanner" Smith, 337 West Fourteenth Street, until after 11 o'clock, and he said his statement would be corroborated by Smith's sisters Nellie and Lizzie, and Smith's brother Patrick, and the latter's mother. Patrick Smith visited Mr. Joyce yesterday.

Mrs. Shore Questioned.

Grace Middleton Shore, who married Shore shortly before he was killed, was brought to this city by the Hoboken police in order that she might attend the funeral of Shore. She went to her late husband's home at 142 Tenth Avenue, and later she was interviewed by Mr. Joyce. She is being held in Hoboken as a material witness in the shooting of Shore. Today, it was said, she will be taken before a Judge in General Sessions and held as a material witness in the case of "Tanner" Smith.

When Mrs. Shore was brought before Recorder Carsten in Hoboken, Police Captain Garrick said that there was no charge against her, but that the New York police had asked that she be held. The Recorder held her in $500 bail for appearance on Monday. Three men arrested after the killing by the Hoboken police on suspicion of knowing something about it were discharged yesterday. Joseph McDonnell, who was also taken into custody on Thursday night, was held on a minor charge until tomorrow.

McDonnell had a room at 100 Washington Street, and the police say they had found a witness who said that McDonnell ran into the house shortly after the shooting, hastily pulling off his clothing and got into bed. This witness is alleged to have said that McDonnell confided to him that a New York gang was after him because he had reported one of them.

Upon the recommendation of the District Attorney's office Herman Kolman of 214 East Eighty-second Street and William Lustig of 206 East Eighteenth Street, who were arrested in connection with the death of John Wholler, who was also known as "John Spanish," were discharged in the Essex Market Court. They had been held on suspicion of homicide on affidavits made by detectives working on the case. "John Spanish" was shot and killed on Tuesday afternoon on Second Avenue, near First Street.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A Queenstown dispatch says a sensation was caused at Queenstown yesterday morning, especially in shipping circles, by the display from the foremast head of the American steamer Ashbourne of the Sinn Fein Republican flag as that vessel was being towed to a local dock for repairs to her machinery. The Ashbourne was from New York en route to Copenhagen with a general cargo, but owing to engine trouble and shortness of coal she was obliged to bear up for Queenstown.

The colors looked somewhat incongruous as the vessel was assisted by two naval tugs flying Admiralty flags, while from the steamer's mainmast the Stars and Stripes were flown.

The display of the green, white, and yellow colors on the Ashbourne was the cause of gratification to the Sinn Feiners, who waved handkerchiefs to the crew as the steamer was towed past Queenstown.

GIRL, 13, CONFESSES SHE POISONED BABY

Gave Drug to Infant, She Says, Thinking Aged Nurse Would Be Blamed.

QUARRELED WITH WOMAN

Also Put Some of the Stuff in the Teapot, Hoping She Would Swallow It.

Frances Sulinski, 13 years old, of 230 Georgia Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday confessed to Detective Dougherty that she gave poison to Solomon Kramer, the 14-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kramer of 580 Sheffield Avenue, with the intention of killing the child.

The confession was made in the rooms of the Children's Society, in Schermerhorn Street, where the girl has been since her arrest Friday. After maintaining her innocence for three days, she weakened when the detective picked up a teapot used by Brandel Nussbaum, the 70-year-old nurse of the dead child, and asked, "Why did you put some stuff in here?"

"I did it hoping the old woman would drink it," replied the girl. "I poisoned the baby in the hope that she would be blamed for it. The old woman and I had had several fights. She abused me, called me names, and beat me. Mrs. Kramer warned me about the poison and told me to be careful of it. When she said that, I thought it would be a good way to get even with the nurse.

"Thursday afternoon Mrs. Kramer told Brandel and me that she was going out. I went upstairs and got the baby. He was asleep. I brought him downstairs, and, after getting the poison, I said, 'Here, take some of this cough medicine.' When the baby screamed I knew I had done wrong. I ran out of the room and met Mrs. Kramer in the yard. She ran into the house and cried out that her child had been poisoned. I thought Brandel would be blamed. When I saw that she wasn't, I put some of the stuff in the teapot that Brandel used."

After her confession the girl was arraigned in the Children's Court before Justice Cornelius F. Collins, who remanded her to the care of the Children's Society, pending further investigation. Later she repeated her confession to Assistant District Attorney Albert Conway before a stenographer. As she is more than 12 years old, she could legally be tried for first-degree murder.

The girl had been employed at the Kramer home only a week. She told Mrs. Kramer that her father, John Sulinski, a Park Department employe, had abused her and she had to leave home. Shortly after she went to work Mrs. Kramer missed small sums of money. She questioned the nurse and the girl, and each accused the other. This led up to quarrels, in which the girl is said to have beaten the old woman.

John Sulinski, her father, said Frances was a good girl until recently, when she began to steal. He beat her when she stole $20 from him, and she left home. The girl is tall for her years, and has more than average intelligence.

GOMPERS REPUDIATES BERNE LABOR PROGRAM

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—A resolution offering to join in the International Labor Conference to be held at Washington in October, if trade union representatives of all countries, without exception, were invited, was submitted today to the International Trades Union Federation, in session here, by a committee appointed for that purpose.

The resolution set forth that delegates sent by the federation would be required to try to secure the adoption of its program as the labor charter of the world.

The debate on the resolution was lengthy, English, French, Swiss and other delegates participating in it, in addition to Mr. Gompers. The resolution expressed regret that the labor section of the Peace Treaty corresponded hardly at any point with the Berne program, but admitted that it might become the basis of a league which would not be merely a league of Governments but a league of peoples.

Therefore, it declared, the Congress was ready to co-operate with the Washington conference on the conditions announced and on the condition that delegates appointed by national centres affiliated with the International Federation of Trades Unions should be recognized as representatives of the labor movement. Should these conditions not be accepted, it said, the national centres represented at this Congress would have to abstain from participation at Washington.

It was here that Mr. Gompers repudiated the Berne program, but declared that American labor would take part in the Washington conference. The English delegates took a similar view, although they sympathised entirely with all the other points of the resolution.

M. Jouhaux, the French delegate, said he thought the Washington conference program contained the basis for a real league of peoples, but if the labor charter of the Peace Treaty were not ratified by representatives of the labor of all nations it would be impossible for those who signed it to carry it out.

Samuel Gompers, head of the American delegation, speaking on the resolution, repudiated the Berne program, and declared that American labor would not be bound by it. Mr. Gompers said that no matter what the Amsterdam conference decided, American labor would participate in the conference to be held in Washington.

The Congress passed three resolutions. The first demands that the blockade against Russia be lifted, the second calls for the socialization of labor, and the third gives a viewpoint with reference to the League of Nations.

In the discussion Carl Rudolph Legien, President of the German Federation of Trades Unions, protested against Russia, Germany and Austria being excluded from the Washington convention, when all the South American republics would be represented, "in addition to Liberia, and Japan, with its fourteen hour working day for children."

Terra Made Foreign Minister.

MONTEVIDEO, Aug. 4.—Gabriel Terra, former Minister of Public Instruction, Labor and Industry, has been named Foreign Minister of Uruguay.

Gabriel Terra became a member of the Cabinet of President Williman in 1907, holding the portfolio of Public Instruction, Labor and Industry. In 1915 he represented Uruguay at the Pan American financial congress which was held at Washington. More recently he was Uruguayan Minister at Rome and last March it was reported he had been recalled and assigned to the Uruguayan Legation at Buenos Aires. The incumbent in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Uruguay has been Daniel Munez.

WORKMAN'S RICHES REVEAL GOLD THEFT

ACCUSED OF BUYING METAL

The facts concerning the theft of nearly $100,000 worth of refined gold from the smelting plant of the Balbach Smelting and Refining Company at Newark, of which former Corporation Counsel Archibald R. Watson is President, are set forth in the papers submitted yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Luce when he granted an attachment for $10,714 against the property of Louis F. Lolhle, a metal dealer of Newark, who is alleged to have been a party to a conspiracy resulting in the theft. The plaintiff is Walter C. Sheppard of Newark, who sues for one-seventh of the claim of the smelting company against Lolhle. The smelting company has obtained an injunction in the Federal Court restraining the officials of the Assay Office in Wall Street from making payments to Lolhle for any of the alleged stolen gold.

An affidavit by Mr. Watson states that his company refines lead and copper bullion and extracts gold 99 per cent. fine. It is alleged that Clarence H. Sparrow, formerly a foreman for the smelting company, stole the gold between Sept. 1 last and June 26, when he was dismissed, and delivered it to Lolhle for disposition, who received it knowing it was stolen. Mr. Watson stated that an inventory of the smelting company's gold to April 1 last shows the theft of 3,781 ounces at $20.67 an ounce, a total of $78,126, and for the period to the defendant's discharge on June 26 there was a substantial loss which has not yet been checked up. Mr. Watson said that Sparrow, who has been arrested in Newark, confessed that Lolhle got the stolen gold under an agreement by which they were to divide the proceeds equally.

Mr. Watson stated that when Lolhle received the stolen gold bars from Sparrow he took them to a welding shop on Frelinghuysen Avenue, Newark, where they were melted and inferior metals added, which reduced the refined purity to 98 per cent. and was for the purpose of concealing the fact that the gold came from the Balbach refinery.

Frank R. Smith, a detective for the refinery, made an affidavit that Sparrow was employed first as foreman at $85 a month, but was always borrowing from his fellow employes, being unable to complete payments for Liberty bonds. By Dec. 1 last he became prosperous, bought a house at Irvington, N. J., and two automobiles, and kept a chauffeur at $40 a week. He had himself put on night duty on Oct. 1 last and continued on such duty at $137.50 a month salary until discharged. The detective said that Lolhle, who is a dealer in old metals at 207 Market Street, Newark, and lives at 406 Sandford Street, has served a prison sentence.

The detective found that between Feb. 21 and April 22 last Sparrow deposited $7,146 in the Irvington Bank in his own name and $5,200 under the name of the Sparrow Investment Company. Between September and May it is alleged that Lolhle deposited at the Assay Office gold valued at $95,176.

BRITISH HOUSES WILL THANK ALL WHO FOUGHT

Resolutions to be Moved Tomorrow—King's Message Will Propose Grants to Leaders.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Premier Lloyd George will move in the House of Commons on Wednesday resolutions of thanks to the navy, army, the air force, the Dominions, India, and all contributors to victory and to the dead heroes. The resolution dealing with the navy provides:

"That the thanks of this House be given the officers, petty officers, and men of the navy and royal marines for the sleepless watch overseas, and the courage, resource, and devotion with which during four years of constant peril they maintained the blockade of the enemy's coast, convoyed armies from most distant lands, and defended the commerce of the civilized world against the craft and subtlety of a ruthless foe."

The resolution to the officers and men of the army expresses thanks "for the matchless valor and endurance with which, amid circumstances of unexampled hardship, they sustained the shock of war in many climes; for the good humor, clemency and patience of their bearing and the undaunted spirit which carried them through four years of strenuous toil to complete and splendid victory."

Similar, though briefer, resolutions thank the Air Force and the Colonial and Indian Forces, and the women of the medical and other auxiliary services for "devotion and duties faithfully and bravely discharged," the mercantile marine "for fine, fearless seamanship, whereby our people were preserved from want and our cause from disaster."

A seventh resolution provides "that this House doth acknowledge with deep submission and reverence the heroism of those who have fallen in the service of their country and tenders its sympathy to their relatives in the hour of their sorrow and their pride."

The Premier will also move a resolution which reads:

"This House records its profound sense of admiration and gratitude for the supreme services rendered the British nation by Field Marshal Foch, Marshal of France, as Generalissimo of the allied armies, in which great position he displayed military genius worthy of the foremost captains in history."

Earl Curzon will present identical resolutions in the House of Lords.

The proposals for grants to victorious leaders of the British armies will be presented to the Premier tomorrow in the form of a message from the King.

REVOLT IN HONDURAS.

Three Departments and 3 Towns Break Away from Government.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Aug. 3.—The Departments of Gracias, Comayagua, and Choluteca, and the towns of Ocotepeque, Santa Rosa, and Yuscaran, in Honduras, were reported today in dispatches published here to have taken up arms against the Government of President Bertrand in the revolutionary movement headed by General Lopez Gutierrez.

The city of Intibuca was said to have declared Dr. Bertrand an outlaw.

NEW STRIKE THREAT BY B. R. T. WORKERS

Union Committee Presents Demands and Asks for Reply by 6 o'Clock This Afternoon.

COMPANY OFFICIALS MEET

Receiver Garrison, Who Is Away on Vacation, Sends Word That He Will Return Here at Once.

A Committee of Ten of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's unionized workers yesterday presented their demands, declaring that a reply to them would be expected from Receiver Lindley M. Garrison by 6 o'clock this afternoon. In reply to word from the company's office here, Receiver Garrison, who is on an automobile trip in the White Mountains, said that he would return to the city at once to take charge of the situation.

The committeemen, upon leaving the railroad offices, said that the union men would stand for no delay in the negotiations, and that unless the union was recognized by the company a strike would be called, possibly for tomorrow morning. The unionized employes will meet tonight at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum to hear the report of their committee.

The company began preparations to meet the threatened strike at a conference yesterday, attended by Frederick P. Royce, general manager for the receiver; Colonel T. S. Williams, and other officials of the road. In discussing the situation, the officials seemed to be of the belief that Receiver Garrison would not recede from the position he took last Spring, when he declared that he would treat with any committee of the employes, but not with representatives of the union or other "outsiders."

If Mr. Garrison refuses the demands of the union today, the company will appeal to the Police Department for adequate protection for those of its employes who remain at work in the event of a strike and for others who take the places of the strikers. The union leaders say that 65 per cent. of the employes are unionized. Officials of the company, however, say that more than half the men have refused to join the union—the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes—and that with this force, augmented by recruits, it would be able to give the public a fair service.

Many employes on the cars who talked of the trouble did not seem to think that the union would be able to carry out a threat to completely tie up the system. Most of the older employes seemed cold toward the strike talk, as was the case during the agitation in March and April last, when a walkout was threatened. These workers appeared to be seriously considering the possible loss of future pensions and privileges now enjoyed should they join in a strike which failed.

The officials of the road were in conference when the committee from the union, headed by Edward Smith, visited the company's offices. The committee presented a letter addressed to Receiver Garrison containing the demands approved at a meeting of the men on Friday night. The demands were as follows:

"The reinstatement of all employes heretofore discharged for union activities; recognition of the union to which the men belong; an increase of wages to 75 cents an hour for all trainmen and a proportionate increase for all other employes, including women; an eight-hour working day."

The committee said that the principal demand was for recognition of the union. This gave the impression that if the union was recognized the other demands would be greatly modified.

It is expected that Mr. Garrison will be at the office of the company this morning. He was reached by telegraph in New Hampshire, where he has been on an automobile trip, by General Manager Royce yesterday afternoon, and sent word that he would return to the city at once.

PERSHING REVISITS ST. MIHIEL ON TOUR

Bids Farewell to the Rhine—American Headquarters to be Moved to Coblenz.

COBLENZ, Aug. 3, (Associated Press.)—From within the ancient walls built by the Romans around the village of Andernach, General John J. Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, had his last glimpse of the Rhine late Saturday, just before leaving the American area in Germany for the battlefields where the General and his party are to spend ten days inspecting the ground where the United States troops did their part in bringing the world war to a conclusion.

This is to be General Pershing's last trip over the battlefield before starting for the United States to make his final report to Secretary Baker on America's war achievements.

The tour today took the party to the St. Mihiel sector, where the First Army launched its initial attack. Thence on Monday and Tuesday it will go through the Meuse Valley and the Argonne Forest and through Champagne, Chateau-Thierry, and the Vesle River region, and northward to Cantigny and the British-Belgian front.

General Pershing is planning to visit every battlefield where American divisions fought. The party travels by special train at night and rides over the battlefields in automobiles during the day.

The American Commander in Chief spent most of Saturday with the 1st Division, holding the bridgehead proper. He then crossed the Rhine at Andernach, on an old German ferry, and attended an athletic meet of the 3d Division.

Just previous to saying good-bye to Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Howze, Commander of the 3d Division, who is to return to America shortly, General Pershing decorated the colors of the Tenth, Eighteenth, and Seventy-seventh Field Artillery with war crosses. The ceremony was witnessed by more than 30,000 members of the 3d Division, who are soon to sail for the United States.

Coblenz will become the headquarters of the American forces in Europe when American Grand Headquarters in Paris are closed about Aug. 20. Antwerp will be the base port for the American contingent that is to remain on the Rhine indefinitely.

General Pershing said that he intended to sail from Brest about Sept. 1. It was said to be probable that the composite regiment of picked men which marched in the Paris and London Victory parades would sail with the American Commander-in-Chief.

The French have virtually completed plans to take over the districts to be evacuated by the homeward-bound American units.

First Division units, according to the present schedule, will begin sailing from Brest the last week in August. Officers said that they expected the entire division to arrive in the United States just before General Pershing reaches there.

Earldoms for Haig and Beatty; Lloyd George Declines Honors

LONDON, Aug. 4.—High titles and money grants will be given by Great Britain to her victorious generals and admirals, according to time-honored custom.

The vote of thanks to the victors will be presented in the House of Commons Wednesday, according to present plans. The name of Marshal Foch will be included.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig and Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty, as expected, will be made Earls and each will receive a grant of £100,000. Field Marshal Viscount French of Ypres and Admiral Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa will receive grants of £50,000 each.

A number of other commanding officers will get money grants, making the amount for all £600,000.

Premier Lloyd George's name was proposed today for some honor by Sir James F. Remnant in the House of Commons, but Andrew Bonar Law, the Government leader, replied that he had mentioned the matter to the Premier, who said he would not for a minute agree to it.

BATTLE WITH LIONS ON STEAMSHIP DECK

VESSEL SUNK BY A STORM

Picked Up After Two Days by Liner with Menagerie Loose on Board.

How an ocean trip which had been taken for rest ended in a series of thrilling experiences was told yesterday by Mrs. Maude A. Hayes, wife of Scott Hayes, a son of former President Hayes and an officer of the New York Air Brake Company, who returned home on the Grace liner Santa Luisa. Both said they would be satisfied to remain in the quiet of their home at Croton-on-the-Hudson for some time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, with their children, left New York May 20, bound for South America. On June 7, off Santa Rosa, on the coast of Peru, the ship went aground, Mrs. Hayes said, and later a heavy storm came up, wrecking the vessel. The crew became panic-stricken and the officers had to hold them off with pistols until the passengers entered the life boats.

"A heavy sea was running, some of the waves being at least thirty feet high," Mrs. Hayes said. "The steamship sank while we were still in sight. We rowed about for two days before we were rescued by the Montaro."

Mrs. Hayes said that once aboard, her husband, children, and herself believed their troubles were over. This feeling was shortlived. On the Montaro was a circus with a menagerie. The doors of the animals' cages were broken open during a continuation of the storm which had wrecked the other vessel. Among the animals released were several lions and tigers, who prowled at will on the deck while the crew and passengers, from hiding places, tried to kill them or drive them overboard. The battle lasted an entire day, according to Mrs. Hayes, before the carnivora were slain or recaptured.

Mrs. Hayes brought back with her several hundred live Peruvian and Brazilian birds to take to her home.

Other passengers on the Santa Luisa told of a heavy storm which struck Valparaiso, Chile, July 18, killing more than 300 persons and injuring as many more. Captain W. T. Crossley said the day after the storm started it raged so furiously that he had to steam to sea to prevent his ship being driven ashore. When he returned, four days later, he found that ten ships, including several interned German vessels, had been wrecked.

Frederick A. Claude, a coal operator of Chile, who arrived with his family on a visit, said that during the storm several trees, from fifteen to eighteen feet in diameter on his estate, were uprooted and tossed about like reeds.

Other passengers on the Santa Luisa included William H. Holloway, a grandson of W. R. Grace, and Spruil Braden, a copper mine owner of Chile.

SAYS BRITAIN COURTS RUIN.

Government Waste Will Bring Disaster, Declares Daily Mail Writer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Daily Mail publishes an article by Lovat Fraser condemning the Government's extravagance. He says:

"The Ministers fling the nation's money about broadcast. They acquired the spending habit during the war and cannot drop it. The shadow of irreparable financial disaster lies over these islands, but no one big act of retrenchment stands to the credit of the Ministry since the armistice. On the contrary, they constantly are devising new openings for expenditure as though they had discovered some payable method of extracting gold from seawater.

"The Ministry are destined to experience a very rude awakening in the near future. The hour is at hand and the cause will be finance.

"The moment the armistice was signed the Cabinet should resolutely have faced the alarming condition of the nation's finances. They did not do so. They never have done so to this day. They deluded the people with roseate pictures of a new era which was about to dawn and never stopped to count the cost. They plunged headlong into wildly expensive schemes, created new branches of bureaucracy right and left, talked of the nationalization of the key industries as though such changes were a mere bagatelle, and incurred fresh liabilities without attempting to cast the national balance sheet. They proclaimed they were going to make a country fit for heroes to live in. What they are doing is to make a place for beggars to die in."

GRIP WORSE THAN WAR.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 4.—According to statistics published by the Secolo, Italy during 1918 had 800,000 deaths caused by grip, averaging 60 per cent. more than the deaths caused by the whole war.

The same paper estimates the deaths by grip throughout the world were double the deaths caused by the war.

Five Killed in Basle Strike Riots.

WORKING OUT PLANS TO SELL ARMY FOOD

Baker Approves Consignment to This City and Distribution May Begin Monday.

RETAIL STORES OFFER AID

Will Give Room Space and Supply Clerks to Handle Big Stocks of Goods.

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUBS HELP

Purchasing Will Be Permitted by Groups as Well as by Individuals.

Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley yesterday began to work out plans for the distribution of army surplus foods, which probably will be placed on sale next Monday at prices from 15 to 20 per cent. below the retail market prices. Mr. O'Malley was assured over the long distance telephone that the actual figures, which have been in process of compilation at Washington for several days, would be communicated to him this morning, and he was notified that Secretary of War Baker had approved his plan to act as agent by signing the order for the consignment of the food to this city. Many individuals and organizations are offering to help get the food to the ultimate consumer at the least cost, and with the greatest expedition.

Among the first civic organizations to devise a definite plan for handling the food was the Chelsea Neighborhood Association. Through a committee of fifteen retail dealers the association yesterday submitted a plan to Mayor Hylan and Commissioner of Markets Jonathan C. Day, whereby more than 400 retail stores in the neighborhood will set aside space for the sale of the Government food.

The personnel for the handling of the goods will be supplied from among the employes of the stores, and the Association will conduct an advertising campaign in the neighborhood to acquaint the people with the opportunities offered. Lieutenant S. M. Pike, formerly of the Quartermaster's Department, a resident of the neighborhood, will superintend the selling.

Many Offers of Assistance.

Mr. O'Malley received many letters yesterday containing offers of co-operation. One was from a member of the Lambs' Club, and another from Mrs. Ruth Kaunitz of 255 West 108th Street, who offered to take charge of one distribution centre, and who said she had had experience in the Red Cross. Anton Zerlech, a meat dealer of 581 West 181st Street, offered half of his place of business for a distribution centre. A co-operative chain store at 73 West 131st Street, operated by Davis & Davis for the benefit of colored people, offered its services. Several large department stores in Manhattan and Brooklyn also placed their facilities at the Commissioner's disposal. Several large cold storage plants will store the perishable foods, free of charge.

The list of distributing stations will be announced in a few days. The situation will be discussed with Mayor Hylan, and fire houses, police stations, and other public buildings probably will be used. The foods to be sold will include ham, bacon, cheese, tomatoes, peas, rice and cereals. Only whole hams will be sold, but bacon may be disposed of in three and four pound pieces. Canned goods will be sold in units of any size, but Mr. O'Malley's advice is that the public store these goods against a Winter of high costs.

Mr. O'Malley announced that groups of citizens might order quantities of supplies, which he would deliver at points they might designate. In this way Community Centres, labor unions, organizations of civil service employes, or other groups may facilitate distribution among their members.

Will Ask for Army Trucks.

One problem to be solved is that of transportation. The supplies must be carried from the freight cars to warehouses, and thence to the distributing points. Mr. O'Malley proposes to open negotiations with Colonel Lawes of the Motor Transport Corps, in an effort to obtain the use of army trucks.

Asked if he thought the plan to sell army supplies offered a permanent solution of the cost of living problem, Mr. O'Malley said he thought not, but that the real solution lay in the re-establishment of the Federal Food Administration.

"There was never a time," he said, "when Mr. Hoover was as much needed as he is today. Under the Food Administration the profits of every one, all along the line, were gauged, with the result that no one could profiteer, and yet individual initiative was conserved. The organization could be taken up where it was left off, and could be made to function as effectively as during the war. I pressed this idea while I was in Washington, and I should not be surprised if some such remedy were applied."

It was announced at Riverhead, L. I., yesterday that the wholesale price of potatoes at that place had jumped from $1.50 to $2 a bushel. The demand, it was said, was greater than the supply. Farmers predicted that before next Spring, potatoes would bring $4 a bushel.

MORE BACON FOR NEWARK.

Mayor Gillen Orders 30,000 Pounds from Army Surplus.

Mayor Charles P. Gillen of Newark yesterday placed another order with the War Department for 30,000 pounds of canned bacon, making 70,000 pounds thus far purchased from the army's surplus stores. The cans, each containing twelve pounds, are expected to be placed on sale, with hams and canned vegetables, beginning tomorrow.

There are 2,500 hams now in Newark's warehouse, each weighing from ten to fifteen pounds, which will be sold at 32 cents a pound. Prices on the canned goods—pork and beans, tomatoes, corn, peas, stringless beans and baked beans—in most instances will be below the prices now quoted by the Government for parcel post delivery.

Eight parish halls and school buildings will be added to the sales depots, and church societies have offered to provide volunteer salesmen. When the new places are opened, there will be twenty-one sales stations in operation. To cut down overhead expenses, the canned goods will not be wrapped. The Mayor has asked purchasers to carry the articles away in baskets or bags. Upon receiving complaints that butchers were buying in the Mayor's bacon and reselling it at higher prices, the Mayor gave orders to the sales force to ask each purchaser whom he was buying for, and gave permission to refuse sales to any one suspected of planning to resell.

Another Auburn Convict Escapes.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Edward Duffy, 28, a convict in the group working in the Hector road camp near Watkins, escaped some time last night and has not been apprehended. He was serving a ten-year sentence, having been convicted in Kings County for assault in the second degree after previous conviction. He was transferred to Auburn from Sing Sing. Nine convicts from various road camps are now fugitives.

MAYS TO PITCH TODAY IF YANKEE OWNERS GET INJUNCTION AGAINST JOHNSON

MAYS MAY PITCH FOR YANKEES TODAY

Injunction to be Sought This Morning by Attorneys of New York Club.

STATEMENT BY JOHNSON

League President Relates Objections of Club Owners to Trade for Mays.

Carl Mays, the bone of contention in what promises to be the most bitter scrap in the history of American League baseball, may pitch for the Yankees at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. If the New York Club obtains an injunction to prevent temporarily the operation of the suspension which President Ban Johnson has placed on the player to prevent his pitching for Manager Huggins's club for the remainder of the season, he is to make his début as a Yankee.

The legal representatives of the New York Club were busy all day yesterday preparing papers in the case, but because of the care that is being taken in drawing up the documents the lawyers were not ready to apply for the injunction yesterday. It is expected that the application will be made this morning and it is possible that a decision may be made on it before game time this afternoon. If this is favorable to the Yankees, Manager Huggins will send Mays to the mound today.

The New York club has taken a determined stand to fight what it believes to be a discriminating action on the part of Ban Johnson, and they have thrown down the gauntlet to the league President with such a belligerent attitude that Johnson realizes that he has a real fight on his hands. Johnson yesterday refused to see any newspaper reporters at his hotel, where he was closeted all day with his henchmen. A few attempts to get Johnson's room were successful, but the man who answered the telephone answered questions about his chief by hanging up the receiver.

Colonel Huston's Views.

Colonel T. L. Huston of the New York club said yesterday that the basis of the whole trouble was that the American League President was interested in the Cleveland club, and that it was the failure of this club to get Mays that prompted him to suspend the pitcher and deprive the Yankee club of his services this season. When asked if he could prove this charge, Colonel Huston replied that he did not know that he could.

"The trouble is fundamental," said Colonel Huston. "We believe the President of the American League is interested in the Cleveland Club. We are not going to attempt to prove this, but that is our belief, and we believe it is the conviction of every club in the American League. Until this carbuncle is removed there can be no health in our league."

This is the first time that the charge has openly been made that Johnson was interested in the Cleveland Club with Jim Dunn.

Johnson, when shown the statement issued by Colonel Huston, charging him with having an interest in the Cleveland club, declined to make any comment.

What Other Clubs Offered.

It was learned yesterday that the Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, and Chicago Clubs all made flattering offers for Mays as soon as it was learned that Frazee put the pitcher on the market. It is said that Cleveland offered Pitchers Ed Klepfer and Guy Morton and Outfielder Elmer Smith for Mays, while Manager Clarke Griffith offered Pitchers Jim Shaw and Harry Harper. Manager Frazee of Boston, it is said, wanted Bobby Veach and Pitcher Howard Ehmke for Mays, and that President Navin of the Tigers offered him a large sum of money and some of his second string players, but refused to part with Veach and Ehmke. The offer of President Comiskey of the White Sox for the player is said to have been in the neighborhood of $40,000.

If three of these clubs support Johnson in his suspension of the Yankee pitcher their motives are easily seen. But why Philadelphia and St. Louis should support Johnson is not plain to the Yankee officials.

The interview which Ruppert and Huston had with Johnson on Sunday night was the stormiest session which Johnson ever sat through. Incidents which the Yankee owners have been storing up ever since they bought the club were dug up, and for the first time since Johnson organized the American League he faced opposition which was so real that those who know him are not surprised that the baseball dictator was closeted all day yesterday thinking it over.

The decided attitude taken by the Yankee owners may lead to a serious upheaval in baseball, and Johnson evidently realizes it. At one time during the feverish discussion, Johnson is said to have suggested that the club owners be called together and that Ruppert and Huston present their arguments to the assembled magnates. Johnson suggested that the club owners might change their attitude and withdraw their alleged objection to the playing of Mays with the Yankees. The Yankee officials, in no uncertain terms, absolutely declined to go before any league meeting with the case. They told Johnson that he slapped on the suspension and that if it was withdrawn he should do it. That Johnson was flabbergasted is putting the case lightly.

A Different Fight.

Club owners in the past have opposed the rule of Johnson, but in all cases up to the present rumpus, the belligerent club owners have quietly but surely been placed on the chutes and dropped out of the organization. This is a different kind of a fight which Johnson has on his hands now, and every act of his career as the grand mogul of the American League will be revived and used against him.

It is pointed out that Johnson developed the American League into a major organization with a crowd of National League contract jumpers. Now he talks about May's crime in jumping the Boston club while under contract. Every breach of discipline which has been flagrant in the American League for years is being recalled. Why Johnson should suddenly shift and become such a stickler for discipline in this particular case is what the Yankee owners want explained. Last season the same Cleveland club, in which the Yankees charge Johnson with having an interest, refused to finish out its schedule, and the club disbanded, with the approval of Johnson, and refused to go to St. Louis to play its scheduled games. For this breach of discipline Cleveland did not suffer, though the action might have affected the fight for fourth place and world's series money.

Babe Ruth deserted the Boston club last season, and was out of the game for several days, but he was not suspended. Zinn Beck of the Yankees last season deserted the club, leaving the bench while the club was playing a game, but the head of the league took no action. Hap Felsch took sudden leave of the White Sox last season when they were badly in need of his services, but Johnson seemed to overlook this breach of discipline.

The open charge by Colonel Huston that Johnson has an interest in the Cleveland club is likely to result in an investigation which may result in a tremendous baseball scandal.

The Scott Perry Case.

Johnson's disregard for all baseball law and discipline in the case of Scott Perry last season is being revived to show his inconsistency in the present case. Johnson backed Connie Mack, or at least did not hamper Mack, when he went to court and got an injunction to prevent the operation of the decision of the National Commission awarding Perry to the Boston Nationals. It was this attitude of Johnson that caused the resignation of John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, as head of the National League. Johnson stubbornly refused to abide by baseball law in this case and supported Mack in his efforts to thwart the National League in its effort to get the player, who had been legally awarded to the Boston Braves.

It looks as if the New York, Boston, and Chicago clubs, the three strongest baseball centres of the circuit, were united in this wrangle against the five clubs which Johnson maintains insisted on a suspension of Mays. It is known that Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago club, has been on the outs with Johnson for two years, and that last Winter Comiskey and Frazee were the leading figures in the movement to oust Johnson from the organization after he had antagonized the club owners and the baseball public by his attitude on the players in relation to the draft. When it came to a showdown, however, the New York owners, Ruppert and Huston, at that time came to Johnson's support and no action was taken against him.

Blocking Commission Change.

The action of Johnson in hanging up any possible action in the ousting of August Herrmann as Chairman of the National Commission is still fresh in the minds of the baseball men. When the men of Herrmann's own League wanted him removed it was Johnson who stubbornly resisted the action and brought about the organization of a committee made up of officials from both leagues to choose a new official as Chairman of the commission. In the meantime Herrmann has served as a hold-over official, and the American League committee, presumably at the instance of Johnson, has done nothing whatever toward the fulfillment of its mission.

JOHNSON MAKES STATEMENT.

League Head Reviews Case and Makes Public Some Telegrams.

Ban Johnson, President of the American League, issued the following statement at the Holland House last night:

So much has been said in the public prints of a misleading character about the Mays case that I deem it expedient to recount the facts concerning his suspension. Mays left the Boston club on July 13 without permission while a game was in progress in Chicago. He was pitching for Boston, and in the early part of the game, while his club was at bat, he left the players' bench and went to the clubhouse. He removed his uniform, put on his street clothes, and left the park. Manager Barrow missed Mays from the bench and sent one of the players to the clubhouse for him, but Mays declined to return to the field.

Mays went to his hotel, packed his grip, and boarded a train for Boston. Arriving there he announced through the newspapers he was through with the Red Sox, and would go on a fishing trip. It was incumbent on the Boston management to suspend the player, and notify league headquarters of its action. This was not done, nor has there been a regular report made on the incident.

The Chicago, Cleveland, and New York clubs opened negotiations for Mays. This prompted a vigorous protest from the Washington, St. Louis, and Detroit clubs. To permit the transfer of the player to one of the contending teams for the championship would lower the standard of baseball and place a premium on flagrant violation of club discipline.

Philadelphia joined in the protest of the three original clubs, and when the situation was clearly explained to Mr. Dunn of the Cleveland club, he promptly withdrew in his negotiations for Mays.

On July 23 I sent a telegram to Manager Barrow of the Boston club, reading as follows:

"Please explain why Boston club has neglected to suspend Mays. This must be done immediately or American League will be forced to take action."

On the same day I wired Colonel Ruppert as follows:

"Mays left the Boston club July 13 without permission, and has made a declaration he will not continue in its service. This is a most flagrant breach of discipline, and should not go unpunished. Six clubs have protested that the player should not be permitted to go elsewhere. To allow this incident to go unchallenged will work endless harm to the American League. Clubs should stand together and refuse to negotiate for this man."

"Telegram received. Will you kindly notify me who the six clubs are which protested negotiations for player? Answer, Copley Plaza, Boston."

My reply to Colonel Ruppert's message was as follows:

"Washington, St. Louis, Detroit, protesting clubs. Philadelphia and Cleveland joined with them. Huston, when here, stated it would be a mistake for any club to take Mays, and that personally he would be willing to lay off of player, if other clubs would so agree. Chicago, however, has failed to make any answer."

I heard nothing more from Colonel Ruppert and naturally supposed he had dropped all negotiations for Mays. When the announcement was made, in the newspapers of July 31, that the player had been transferred to the New York club, I was astonished. Immediately I suspended Mays indefinitely, and wired both the New York and Boston clubs to that effect.

Manager Barrow never replied to my telegram of July 23, but reports in the Boston newspapers led me to believe that all deals for the player had been called off and that he would be disciplined by the Boston club. When Colonel Ruppert returned from Boston without the player, it seemed to me that he had been guided by my telegram of July 23, and had abandoned his negotiations.

In discussing my action in suspending Mays with Messrs. Rupper and Huston on Sunday night, I volunteered to call a special meeting of the American League for the purpose of threshing out this subject, but they informed me they would not attend such a meeting. Their public declaration of this morning to the same effect makes unnecessary a special meeting, and none will be held.

The action of the American League club owners in the Mays case was prompted by a determination to preserve the game's integrity and with a keen sense for the welfare of the organization as a whole.

FRAZEE UPHOLDS YANKEES.

Red Sox Chief Says He Will Oppose Suspension.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—President H. H. Frazee left tonight for New York to attend the special meeting of the American League tomorrow which had been called to take up the Carl Mays case, but which was canled tonight.

Frazee said he would oppose any effort to have Mays suspended for the remainder of the season on the ground that five clubs in the league desired such action. He said he had affidavits that five clubs had attempted to buy Mays from his club after it was announced that the pitcher had left the Red Sox.

DUNN REFUSES TO COMMENT.

Indian Chief Silent as to Johnson's Alleged Interest in Club.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—James Dunn, President of the Cleveland American League Club, tonight refused to comment on the charge that President Ban Johnson of the American League has an interest in the Cleveland Club.

"The Cleveland Club is a stock corporation," Mr. Dunn said. "Mr. Johnson is the one to say whether he has an interest in the Cleveland Club."

Bunch Five Drives Off Veteran in First Inning and Cardinals Never Threaten.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—The Dodgers made it three out of four against the Cardinals when they took the final game of the series with Branch Rickey's aggregation here this afternoon by the score of 5 to 3. The visitors went to the front in the first inning, when five hits produced three runs, and never were threatened seriously after that. The Dodgers were lucky in being able to get some runs over the plate in the early innings, as they did not have much of an opportunity to do any scoring after the fourth inning.

Scattered through the crowd which saw the battle were the members of the New York Giants who were having an off day. True to the traditions of the game they had to spend the holiday at the ball game. McGraw and his men arrived here this morning and will play a series with the Cardinals while the Dodgers are engaged in a set of games with Pat Moran's Cincinnati Reds.

Big Ed Pfeffer, who is now pitching as fine ball as any boxman in the Heydler circuit, almost added another shutout to his string. Within the past ten days Pfeffer had registered runless victories over the Phillies and Cubs. In today's game he allowed only one hit up to the fifth and then his string of shutout pitching snapped. The Cardinals got to him for a double and two singles and pushed over an earned run. Brooklyn's only error, a dropped throw by Johnston, paved the way for the two runs scored by the home team in the seventh inning.

Though he was charged with the one Brooklyn error, Johnston played a fine all around game for the Dodgers. He handled eight chances around second base and punched out a trio of hits, one of them a triple that started the Dodgers on their way to three runs in the opening inning. Jimmy also started the little rally in the second inning after the first two batsmen had been set down in order.

Rickey sent Red Ames, the oldest active pitcher in the major leagues, against the Easterners, and it plainly was not Red's day. He lasted four frames, which yielded ten hits and all five runs scored by the visitors. Ames was not entirely responsible for all the scoring, as errors by Miller in the second and Lavan in the fourth figured in the scoring of two Brooklyn runs.

At the start of the fifth inning Marvin Goodwin went to the hill, and his work left the impression that it would have been a real ball game if Rickey had picked him to start the game. In four innings the Dodgers did not get a hit off Goodwin. The only visiting player to reach first base was Mack Wheat, who stopped a pitched ball with his ribs in the fifth inning. Mack had previously proved a good target for one of Ames's fast shoots. Bert Shotten batted for Goodwin in the eighth and Sherdell pitched one inning, allowing one hit.

The Dodgers started slowly in the first inning, but finished with three runs. Olson opened with an easy fly to McHenry, and Jimmy Johnston followed with a triple to left field. Griffith's line smash to left send Johnston over the dish, and when Zach Wheat scratched a hit off Ames's glove, Griffith stopped at second. Myers fanned for the second out, and Konetchy laced a single to left. The hit scored Griffith, and sent Zach Wheat to second, in position to race home when Chuck Ward hit to centre for a single. Mack Wheat closed the big inning with a grounder to Lavan for an easy out at first base.

Pfeffer and Olson had been retired in order in the second when Johnston singled to deep short and got an Griffith's walk. Jack Miller fumbled a grounder from Zach Wheat's bat and before the ball was recovered Johnston had scored from second base and Griffith was camping on that bag. Myers forced Wheat at second for the final out.

Brooklyn's final run arrived in the fifth inning. With one out, Griffith singled to to deep short and got an extra bag on Lavan's poor throw to first, in a belated effort to get the runner. Zach Wheat's out advanced Griffith to third and he scored on Myers's single to left. Konetchy followed with another hit, but there was no more scoring.

The Cardinals were helpless before Pfeffer up to the fifth inning. McHenry, who started the second inning with a single to right, was the only home player to get on the bases in the first four innings. McHenry opened the fifth with his second hit, a single to centre, and went to third on Dilhoefer's double to right. McHenry held third while Olson grabbed Miller's smash, tagged Dilhoefer and threw to first for a double play on Miller. Then Doc Lavan punched a single to centre and McHenry jogged home.

The Cardinals got two more runs in the seventh. Hornsby singled to centre, McHenry hit to Ward, and Johnston dropped the throw for a force play at second base on Hornsby. Both runners advanced on Dilhoefer's infield out, and they scored on Miller's single to left.

RED SOX RELEASE CALDWELL

Shean Is Dropped Also—Braves Try Out New Players.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 4.—Boston baseball fans had two interesting items to discuss as a result of today's developments, namely, the unconstitutional release of Ray Caldwell, the former Yankee pitcher, and Dave Shean, second baseman, by the Red Sox, and the grabbing up by the Braves of eight New England League stars. The release of Shean and Caldwell can hardly be classed as a bombshell, as neither has shown unusual form.

The pick of the New England League players are now putting in daily practice at Braves Field, awaiting the homecoming of Manager Stallings, to determine whether he wants their names on Braves contracts. The group includes Bailey and O'Connor, outfielders, Morgan, a twirler, and Sweetland, a catcher, from the Portland team; Anderson, a portside hurler from the Haverhill Club; Jacobson and Loftus, outfielders, and Reitag, catcher, from the Fitchburg Club.

M., of Hinsdale, a Chicago suburb, was notified to join his outfit last night. It was sent to the South Side to relieve one of the companies which has been on duty for several days.

RED SOX WIN SERIES.

Take Final Game of Set with White Sox by Score of 2 to 1.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Boston captured the series from Chicago today by winning, 2 to 1. The Red Sox hit freely, but splendid support behind Faber kept the score down. Singles by Roth and Schang gave Boston a run in the first inning. Singles by Schang and McInnis and Risberg's error produced the other tally in the fifth, and Chicago scored in the eighth when J. Collins, pinch hitting for Faber, tripled and scored on Leibold's double. Ruth was not allowed to hit in four times at bat.

BEARS POUND BALL AND DEFEAT MINERS

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Penn., Aug. 4.—Four Reading pitchers were unable to master the Newark Bears in a hard-hitting contest here today, the visitors winning easily by the score of 10 to 5. Several new faces were in the local lineup, in an attempt to fill the gaps caused by the release of Mike Doolan and Jimmy Walsh and the illness of Joe Burns and Fishburn.

Charles ("Pop") Kelchner assumed active management of the Reading Club, succeeding Charlie Dooin, who resigned. Kelchner appeared in uniform on the field at today's game. Miller played an exceptional game in the field for the visitors.

SKEETERS WIN IN TENTH.

Jersey City Ties Score in Ninth and Then Beats Orioles, 2 to 1.

Through sensational batting in the final rounds of yesterday's game with Baltimore, Bill Donovan's Skeeters succeeded in tieing the game in the ninth inning, and then in their half of the overtime period managed to break it into a Jersey City victory by a score of 2 to 1, giving the Skeeters the edge on the Orioles by two games of the three game series.

Harry Biemiller, former Jersey City shortstop, who has recently been displaying surprising form as a pitcher, not only held the Birds safe throughout the battle, with the exception of the third frame, when the Orioles put their lone run across, but he placed his associates on the winning side of the scoring tablet when he batted Joe Cobb home from third with the deciding tally in the Jerseys' half of the tenth.

Jack Dunn sent Rube Parnham, his pitching ace, to the mound. For eight innings he kept the home players glued to the bases. In the ninth, however, with Baltimore one run to the good, Paddy Bauman led his teammates by tearing off a sharp drive to left. Zitman sacrificed, and Frank Kane's timely two bagger sent Bauman over, balancing the count.

The first two men up for Baltimore hit safely in the tenth, but the fine defensive work of the Skeeters prevented a score. In the Skeeters' half Cobb slammed out a corking three bagger to left, and raced home with the victory tag on Biemiller's clout to centre.

TENDLER IS VICTOR IN TIGERISH FRAY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Judging from tonight's crowd at the fifth open-air boxing show at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, fight fans have been educated to the point where nothing less than a world's champion can induce them to hand over their cash at the gate. About 7,000 were out tonight and saw some good bouts, any one of which would have been considered a wind-up at the indoor shows.

In the opening bout Jack Russo and Frankie Conifrey of Brooklyn went through six rounds of comedy, which at the end was called a draw. Russo substituted for George (Young) Erne, the Buffalo lightweight, who, for some reason, failed to appear. For five rounds Conifrey did what fighting he could, but Russo insisted in crawling through his legs, dancing around and doing anything but fight. In the sixth round Russo came to life and staggered Conifrey after fighting all over the ring.

In the semi-windup Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, former holder of the world's welterweight crown, met Steve Latzo of Hazleton. It was a regular British type of fight, in which Lewis boxed one of those defensive battles, for which the English scrappers seem to be famous, with here and there a punch, and a lot of dancing mixed in. Latzo tried hard to fight and should get a verdict for that reason. Lewis won the dancing contest, and Latzo won the fight. Latzo ought to get the purse, and Lewis a dill pickle with a ribbon on it.

Frankie Britt of New Bedford gave Joe Tiplitz a beautiful lacing in their six-round tilt. He won every round in easy style by smothering Tiplitz's wild swings and blocking his rushes with a leaping left jab that was entirely too deep for Tiplitz to solve.

When it came to the windup, however, the heart of no fight fan could have wished for more in the way of fisticuffs. They talk about the old days, and this city has never been far behind in the fistic game, but the climax of fighting the superlative degree of fisticuffs came when Lew Tendler met Willie Jackson of New York.

Knocked down, so that it was a question whether or not he was really knocked out in the first round by Jackson, Tendler came back and fought a terrific fight, winning out over the New Yorker, despite the first round. The bout had almost a dramatic ending as Jackson crossed his right in the opening round and knocked Tendler down for the count of nine. When he got up Jackson crashed his right into Tendler's jaw again and once more sent him tumbling to the mat.

Here the question arises as to whether Tendler was really knocked out. His seconds threw water on him and all but leaped into the ring. Referee "Pop" O'Brien did his best to continue counting, and at the same time stop the water throwing. It was halted when the police drove the seconds from the vicinity of the ring. Tendler still apparently had his faculties, for he turned and waved his manager from the ring. He arose and managed to hold and stall during the remainder of the round and recuperated to a marvelous extent during the intermission.

Beginning with the second round it was a new fight, and as tigerish a battle as has ever been staged. Tendler threw everything to the winds and fought for a knockout. He hurled his gloves at Jackson in a veritable whirlwind, slashing, driving, and cutting as he chased the New Yorker around the ring. Jackson had lost his big chance in the first round when he failed to hold off Tendler and allowed him to hold and stay. From then on Tendler made a punching bag of him.

The beating that Jackson took was remarkable. He showed superhuman vitality to stand it. Tendler smashed and cut his face to ribbons, staggered him repeatedly, but could not knock him down. Tendler stamped himself a wonderful fighter through his ability to come back as he did and win.

WHITE AND LYNCH DRAW.

Bantamweights Put Up Fast 12-Round Bout at Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Jabez White of Albany and Joe Lynch of New York boxed a twelve-round draw here tonight before the Fenway A. A. At infighting one man was just as clever as the other, Lynch generally being the first to go into a clinch. In a number of rounds they stood toe to toe and snapped rights and lefts to the jaw and face at a rapid pace.

Lynch tried all his cleverness and footwork to keep White from reaching him, but the Albany boxer was too speedy and seldom did Lynch land a punch without getting one back with either a right or left counter on the head or jaw. White displayed some skill at jabbing and landed straight lefts on Lynch's mouth and nose many times and blocked many counters of the New York boxer.

In the closing rounds of the bout White appeared a bit tired, as he had fought Lynch at a fast pace, and it was in these rounds Lynch was able to even up the score that the Albany man had piled up in the earlier rounds. Lynch tried hard with both hands to score a knockout, but though he landed some hard smashes on White's face and jaw, the latter stood up under the punishment in good shape and gave Lynch some in return. The decision gratified the crowd.

DUNDEE DEFEATS COOGAN.

Local Lightweight Wins Close Eight-Round Bout.

A strong finish by Johnny Dundee, local Italian lightweight, gained him the honors over Mel Coogan of Brooklyn last night in their eight-round bout at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City. Dundee, surprised by the attack of his rival in the first half of the bout, recovered himself in the closing four rounds and carried off the laurels by a slight margin. Coogan was always willing to mix with his rival and carried the fighting continually in the early rounds, but the effort told on the Brooklynite, and as he tired in the last half of the bout Dundee piled up his winning points.

Quarter-Miler Shifts Clubs.

Matt J. Skea, a veteran Bronx athlete, will no longer compete under the colors of the Pastime A. C., to which organization he has been attached for many years. ALL FAVORITES WIN ON GRAND CIRCUIT

Royal Mac Takes North Randall Purse After Close Contest with Wilkes Brewer.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Attracted by two sweepstakes, a large crowd braved the threatening weather for the opening of the second Grand Circuit meeting of the Summer at North Randall today. Owing to showers throughout the morning, the track was heavy, but some fast time was made. All of the favorites won.

The North Randall Purse, of $2,160, for 2:05 trotters, was won by the heavily played Royal Mac. He took the first heat easily, but had to stand a hard drive to beat Wilkes Brewer a head in the third heat. Wilkes Brewer took the second heat.

Natalie the Great, which has never lost a heat, led from start to finish and easily won The News $2,000 Stakes, for two-year-old trotters. The filly sold at $100 in the auction pool against $30 for the field.

The 2:06 pace resulted in the hottest contested event of the day, four heats being necessary to decide the winner. Sanardo took the second heat in 2:02¼, the fastest mile of the day, considered remarkable owing to the condition of the track. He did the half in 1:01. Roy Gratton won the first and fourth heats and the race, with the third heat going to O. U. C. in a hard drive.

Tommy Todd, the veteran half-mile gelding, captured the 2:10 trot after finishing a poor fourth to The Ace, a long shot, in the first heat.

A Chip on Our Shoulder

We always carry a chip on our shoulder—not with the attitude of the school bully looking for a fight—

But because of the confidence we have in the compelling truth of our argument that it is not possible to buy a better shirt for $1.50 or $2.00 than every Par-amount Shop sells at these two prices.

Let this be disputed, then we are ready to "Put on the gloves" and show proof.

In materials, workmanship and fit, better shirts at the price asked for Par-amount Shirts are not made—

That's the chip we carry on our shoulder, as a challenge to all-comers.

It symbolizes our guarantee to you—

Your money back if not satisfied.

GRIFFIN BEATS RICHARDS AS TENNIS TOURNEY BEGINS AT NEWPORT

CALIFORNIANS WIN ON CASINO COURTS

McLOUGHLIN EASY VICTOR

Comet's True Form Still Uncertain, However—Johnston Encounters Unexpected Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4.—The most impressive assemblage of tennis players gathered together thus far this season met on the historic turf courts of the Newport Casino today to begin a week's invitation tournament which should give a full indication of how the national honors are likely to fall later in the month. The expected entries of the visiting Australians, who are due to arrive tomorrow, as well as the presence of Ichiya Kumagae, the Japanese star, contribute an international character to the event which has been rare in recent American tennis. With class oozing from practically every bracket in the draw of sixty players there were few surprises in the opening round, everything moving forward with machine-like precision under the efficient guidance of Craig Biddle and his fellow-committeemen.

The unusual sight of such stars as W. M. Johnston, R. N. Williams, 2d, S. H. Voshell, H. C. Johnson, and Frank Anderson playing simultaneously on adjoining courts, with Kumagae, R. L. Murray, C. J. Griffin, Vincent Richards, N. W. Niles, and Wallace Johnson similarly occupied in the morning hours, drew crowds of spectators to various parts of the grounds, unmindful of how one-sided the scores might be provided only the favorites were winning.

The women of Newport show partiality to bright colors this year, particularly a brilliant shade of orange, and when they saunter among the trees and over the lawns of the Casino one gets the impression of many orioles making themselves at home in exceedingly pleasant surroundings.

The grandstand inclosure where all the feature matches are played was initiated today by Clarence J. Griffin and Vincent Richards, the former's four-set victory at 6—3, 6—2, 3—6, 8—6, being counted an upset by some, in view of the youngster's recent defeat of the Californian in the Middle West. Today, however, Griffin was distinctly the better man, having good control of his strokes all the way, whereas the youthful holder of many titles found it difficult to gain command of either his ground strokes or his usually effective volleys.

Richards rallied strongly after losing the first two sets. He won the third by clearly superior play, and was in the lead in the fourth, with a splendid opportunity for a decisive break, when errors spoiled his chance.

The first break of the match came in the fourth game of the opening set, when Richards went pointless on his service by netting four times in succession. He got back the game on Griffin's succeeding delivery, and then tied the set at 3—all. Griffin forged ahead again with the good volley of a fast drive, and by deep, accurate hitting secured his second break for a 5—3 advantage, closing out the set 6—3 without difficulty.

Griffin Again Breaks Through.

Service alternated in winning the games of the second set up to 2—all, when Griffin again broke through with a neat back-hand pass. Proceeding to 4—2, the Californian once more upset the youngster's service after a great back-hand half volley of a hard smash off a high bounder. A clean service ace closed the set at 6—2.

Richards, who had been missing many of his pet shots up to this point, got his game into working order in the third session and quickly went into the lead at 3—1. A counterbreak resulted from a double fault and a netted volley, but Richards made it 4—2 when he received a timely double fault in turn. Alternation of successful service held good through the rest of the set, with the Yonkers boy keeping his margin to a 6—3 conclusion.

They exchanged breaks at the start of the fourth and Richards had his big opportunity with a lead of 40—15, which he threw away, from 2—all to 6—all, service won consistently, although Griffin was again in danger in the ninth game, when he served two double faults in succession, the second coming on a foot fault. With the vantage game in hand 7—6, Griffin got another valuable double from his opponent and promptly put the match to his credit with a clean pass, the final set being scored at 8—6.

McLoughlin's Reappearance.

The reappearance of Maurice McLoughlin in Eastern tournament play attracted much attention, but it was impossible to judge the real strength of the comet's game, as he received little opposition in his straight-set victory over Joseph Harriman, Jr., 6—1, 6—0, 6—1. The fiery-headed Californian seemed to lack control of his service and overhead shots, although his fore-hand drive was working well, with somewhat less speed but far more accuracy than in the past. He did not exert himself at any time during the short match, letting his opponent's errors win for him whenever possible.

William M. Johnston, the 1919 champion, had a harder time disposing of J. W. Foster of Boston, the first and third sets running to deuce games and the play being close throughout. A high wind, which blew all afternoon, seemed to affect the accuracy of this season's clay court, Pacific Coast, and Longwood champion.

The two other national title holders in the tournament, R. N. Williams, 2d, who last won the honor in 1916, and R. Lindley Murray, the present incumbent, both advanced in comfortable style, although Josiah Wheelwright made Williams work for the second and third sets.

Inman Drops Two Sets.

F. C. Inman, former Metropolitan champion, unexpectedly dropped two sets to W. P. Compton, recently out of the army and with the marks of German mustard gas still on him, and H. S. Parker of Cedarhurst went through C. K. Shaw of Providence in surprisingly one-sided fashion, reversing the result of their recent meeting in the Longwood singles. T. C. Bundy, McLoughlin's doubles partner, started with a decisive victory over Paul Gibbons of Philadelphia, and the Massachusetts champion, H. C. Johnson, proved far too strong for young Frank Anderson. Kumagae had a walkover against Hoffman Nickerson, while C. S. Garland was not greatly extended by the veteran C. M. Bull, Jr. F. C. Boggs was bothered by the junior J. D. E. Jones in the third set of their match, which ran to 13—11 before the chopper got the decision.

W. T. Tilden, 2d, S. H. Voshell, Robert Kinsey, R. N. Dana, W. M. Washburn, Axel Gravem, N. W. Niles, R. C. Seaver, J. D. E. Jones, Wallace Johnson, and Major Harran were the other winners of the opening day.

Two of the Australians, Gerald Patterson and Norman Brookes, drew byes, while the first round matches of R. V. Thomas and Randolph Lycett will not be held until tomorrow.

The summaries:

The Hoboken Tennis Club at Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J., will conduct an open tennis tournament from Sept. 13 to Sept. 21, inclusive, it was announced yesterday. Competition in singles matches will be held for men and women, and in addition there will be a mixed doubles event. TO SHOOT FOR LEECH CUP.

Competition for Prized Rifle Trophy Begins Tomorrow.

CALDWELL, N. J., Aug. 4.—Competition for the Leech Cup, the oldest and most highly prized rifle trophy in America, will begin Wednesday at the navy rifle range, and will continue for three days, one day being taken to fire each course. The match will be shot at 800, 900, and 1,000 yards, each marksman being allowed two sighting-shots and seven shots for record.

The Leech Cup, brought to this country in 1874 by Major Arthur B. Leech, Captain of the Irish rifle team which in that year competed in America for the first time, is easily the most historic and venerable small-arms trophy in existence. It was presented to the Americans under particularly happy circumstances. While the Irish and American teams were lunching together, after the first stage of the firing had been completed, Major Leech presented the cup to the American Team Captain, General George Wingate, with the felicitations of the Irish team.

The Leech Cup is a silver pitcher, fifteen inches high, covered with clustering roses and shamrocks. Enclosed in a wreath of the latter is the inscription: "Presented for Competition to the Riflemen of America by Arthur Blennerhassett Leech, Captain of the International Team Upon the Occasion of Their Visit to New York, 1874."

A possible score of 105, twenty-one perfect shots, each counting five, has been made but once in the whole history of the cup. In 1913, Captain George W. Chesley turned the trick. Last year's competition was won by A. J. Cantieri with a score of 88.

Among the teams which have arrived at the rifle range are: Ohio State Civilian, J. R. Byerly, Captain; R. O. T. C., Camp Custer, Mich., L. H. Yeager, Captain; District of Columbia, Civilian Team, R. V. Reynolds, Captain; R. H. McGarrity, Coach; Camp Taylor, (Ky.) Team, A. G. Harding, Captain; Texas Civilian Rifle Team, H. J. Petmecky, Captain; Camp Funston (Kan.) Rifle Team, Captain F. C. Crowley, Captain; Captain A. E. Clark, Coach; Florida Rifle Team, Louis H. Burkhardt, Captain.

Among the team members of the A. E. F. who arrived here this afternoon, was Sergeant Stanley Smith, of Cleveland, winner of a rifle championship at Le Mans, France, in June last. Another Championship winner who arrived was Corporal L. K. Peyton, of Pasadena, Cal., who won at the same place.

The Iowa Rifle Team of Civilians, with D. A. Preussner as Captain, also came in today. Other teams to arrive were the Camp Lee Rifle Team, the Utah Rifle Team, the Rhode Island Rifle Team, and the Citadel Military Academy Rifle Team from South Carolina.

The program for tomorrow is as follows: At 8 A. M., there will be shooting at 200 yards, each team to have three targets; at 9 A. M., shooting at 500 yards, until 11:30 A. M.; at 1:30 P. M., shooting at 800 yards and at 1,000 yards.

The Leech Cup match starts on Wednesday, at 1:30 P. M.

FIX OLYMPIC ROWING CARD.

Five Events on Program for Next Year's Antwerp Meet.

The General Committee of the 1920 Olympic Games, which will be held at Antwerp next year, has drawn up its rowing program. Owing to the fact that there is a strong tide in the river Scheldt, with the possibility of rough water, it is probable that the events will be rowed off on the Ship Canal at Brussels, which has a minimum width of 130 meters (400 feet).

The dates selected for the regatta are Aug. 14, 15 and 16. The program will consist of single and double sculls, pairs, fours and eights, over a straight line course of about 2,000 meters in length. Entries will be accepted up to July 5, 1920.

Noted Trotting Horse Owner Dies.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 4.—George Leavitt, famous trotting horse owner of Readville, Mass., died here suddenly today. Mr. Leavitt was on one of his semi-annual visits to Lexington, where he quartered a notable stallion.

HIGH-CLASS FIELD FOR SIWANOY GOLF

Travers, Kirkby, Conley, Anderson, Lewis, and Sweetser Are Among Entrants.

Jerry Travers of Wykagyl, four times national amateur champion, and Oswald Kirkby, metropolitan titleholder, are the leading figures in the field of 116 golfers who are scheduled to tee up for the Victory Trophy over the links of the Siwanoy Country Club at Mt. Vernon tomorrow. The day's work will consist in a simple eighteen-hole qualifying round, if any round at Siwanoy may be called simple. The match play rounds will continue at eighteen holes Thursday and Friday, with a thirty-six-hole final on Saturday.

Travers and Kirkby will not have things all their own way, judging from the strength of the field, especially as many of the golfers are either natives or neighbors of the Westchester course. For instance, G. L. Conley, Westchester titleholder, will be on his own stamping grounds at Siwanoy, as well as John G. Anderson, twice runner-up in the national amateur championship. Reggie Lewis of Wykagyl, former Westchester titleholder, is also at home on all Westchester courses, and he will be quite as dangerous as G. E. Sweetser, the young Ardsley player, who has flashed several brilliant rounds in tournament work this Spring and Summer.

The work of the former national champion and the Englewood golfer will be watched with particular attention, however, as their chances for the national title at Pittsburgh will be gauged by their performances this week. Golf enthusiasts in general are hoping and praying that their former idol, Travers of the accurate irons and the deadly putt, will regain the cunning he displayed four or five years back, as he was such a tower of strength to American golf and a chosen favorite with all links followers.

Business cares at the last moment prevented Francis Ouimet from playing. Bobbie Jones, when last heard from, had every intention of competing, but all track of him has been lost on his journey back from the wilds of Canada. He may play if he finds himself before tomorrow morning.

VALOR WINS LAKE GEORGE HANDICAP

Martin's Horse, Eased Up at Finish, Takes Saratoga Feature in Near Record Time.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 4.—That new records will be made during the Saratoga meeting, owing to the condition of the track, which is becoming faster with each day of racing, was indicated today when William Martin's five-year-old Valor came within a fifth of a second of the track record for a mile in winning the Lake George Handicap, which was the most important event of the day.

Valor stepped the mile in 1:36 2-5. The track record is 1:36 1-5, which was set in the Delaware last year by W. S. Kilmer's Sun Briar. Had Valor been forced to extend himself to win it is quite probable a new record would have been made today. As it was, Valor won so handily that Jockey Callahan pulled him up in the stretch, after which he won by four lengths.

The card for today offered no important stake events for any class, but did provide some very good contests and a number of upsets. The favorites managed to get an even break on the day, but one of the upsets came with the victory of the Oneck Stable's Overcast, which won at 10 to 1.

There were only five starters in the Lake George Handicap, and in this instance the favorite rewarded his backers. Valor was quoted at 9 to 10, while M. L. Schwartz's Enfilade was next in demand at 7 to 5. It was a question whether Valor would be bothered by the weight, as he is not one that likes a heavy burden.

Valor quickly demonstrated that he cared little for the impost he was carrying. Callahan got him away to a good start and rushed him right to the front. This son of Ballot cut out a fast pace from the time the barrier was sprung and it was evident early in the race that good time would be made. Valor was so much the best of the others that he never had real opposition at any stage. Callahan kept him at top speed, as Enfilade, known to have plenty of speed and to finish very strongly, was always trying to catch the leader. In fact Enfilade tried so hard that when she reached the stretch her speed died out while Valor was racing on ahead to win easily. John F. Schorr's aged Leochares came up with a rush and took second from the Schwartz filly.

The time taken on Valor showed he had made the first six furlongs in 1:11, or two-fifths of a second better than the time made over this distance in the previous race by Routledge, and Valor still had two furlongs to go.

Routledge captured the Luzerne highweight handicap from a good field of sprinters, coming from behind to win by five lengths, from R. F. Carman's Starling, which beat the Beach Stable, L'Errant for the place.

Samuel Ross's Ultimatum, with Sande up, went to the front with such a rush that Routledge and Startling seemed to be out of it. But, turning into the stretch Routledge began to pass one after another of the horses until he caught the tiring Ultimatum, and from there the victory was comparatively easy. Ima Frank, always considered dangerous in a sprint event, had little chance in this race. She got away badly and the others were so far in front by the time she got into her stride she could not get up with the leaders.

The steeplechase event, which was for maiden four-year-olds, was marred by an accident which forced two of the contenders out of the running. Only two of the jumpers had ever started in a cross country race before and they showed their lack of schooling almost from the first jump. Harwood and Kismer collided after making the fifth jump and both were knocked down, throwing their riders. There were no serious injuries. Later Man o' the Hour, which was also making his début as a fencer, took a tumble and threw his rider, but the jockey got up, remounted and came on to finish third, about half a mile behind the winner.

J. Lumsden's Bachelor's Bliss made a runaway of the race and won by nearly a quarter of a mile. Bachelor's Bliss raced away from the others at the first jump, fenced nicely, and soon was so far ahead that the others, including The Dean, which was the favorite, had no chance unless the leader went down.

At the fifth jump Kismer stepped on Harwood just after the two had gone over the fence together. Both horses went to the ground and the jockeys were thrown several feet. The horses ran away and the jockeys managed to walk across the field to the stand. Man o' the Hour, which was running ahead of The Dean, went a cropper on the second time around and The Dean thus managed to finish second, despite the fact that the mare was tired.

The last race brought fifteen two-year-olds to the post and it went to H. P. Whitney's Truly Rural. The victory was a big surprise. His Wendy, which had shown so much speed at Aqueduct, was the one which the stable relied on to bring home the winner's share of the purse. Hasten On, one of the youngsters which had run only once, but which had made a very fine impression, was made second choice to the Whitney entry.

Wendy did not get away well, nor did Hasten On, and the horses raced well back of the field for some distance. But Truly Rural was away with the first flight and, coming into the stretch, rushed upon the leaders and won quite handily. Wendy did not get in the money and did not run so good a race as had been expected. Hasten On made up considerable ground and finished second, beating Arrow Point for the place.

Hoofbeats of the Racers.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 4.—It was announced here today that racing will positively be resumed in Canada on Aug. 26. Arrangements have been made for four meetings, with a total of forty-two days of racing. The first of these will be at Dalonier Park, from where the horses will go to Mount Royal, King Edwards' Park, and finally to Kempton Park. All of the Canadian tracks have been placed under one management. It is expected that a number of the horses now at Saratoga will be shipped to Canada for the forthcoming meetings.

Mayor John F. Hylan of New York City was a visitor at the races today. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, who will spend part of the Summer at the Spa.

Favorites managed to divide the honors of the day with the other winners, three of the choices getting home in front.

Wilfred Viau and T. H. Thorne announced today that they will sell all their horses now in training on Aug. 16. Mr. Viau is giving up racing in this country and intends to go to France. He has had some of the best racers in the country in recent years, and among those which will be sold are Westy Hogan, George Starr, and Camoufleur, all of which are high-class handicap horses. It is understood that Mr. Viau will not sell Omar Khayyam, which has been leased out for stud purposes.

Mrs. W. M. Jefferd's Golden Broom, a son of Sweeper and Zuna, made a very good impression with those who watched his speed in the last race. This colt cost $1,500 as a yearling, and will no doubt give a good account of himself when he becomes accustomed to racing.

There was some lively bidding on Overcast after her victory in the first race. S. Polk kept boosting the price until the Oneck Stable, which owns the filly, was forced to bid $1,705 to retain her.

William Walker's Harwood, which was one of the horses which fell in the steeplechase event, was badly cut in the accident and may not be able to race again in some time.

The Delaware Handicap, which is the feature of the card for tomorrow, has attracted some of the best handicap horses in training, and promises to be one of the best events of the week. Joseph E. Widener's Naturalist has been assigned the top weight, with 130 pounds, and other good ones which are named to start with him are Sun Briar, Escoba, Exterminator, winner of the Kentucky Derby of last year; The Porter, Fairy Wand, Hollister, and Hannibal.

Sam C. Hildreth was obliged to withdraw his fine handicap racer, Lucullite, from the Delaware, owing to the lameness of the colt. Of those which remain, Sun Briar has been working exceptionally well and is said to be much improved since last seen at Empire City.

The Glen Riddle Farm's Man o' War will be under a real test as to weight carrying ability if he starts in the Albany Handicap Wednesday. He is in at top weight, with 132 pounds, and in addition will have to pick up 5 pounds as a penalty for his victory in the United States Hotel Stakes Saturday.

MARYLAND RACING DATES SET.

Pimlico Meet from Nov. 1 to 13 and Bowie from Nov. 14 to 29.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Racing dates for the Autumn meeting at Pimlico and Bowie, in Maryland, were awarded today at a meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club after the races. The Pimlico meeting will be held from Nov. 1 to 13, and Bowie will have racing from Nov. 14 to 29.

It was expected the Stewards would take some action on the applications from several jockeys who are under suspension, but these matters did not come up for discussion.

CHAMPION KNOCKED OUT.

Dave Kamins of the Clark House A. A., national amateur 108-pound boxing champion, received the surprise of his life last night when he was defeated by C. Svoboda, East Side House, in the third round of their special bout at the New York A. C. Svoboda, with a terrific right hand smash to the jaw, stretched the title-holder prone on the floor of the ring in the third round, ending the bout. Svoboda surprised the large crowd with his showing from the start. In the first round he toppled Kamins with a heavy right hand blow, but the title-holder recuperated quickly and mixed willingly through the second round. In the third session, however, Svoboda worked an opening and crashed home his knockout blow.

Another champion was beaten when H. Rossmango of the Bronxdale A. C., New York State 135-pound titleholder, lost the judges' award to Harvey Bright in their three-round session. In a special bout at 145 pounds Dave Rosenberg, national champion, gained the judges' award over Andy O'Boyle, metropolitan titleholder, in three interesting rounds.

The summaries:

125-Pound Class.—A. Granatelli, unattached, defeated P. Goldstein, Pastime A. C., three rounds, judge's decision; H. Brown, Clark House A. A., defeated J. Gallenger, Brooklyn A. A., three rounds, judges' decision. Final Bout—Brown defeated Granatelli, three rounds, judges' decision.

To Fight for Bantamweight Title.

Joe Lynch, the west side bantamweight, who gained international fame in his two bouts with Jimmy Wilde, England's sensational boxer, will get a chance at the bantamweight championship title Labor Day, when he is scheduled to box Pete Herman of New Orleans, the titleholder. The contest will be promoted at Waterbury, Conn., under the auspices of the Army, Navy, and Civilian Boxing Board of Control. Joe Mulvihill of Danbury, Conn., has arranged the bout.

RETURN OF A. E. F. ATHLETES DELAYED

Plans for A. A. U. Track Meet in Honor of Interallied Champions Are Badly Upset.

Plans for the proposed reception to be tendered the returning American athletes who vanquished the representatives of the Allies in the Interallied games, held in late June and early July in France were upset yesterday, following receipt of a cablegram stating that the athletes did not leave Brest until Aug. 3. The cablegram came to Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, from Colonel Joseph H. Thompson, who is in charge of the team on its return journey. Following receipt of the cablegram, Mr. Rubien was in telephonic communication with a representative of the War Department, who corroborated the message. The athletes are returning on the Imperator, which is expected to dock here either Saturday or Sunday.

Previous communications from the War Department, Mr. Rubien said yesterday, led him to believe the team had sailed for home July 30, and he laid his plans accordingly. Under this arrangement it was planned to conduct a gala track and field meet at Brooklyn Athletic Field Friday afternoon, in which the returning war and athletic heroes would compete in their specialties and demonstrate to home folks the manner in which they vanquished their foreign rivals in France. The news that the team did not sail until last Sunday has caused an abandonment of these plans, and officials of the A. A. U. are in a quandary as to what next to do.

Mr. Rubien declared yesterday that he would await word from Colonel Thompson before undertaking further arrangements for the welcome home reception. Lack of information as to the number of athletes returning is one cause for delaying further plans, while indecision as to whether the athletes would be in condition for an athletic meet immediately upon their arrival furnishes another reason for delay.

A. A. U. officials are loath to discard permanently their plans for an athletic meet, and it is probable that they will eventually be carried through, the tentative arrangements now providing for a meet the day following the arrival of the Imperator. Where this proposed meet will be held the officials do not know, for it is unknown whether Brooklyn Athletic Field can again be obtained.

RECENTLY we have heard that the "waist-seam" model, because it is both incorrect and extreme, is to go—its very creator is said to be abandoning it.

You may have noted that we have never shown it—believing it incorrect and not suited to the wardrobe of a correctly groomed New Yorker.

Our impression of the "waist-seam" idea, now confirmed, proves anew that wise selection centers upon correct style—style that endures.

Our patrons are always assured that the style will wear as long as the cloth—a highly desirable assurance.

MORE than any other make of truck, Pierce-Arrows are used in businesses where profits depend on saving time.

Contractors earn bonuses by completing jobs ahead of schedule and suffer penalties for delays. They demand Pierce-Arrow reliability.

Owners who operate a single truck which, breaking down, would stop all deliveries, know the value of Pierce-Arrow reliability.

Users of cheap trucks which are often off the job for repairs, would find Pierce-Arrow reliability a wonderful relief.

EULOGIZES LIFE OF O. HAMMERSTEIN

"May His Memory Be an Emulation for the Ideal in Art," Says Rev. Dr. Silverman.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL FILLED

Leaders of Opera and Stage and General Public at Simple Services —John McCormack Sings.

The funeral of Oscar Hammerstein was held in the Temple Emanu-El at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The temple was filled to capacity, and the congregation comprised men and women of theatrical and operatic prominence, as well as hundreds of the general public. The services, which were simple in character, included two selections by the tenor, John McCormack, one of the well-known old Hebrew hymns, sung in English, and "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, the rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, delivered the funeral sermon.

The bronze coffin containing the body of the impresario was carried down the aisle a few minutes after the immediate family and friends had taken their places in the front pews. The bier was covered with flowers, and bouquets of flowers covered the pulpit platform. After a selection from the Scriptures and a brief prayer by Rabbi Silverman, Mr. McCormack sang, and the funeral address followed. Dr. Silverman said in part:

"The public career of Oscar Hammerstein is well known. He has left his impress on several walks of life; he touched the world at many points. Beginning life in this country at the bottom of the ladder, he finally realized that his natural inclination was in the direction of music and the opera. He sought to educate the public to the best in art, and was ready to sacrifice his own fortunes if necessary to achieve this purpose. This impresario was a man of strong personality, of irresistible individuality. He rarely took advice; he always gave it. He counseled his counselors and advised his advisers. He was intensely democratic, loving humanity and befriending the unfortunate.

"Oscar Hammerstein has become part of the history of this metropolis and will be remembered for many a day. The story of the theatrical and operatic life of this city—aye, of this country—cannot be written without an important record of Oscar Hammerstein. His friends loved him for his intrinsic worth; his foes honored him for his rugged strength. May his memory be an emulation for the ideal in art that rises supreme over the dross of materialism."

The honorary pallbearers were Lee Shubert, Abraham L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw, David Belasco, George M. Cohan, Al Woods, William A. Brady, J. J. Shubert, Morris Gest, Percy G. Williams, Lyle D. Andrews, and Henry Rosenberg. Homer E. Williams was the organist.

As a tribute to the memory of Oscar Hammerstein, Hugo Riesenfeld, Director of the Rivoli and the Rialto, ordered the flag on the Rialto at half-mast yesterday, and at 11 o'clock, the hour of the funeral of Mr. Hammerstein, in the Temple Emanu-El, a bugler sounded the call of "Taps" from the roof of the impresario's old theatre.

WARRING ACTORS AND MANAGERS MAY AGREE

Conference of Equity Council and President Harris Regarded as a Step Toward Peace.

A possible adjustment of the differences existing between the actors and the theatrical managers is believed to be in sight, as a result of a meeting yesterday afternoon between Sam H. Harris, President of the Producing Managers' Association, and a committee from the Actors' Equity Association.

The results of this conference were not announced, but it was learned that they were of a sufficiently hopeful character to warrant the arrangement of a second meeting for tomorrow afternoon, at the conclusion of which a statement will be given out.

The actors who met with Mr. Harris were Frank Gillmore, Executive Secretary of the Actors' Equity Association; Bruce McRae, Grant Stewart, and John W. Cope, all of whom are members of the Actors' Council. The meeting took place in the office of Mr. Harris.

It was generally felt by theatrical people last night that the meeting of the two factions was a big step in the direction of a settlement, as the managers since the entrance of the actors' organization into the American Federation of Labor had refused to recognize the actors' association. The meeting followed a letter sent to the managers by the actors late last week.

The Actors' Equity Association yesterday announced that it had received a communication from E. H. Sothern and Mrs. Sothern, (Julia Marlowe,) indorsing in its entirety the stand taken by the actors. The letter, sent from Litchfield, Conn., was as follows:

"At this crisis in the existence of the Actors' Equity Association Mrs. Sothern and I wish to express our sympathy with your request that the managers should consent to arbitration in the question of payment for extra holiday matinées. We are sorry that it becomes necessary to adopt extreme measures to enforce continued recognition of the Equity Association, and we wish that the managers could have seen their way to co-operate with the association in all matters concerning the welfare of the people of our calling. However, since pressure appears to be necessary, we believe that union with the American Federation of Labor is a proper and dignified way of procuring authority for your plea for equity and fair dealing, a result which surely will be to the advantage of both actor and manager."

ERLANGER'S NEW THEATRES

He Is to Build Twelve in Four Cities, Three in New York.

A. L. Erlanger yesterday confirmed the announcement that work on the construction of twelve theatres, to be located in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston, will be begun in the near future, and that all of these will probably be ready for occupancy next season. Plans for the houses are now being drawn by Marshall & Fox, Chicago architects.

The twelve houses will be built and operated by Mr. Erlanger individually, neither Marc Klaw nor anyone else being associated with him in their management. The announcement bears out the earlier belief that Mr. Erlanger will continue to engage actively in the theatrical business, regardless of the manner in which the future interests of Klaw & Erlanger are handled.

Three of the new theatres will be in New York, three in Philadelphia, three in Chicago, two in Boston, and one in Detroit. Work will be begun almost immediately on one of the Philadelphia houses, since the three theatres now controlled by Klaw & Erlanger in the city are scheduled to be replaced by other buildings during the next two years. The Klaw & Erlanger leases on the Forrest and the Garrick Theatres expire at the end of the coming season, and that on the Broad Street a year later.

No announcement is made as to the location of the new houses in New York. It is believed that all three of the new theatres in this city will be small, since there has long been a dearth of intimate houses in which to place the productions of Klaw & Erlanger and their associates.

FORD ON A VACATION.

ALBANY, Aug. 4.—Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, and H. S. Firestone and his son met John Burroughs here today. They will leave tomorrow for a vacation camping trip through the Adirondack Mountains.

One of Mr. Firestone's representatives was host at a dinner at which former Governor Glynn, Mayor Watt, and President Winchester of the Chamber of Commerce were guests.

CITY OF PARIS IS CITED.

Clemenceau Says It Has Added Deathless Chapters to Secular Glory.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Premier Clemenceau has cited the City of Paris in army orders, as follows:

"The City of Paris, a capital magnificently worthy of France, animated by patriotic faith which never faltered, bore with firm and smiling courage frequent bombardments by aircraft and long-range guns from 1914 to 1918 and has added deathless chapters to her secular glory."
